British Plan Drive Today Upon Rebels In Jerusalem

To Enter Old City Proclaim Army Rule Arabs Under Siege U. S. Hospital Cut Off

By the Associated Press.

Jerusalem, Oct. 18.—A form of martial law to help 20,000 British soldiers crush the uprising of an estimated 10,000 Arabs was proclaimed throughout the Holy Land tonight by Sir Harold MacMichael, commander in chief for Palestine.

Control of the entire country was placed in the hands of an army backed up by planes, tanks and artillery while rebels clung to the Moslem section of Jerusalem's Old City after four days of siege.

Sniping Continues

It was officially announced that British troops would enter the Old City tomorrow to clear it of armed Arabs.

British troops tonight patrolled the scarred battlements of the ancient walls, as Arab snipers continued firing from their hiding places.

The Palestine police force was placed under the British military command by the order for martial law.

Maj. Gen. O'Connor, commanding the Seventh Division, was appointed military governor of Jerusalem.

The sweeping measures were taken to quell an already widespread guerrilla war which has threatened the peace of all the Near East.

These were the immediate British objectives:

Repair, occupation and control of widely sabotaged railways.

Restoration and maintenance of telegraph and telephone communications.

Re-establishment of security on all highways.

Occupation of the more active rebel centers and further punitive measures against Arab villages.

Outside Jerusalem, the greatest task lay in the latter objective. British forces were campaigning to recapture the towns of Beersheba, Gaza, Hebron, Bethlehem and Jericho from the Arabs.

In Jerusalem, authorities extended the 24-hour curfew regulation to include potential danger zones outside the walls of the Old City lest the rebels expand their control here.

U. S. Hospital Cut Off

The array of British force in Jerusalem had the aspects of both a siege and a defense, for the guard had been doubled to prevent any rebel attack on modern districts of Jerusalem.

The siege was largely inactive. Royal Air Force observation and bombing planes flew over the Arab-dominated area today, but dropped no bombs in fear of damaging the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the Mosque of Omar, the site of Solomon's Temple and the historic Wailing Wall of the Jews.

These are holy places to the Christians, Jews and Moslems, whose interests are at conflict in the Holy Land.

British soldiers and police were rushed into the Old City last night

Nazis Held Ready To Make Paupers Of 500,000 Jews

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported tonight from Berlin, on the basis of "authoritative" information, that the German government is drafting a decree virtually forbidding Jews to earn a living and turning 500,000 of them into paupers.

The agency's copyright dispatch said the decree was ready for promulgation, perhaps on January 1, and would "sweep away all Jewish manufacturing, banks and presumably wholesale houses."

"It is indicated," the agency said, "That the only persons who will escape the edict are a few hundred doctors, lawyers and welfare workers and only enough tradespeople to cater to Jewish needs."

"No Jew will be permitted to work for an 'Aryan' in any capacity, and no 'Aryan' will be permitted to work for a Jew."

"The decision represents a victory for the Nazi extremists."

African Colonials Balk At Return to Germany

Durban, Natal, South Africa, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—A mass meeting of 2,000 persons, headed by Mayor Fleming Johnston, of Durban, today pledged strenuous resistance to any effort to return to Germany war-lost Tanganyika territory.

Eden Stresses Arming Hints Coalition Rule Hits 'Social' Failure

By the United Press.

London, Oct. 18.—Anthony Eden former foreign secretary and bitter foe of the dictators, tonight warned that Great Britain must take a lesson from the totalitarian powers and arm to the teeth if she is to hold her place in "a world organized for war.."

Eden, accused by Reichsfuehrer Hitler of aspiring to gain power and start a "conflagration," told the 122d annual meeting of the International Peace Society that in addition to rearmament Britain must deal with "domestic problems which beset us."

Eden made no direct reference to Prime Minister Chamberlain, against whose "surrender to the dictators" he rebelled last February, but said that social rearmament is necessary if "the nation is to pull together."

"We enter another winter with unemployment once again nearing the 2,000,000 mark," he said. "The tide of employment has receded. We shall be wise to recognize that the continued existence of these problems is a standing reproach to democracy."

Eden painted a gloomy picture of the future "if the sanctity of contract between nations no longer is respected, if we turn a blind eye to even the grossest breach of international good faith."

"If all nations are to break all their promises all the time the world will degenerate until it will resemble a zoological garden in which all the animals have been let loose at once," he said.

"We must make it clear that we shall use our greater strength not just to impose our will as to the fate of this territory or that but to uphold certain standards in the conduct of foreign affairs, without which commerce cannot flourish nor peace endure.

"The world is now in arms again and the greater part of it is either

Czech Areas Involved 800,000 Quit Prague Magyars Soften Tone

By the Associated Press.

Prague, Oct. 18.—Reliable German sources said tonight Germany had indicated her willingness to return parts of the occupied Sudetenland to Czechoslovakia.

The regions to be returned would include a number of predominantly Czech-populated sections, especially where they cut across rail connections from one part of Czechoslovakia to another, these sources said.

The amount of territory likely to be returned was still undetermined. About 850,000 Czechs are in German-occupied territory.

It was asserted that German troops already had evacuated some Czech communities occupied since October 10.

Thousands of persons streamed from Prague tonight while the government imposed more stringent regulations on the populace under a state of emergency throughout the country.

The fear of uncertainty as to what might happen next—with Hungarian demands treading on the heels of those by Germany and Poland—apparently caused the exodus.

A general censorship of foreign news also was tightened.

A more cheerful note, the "increased mobility of the country's finances," was struck, however, by Finance Minister Kalsus in announcing that depositors in banks, building and loan associations and insurance companies could request the withdrawal of 5 per cent of their funds.

The maximum withdrawal had been 3 per cent.

Kalsus said, too, that negotiations for a London loan were proceeding "satisfactorily" and that further conferences for additional funds above the first 10,000,000 pounds sterling ($50,000,000) would be held in the future.

Japanese Open Way in North For Pincer Drive on Canton

By the Associated Press.

Hongkong, Oct. 18.—The Japanese invasion of South China was developing tonight into three distinct operations under cover of one of the most intensive aerial campaigns in the history of modern warfare.

All drives were directed at the defenses of Canton. One column apparently was thrusting toward the provincial capital's communications on the north, another in a flanking move toward the city's river fortifications on the southeast and the third following the Canton-Kowloon Railway directly toward the city.

Scores of bombing planes ranged over Kwangtung Province, ferreting out troop concentrations for machine-gun and bomb attacks and striking at bridges and railway centers. Casualties were said to be running into the thousands.

Meanwhile, the Japanese announced capture of two important bulwarks of Chinese resistance in the Yangtze Valley in Central China.

They reported final capitulation of Yangsin, protecting the southern railway approach to Hankow, and Tsian, protecting the northern railway approach to Nanchang.

The capture of Yangsin put the Japanese in position to press 50

1,500 'Unable' To Work Face Medical Test

Now Living on Dole Clinic Fund Sought Would Recheck List Many Believed Well

By James D. Secrest.

Washington's so-called unemployables now on public relief are to be given medical examinations, under a plan to be presented shortly to the District Commissioners, to determine whether or not they actually are unemployable, it was learned yesterday.

Suggested first by Burdette G. Lewis, special relief investigator, the idea has run the gamut of the District Health Department and the U. S. Public Health Service and now is before Auditor Daniel J. Donovan because of the financial problem of the proposal.

Only $6,000 is needed, Lewis estimates, but the Public Health Service and the District health department have been unable to find that amount of money unearmarked. Officials in both agencies, however, have approved the idea in principle.

Doctors May Volunteer

Auditor Donovan, to whom the problem was referred, now believes he will be able to suggest a plan to the commissioners for carrying out the project with little or no money. Its basis is voluntary clinic service by Washington physicians.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland, following considerable investigation, told Maj. Donovan that a deficiency appropriation, suggested by Lewis, appeared to be the only resource. This, however, would delay the clinical study until after Congress convenes when the District's 1940 budget will have been submitted.

While officials are withholding comment until action has been taken by the Commissioners, it is understood that District relief investigators have uncovered numerous instances of persons listed as unemployables who have no vocational physical handicaps.

List Reduced 1,000

The unemployable list, for which doles are allowed, now numbers 1,500, although earlier in the summer it was nearer 2,500.

Many of the unemployables were said to have been so classified upon the basis of physicians' certificates at the time of illness. Since their initial registration, however, they have remained on the list despite recoveries and without further medical examinations, it is said.

Under provisions of the District appropriation act, the $900,000 relief fund is limited to unemployables. For several years the Board of Public Welfare and local social welfare agencies have sought vainly to persuade the House and Senate subcommittees on District appropriations to include additional funds for employables on the ground that many are destitute.

This is one of the problems being studied by Lewis and his staff and recommendations as to the handling of jobless employables are expected to be included in the report to be completed by December 1.

Heat Reaches 85 But Chill Wave Is Heading Here

Washington's heat wave lingered yesterday with the mercury reaching its highest point since 1881 for October 18, despite a cool wave on its way from New England.

The temperature at 2:15 p. m. was 85 degrees, which is "abnormal" for this time of year, the Weather Bureau reported, recalling that this time last year Washington was in the grip of a cold spell in which the maximum temperature was in the low 50's.

Woman Dead, Man Found Alive In Montana Snow

Helena, Mont., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—One Montanan, missing on a hunting trip since the season's first snowstorm and freezing weather gripped the State, was found alive today, and the frozen body of a woman, also lost in the storm, was discovered.

Search was begun, meanwhile, for another hunter missing since Sunday, but whose companions reached a telephone only today. No trace was found of a third hunter, also lost.

Tractors battled through heavy snowdrifts in an attempt to reach 15 Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees atop Mount Willard, in northern Utah. They were in no immediate danger.

Spy Witness Involves Nazi Envoy; La Follette Aides Linked to Reds

Ex-Communist Is Accuser Presence at Council Charged Investigators Refuse Comment

By Sidney Olson.

A pale, slight, young undercover man, who spied on Communists for two years, said yesterday that two investigators for the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee, who hailed a Communist council as "comrades," predicted his murder "within 24 hours" after the council had expelled him from the party.

That was in January, 1937, William D. Gernaey, 35, of Detroit, testified yesterday before the Dies Committee on un-American Activities. Gernaey, in endeavoring to link the La Follette committee with communism, said he was exposed as a spy by the Communist council when they produced photostatic copies of his reports to his company.

Immediately after he had signed a "confession," he said, he was taken into the next room, where Harold Cranefield and Benjamin Allen, La Follette investigators, in welcoming his expulsion, urged the Communist council to be careful. Gernaey said that Cranefield (now with the National Labor Relations Board), said:

"Comrades, this man's life is not worth 2 cents. He's of no more use to the capitalist class and he will be destroyed. I suggest to all the people in this room that they keep a day-to-day and hour-to-hour record of their activities. Because this man probably will be killed within the next 24 hours and one of you will be charged with the murder."

Gernaey intimated that the council could only have obtained photostats of his reports from the committee, which was then investigating his company.

Records of the Senate Civil Liberties Committee revealed last night

Agent Used Dieckhoff's Photo Frau Hofmann's Work Revealed Tells German Message System

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Oct. 28.—The names of Dr. Hans Dieckhoff, German Ambassador to the United States, and Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's personal aide-de-camp, today were linked to an alleged Germna spy ring by Guenther Gustax Rumrich, American Army deserter who has pleaded guilty to espionage charges, testifying in the trial of three defendants for espionage before Judge John C. Knox and a jury in United States District Court.

Rumrich, on the stand all day, said Karl Wiegand, also known as Theodor Schuetz, fugitive defendant in the case, showed him a photograph last November of himself, Dr. Dieckhoff and Capt. Wiedemann.

Rumrich said he expressed surprise that the German Ambassador should allow himself to be photographed with Wiegand, and that Wiegand answered, "Well, diplomats are different these days."

Later Rumrich gave testimony connecting Johanna Hofmann, 28-year-old former hairdresser on the liner Europa and one of the defendants on trial, with the alleged espionage ring, saying she was introduced to him as an agent qualified to carry his messages to Germany. It was the first time since the trial opened that any of the defendants have been linked with the ring in testimony.

Rumrich also told of a scheme to steal coast defense plans by overpowering an Army officer with gas; of a German agent who showed him two $1,000 bills destined for an employe of "a submarine factory in Brooklyn;" of another agent who said he had paid $2,000 to an employe of the Curtiss-Wright airplane factory in Buffalo, and of requests by German agents that he

Witness Urges 'Pressure' on Doctor Society

"Substantial outside pressure" is needed to bring the American Medical Association into step with modern social needs, Dr. Michael M. Davis, of the Rosenwald Foundation, said yesterday at the close of his all-day testimony before the extraordinary grand jury which is hearing Government charges that the association and the District Medical Society conspired unlawfully to restrain trade.

DR. DAVIS

Dr. Davis was the second of the Department of Justice 100 "secret witnesses" to visit the grand jury room. The investigation began Monday, prompted by a complaint of Group Health Association, Inc., that the established physicians' organizations were violating the Sherman antitrust law in their activities against it.

6 Boys Jailed; Plotted Crime Wave at Lorton

Plotted in Leisure Identified by Victims Guns Seized

A "crime corporation" planned by six young bandits during leisure time at Lorton Reformatory was broken when police seized the youths in connection with a score of recent holdups, it was revealed yesterday.

Five of the men were identified by nine holdup victims in a line-up held at police headquarters last night.

The sixth, alleged leader of the gang, was captured shortly after the line-up when he kept a rendezvous with his girl at a beer garden on the outskirts of the city. The girl was released.

One of the suspects, 22, who has spent most of the last five years in jails and institutions, has admitted to police complicity in eight armed stickups. He involved his friends in written confessions to Lieut. John H. Fowler, chief of the robbery squad.

Lieut. Fowler said four of the bandits were released from Lorton during the past six months. Charges against them ranged from armed robbery and automobile theft to bootlegging.

Identify Bandits

Victims identifying the bandits last night included Miss Carlia Mitts, clerk at the grocery store of Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, Md., robbed of $140 October 3; Edward Crew, driver of a Capital Transit bus, $3, October 3; Robert Fitzhugh, Weaver gas station, Georgia avenue and Kalmia street northwest, $58, October 8; Wade Moody, Little Tavern, 427 Florida avenue northeast, $10; October 8, and Ethel Schumaker, High's ice cream store, 806 Upshur street northwest, 7, October 8.

Others were Kirby F. Walton, manager, Holmes Oil Co., 1700 block Bennings road northeast, $5, October 9; Mrs. Rebecca Baird, manager, High's, 3417 Eighteenth street northeast, $10, October 9; Irene Ashworth, High's, 6201 Third street northwest, $13, October 9, and Samuel F. Syracuse, Sligo drug store, Takoma Park, Md., $80, October 11.

Woman BurnsAuto To Curb Husband

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Mrs. Mary Cusick bought a car several months ago for her husband, John, a WPA worker, and John got in the habit of taking it out without her, she said. She caught up with him last night, she said, sitting in a beer parlor with two women, so she unscrewed the gas tank cap, lit a match and tossed it in. John walked home.

Vienna Expects Innitzer to Take Troubles to Pope

Vienna, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Ecclesiastical circles tonight expected Theodore Cardinal Innitzer to go to Vatican City soon to report on Catholic Church difficulties in German Austria.

This possibility was seen as reports from Salzburg told of an attack on the Archbishop's palace there last night in an outbreak similar to the stoning of the archepiscopal palace here October 8, in which Cardinal Innitzer was slightly injured.

In Vienna, posters appeared on the bulletin boards of several Catholic churches, saying: "Render to God the things that are God's and to the Fuehrer the things that are the Fuehrer's."

Some quarters interpreted the posters as a manifestation against Cardinal Innitzer's policy, which is at odds with Naziism.

Held in Asylum, Son Sues Canada Envoy for $300,000

Toronto, Oct. 18 (Canadian Press). A writ asking $300,000 damages was issued today in Ontario supreme court by Leonard Marler against his father, Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Washington, and Dr. George H. Stevenson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at London, Ontario.

Young Marler's statement of claim alleges that his father and Dr. Stevenson caused him to be detained with mental patients in the London hospital from February 17 until September 20, 1938. He alleges he was deprived of his liberty during that period and was obliged to labor with work gangs in the hospital.

The statement of claim also alleges that his intended marriage was hindered, although it was authorized by the issuer of marriage licenses at London on February 8, 1938.

Davis Appeals To Sheppard in WPA 'Coercion'

Sends New Affidavits Truck Drivers Complain $100 Demands Alleged

The hectic Pennsylvania election moved into an even hotter phase yesterday when Senator Davis, Republican, appealed to the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee to investigate his charges of the "coercion and clubbing" of WPA truck drivers and other workers in Carbon County by Democratic officials.

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, committee chairman, ordered several investigators into the Keystone State last week. Davis, in a letter to Sheppard, asserted that the WPA workers had been forced to contribute to Democratic campaign funds.

He wrote:

"Additional sworn testimony of macing Pennsylvania WPA employes and truck owners has been delivered to me, which I hasten to transmit for examination and report by your committee.

"The evidence in this instance comes from a new sector, and I firmly believe it will be supplemented by specific charges in every section of the State before the end of the week."

He supplemented his letter with sworn statements from WPA truck drivers that they had been dismissed for refusing to contribute $100 each to the Democratic fund.

Sheppard said his committee would consider Davis' new charges at a meeting set tentatively for October 25.

Davis told Sheppard that on October 14 he visited Carbon County, Pa. He wrote:

"A group of Lehighton truck owners, WPA employes and the representatives of the Carpenters' Union, called on me and recited stories of coercive methods by superiors who sought money support for the Democratic campaign chest. In order that there might be no counter-

GMC Rehires 35,000 and Increases Pay For 30,000

Stock List Bounds Jones Hails Upturn Sees Easier Credit Cites Rail Gains

By William V. Nessly.

The Nation's recovery drive shot forward with new power yesterday as General Motors Corporation announced rehiring of 35,000 workers and restoration of last winter's pay cuts to 30,000 others. At the same time various other business factors were revealed to be falling into the procession toward prosperity.

The stock and bond markets immediately responded to the General Motors announcement, which will add close to $2,000,000 weekly to the concern's pay rolls, and in a late buying rush for motors many other issues were sent upward 3 or more points. Bonds, after a weak opening and generally lower prices, rallied and closed firmer. Some stocks went to the highest points in more than a year.

In the capital, the motor firm's news was hailed by many officials and a generally optimistic air prevailed.

Jones Sees "Upturn"

Chairman Jesse Jones, of the RFC, said at a press conference, his first since his European trip, that there had been a "definite upturn," that all those with whom he had talked "have been moderately hopeful."

"Business is a little better," he continued. "The railroads have a little more traffic and the banks are coming along well with loans to business."

He told reporters the RFC would be prepared "if the need occurred" to make loans to private utilities to enable them to carry out the national defense program and that new studies have been begun on the possibility of reorganizing the bankrupt Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad.

Effective at Once

Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors, made the announcement that touched off the good cheer throughout business circles. He said in New York that the employment expansion would be made within the next two weeks in connection with production of 1939 model automobiles.

"Our new models have been received," he said. "There appears a greater interest than existed a year ago."

Officials of the corporation had become convinced, the chairman continued, "that the trend of consumer buying when retail deliveries of new cars can be made to customers in volume will be found to be substantially improved over that existing during the past few months."

Total Pay Roll 200,000

"Therefore," he continued, "the corporation feels justified in increasing its current production schedules by revising upward the plans made last summer, as well as in readjusting its general operating program to a higher level of volume."

Pay cut restorations will be granted those "white collar" workers receiving $300 a month or less, their compensation being boosted back to the level of last February 28, when the cut took effect.

The addition of 35,000 employes will give General Motors about 165,000 factory workers, it was estimated, and close to 200,000 on its pay rolls, including office workers.

For those salaried workers getting more than $300 a month, Sloan explained, pay advancement will be on an "individual merit basis," beginning November 1.

His statement contained additional reassuring news. He said the corporation would rebuild "substantial inventories in excess of retail demand during the winter months," thereby tending to stabilize employment at higher levels, and "at the same time preparing for the sea-

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Orleans, Oct. 18.—The deification of the state in countries afflicted with totalitarian governments and dictatorships as contrasted with the freedom of speech, religion and action in the democracies, provided the theme of most of the speeches of both prelates and laymen today and tonight at the series of ceremonies forming the second day's program of the eighth National Eucharistic Congress.

Nearly 50,000 Catholics from all parts of the country attended the most impressive of the day's events —a solemn pontifical high mass celebrated in City Park Stadium by the papal legate, George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago.

He was surrounded on the raised sanctuary by most of the bishops and archbishops whose sees are in the United States, garbed in their most formal vestments of gleaming scarlet and purple silk, gold embroidery and white copes and mitres. The members of the hierarchy were drenched by a heavy rain that fell upon the whole multitude just as Archbishop Edward

Wallace Calls GOP Potential Fascists

Speaks in Iowa Backs Gillette Scores Dickinson

Waterloo, Iowa, Oct. 18 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace tonight wound up his Iowa drive against former Senator J. Dickinson by terming the Republican Party leadership potential Fascists.

The Cabinet officer, in a speech prepared for delivery here in behalf of Senator Gillette and the rest of the Iowa Democratic ticket, declared:

"Well-to-do people in the United States are returning from the totalitarian states with an admiration, expressed or unexpressed, for the superficial benefits that come from dictatorship."

"Sooner or later, if this trend continues," he said, "the high command of the Republican Party will probably take a try at some brand of American fascism."

The Secretary said Dickinson, Iowa Senator from 1931 to 1937 and candidate again in a comeback attempt, promised to carry the fight for a farm program to the Republican national convention at Kansas City in 1928.

Roosevlet Brought Into Race

"I remember how he carried the message to Garcia and how the high command of the Republican Party took him into camp and spanked him, and he has been a good boy ever since," Wlalace said. "In June of 1928 Dickinson chose to go with the autocratic high command of the Republican Party."

The Secretary brought the name of President Roosevelt into prominence for the first time in the Iowa campaign. In a plea for support for Senator Gillette and Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel, both candidates for re-election, Wallace asked his listeners to "go around Saturday afternoon" and whisper into the corner grocer's ear:

"Your profits depend upon a square deal for agriculture. Vote to uphold President Roosevelt."

The Secretary charged the "Republicans, the Liberty League and similar organizations" with trying to stir up "a farm revolt."

"They have had remarkably little success among the real farmers," he asserted, "but they break into the press once in a while and deceive city people."

Cotton Quota Referendum

Atlanta, Oct. 18 (AP).—Expressions by political leaders indicated today they were following developments toward a new cotton quota referendum December 10 as a significant test of the Federal crop control laws.

Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, said "I know that the cotton farmers of my State are dissatified and I doubt if they will vote in favor of quotas on the 1939 crop.

"With the cotton price what it is, the growers are faced with the situation of having about 40 per cent less than the normal amount of cotton to sell and they are not getting anything for it."

Senator George, in a speech several weeks ago, declared the soil conservation act "should be redrafted along common sense lines and the Government should commit itself to the payment of benefits under the act as fixed and specified times and benefits should be paid at the times specified and fixed."

Canada to Join Inter-American Travel Congress

The Canadian government has accepted Secretary Hull's invitation to participate in the first inter-American Travel Congress, to be held in San Francisco in April, the Pan-American Union announced yesterday.

In sending representatives to the parley, Canada will take part for the first time in history in a gathering of all the American nations under all-American sponsorship.

All 22 nations of the Western Hemisphere will take part in the congress, which will be held from April 14 to 21. Co-sponsor with the Pan-American Union is the Golden Gate International Exposition.

The parley, first international gathering devoted exclusively to travel questions, will seek to develop inter-American touring. Among the problems to be attacked are passport and immigration regulations, co-ordination of transport services, improvement of hotel facilities and development of inter-American sports.

Farley Predicts 'Good Safe Majorities' Landon to Address Illinois Rally

Atlanta, Oct. 18 (AP).—"Good safe Democratic majorities" in the House and Senate were predicted today by Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, for the next Congress.

FARLEY

"There are a few bad spots at present, from a Democratic viewpoint, but we expect considerable improvement in most of these places by the November elections. All in all, I am well pleased with the apparent complexion of the next Congress," he said.

Farley was en route to Washington from New Orleans, where he addressed the Catholic Eucharistic Congress.

Topeka, Kans., Oct. 18 (AP).—Alf M. Landon left here this afternoon for Vienna, Ill., where he will speak tomorrow afternoon at a Congressional district rally. Landon will go from Vienna to Valentine, Nebr., for another speech Friday.

Denver, Oct. 18 (AP).—While they talk about some pretty fancy old-age pension plans around the Nation, Colorado is having a rousing battle over the highest pension law now in effect.

After residents of a remote mountain town, Craig, egged a campaigning sound-truck of the Federation for Workable Old-Age Pensions, sponsor of a proposal to rescind the $45 pension amendment voted two years ago, the federation asked officers for protection.

Senator Alva B. Adams (Democrat), Colorado, declared leaders of the National Annuity League backer of the $45 plan, were "political racketeers who do not actually represent the old-age pensioners."

Although Colorado's 2 per cent sales and service taxes have not raised enough to pay the $45 awards in full since January, this month 37,631 pensioners collected $1,085,000. The average October payment was $28.83. The Federal Government contributed $452,900 toward the October bill.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 18 (AP).—Senator James J. Davis, defending Judge Arthur H. James for declining to resign from the Superior Court bench while campaigning for Governor on the Republican ticket, asked at a party rally here: "The President drew his salary while campaigning across the country on his recent 'purge' trip, didn't he?"

Davis, who is seeking re-election, then asked last night: "And did Gov. George H. Earle pay for the use of the State-owned airplane in which he traveled to Mexico and Guatamala?"

'Model Husband' Who Killed Rival Held 'Mad,' 'Calm'

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Rudolph Sikora, "model husband" on trial for slaying his wife's lover, was portrayed alternately today as a "deliberte" killer and a maltreated mate robbed of his reason by jealousy.

A jury embracing 11 married men and a bachelor heard State and defense outline their versions of the triangular affair that ended in the gun death of Edward Solomon last August 22.

W. W. Smith, attorney for Sikora, maintained his client's pretty wife, Margaret, 22, confessed her love for Solomon last summer and that Sikora was so shocked that he became irrational.

Prosecutor Leslie Curtis told the jurors in a dispassionate, conversational manner that "Rudy" took his wife's announced plans calmly. He claimed the defendant carefully stalked Solomon, shot him twice, and asked spectators to call the police.

Franco to Recruit Men Once Unfit

Hendaye, France (at the Spanish Frontier), Oct. 18 (AP).—To bolster Spanish insurgent ranks weakened by losses on the Ebro Front and by the withdrawal of thousands of Italian legionnaires, the Burgos government has lowered its standard for recruits, insurgent dispatches said tonight.

Men who previously failed to meet health requirements will be re-examined.

Hostilities were still virtually suspended because, advices intimated of the insurgent desire to learn the effect of the Italians' withdrawal on the diplomatic situation.

Roosevelt Sees Lehman; Silent On N. Y. Issues

Governor 'Confident' Horner at Hyde Park Hopkins Is Guest

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 18.—President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman decided today on a vigorous campaign to keep New York State Democratic in the November 8 election, but left undisclosed the issues to be raised.

After a two-hour luncheon conference at the Roosevelt home, Lehman said they discussed the campaign "in all of its phases" and that many decisions were reached.

He would not say what these decisions were, adding the issues would develop as the campaign progressed.

Lehman "Very Confident"

Lehman said he told the President he was "very confident of re-election" to a fourth term and was "equally confident" as to other candidates on the ticket with him.

His call followed that of Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, who said afterward he told the President the Democrats in his State would win next month and "by a big vote."

Horner, whose term still has two years to run, said Illinois Democrats were "thoroughly united" now and all Congressional candidates were "safe."

At a press conference, the President said his study of rearmament needs was proceeding very well, but since it was still very much in the preliminary stage it was pure guesswork to say how extensive the new program would be.

He placed in the category of speculation stories that the Army would double its number of planes.

He said it was too early to talk about Secretary Wallace's new farm surplus program.

Asked about a statement attributed to him that the current relief appropriation of $1,455,000,000 must last until March 1, the President turned to Harry L. Hopkins relief administrator, his house guest, for a reply.

Scots Present

Hopkins would make no prediction as to how long the $760,000,000 remaining would last, but said Congress provided that in event of an emergency the total appropriation could be used up before March 1.

Present at the press conference were Lieut. Col. Arthur Murray and Mrs. Murray, of Scotland, old friends.

Last caller of the day was Secretary Morgenthau, who remained for dinner after an hour's talk on the Federal budget.

George Hyman Co. Is Given Contract For Court Building

The George Hyman Construction Co. of Washington was awarded the contract yesterday to build the new Municipal Court Building. The company's bid of $1,233,720 for the project was the lowest of eight bids. The work must be completed in 480 calendar days. It is expected work will begin early next week.

The commissioners awarded three other contracts for PWA projects. The Charles H. Tompkins Co. was awarded a contract for the excavations and footings for the new general medical ward building at Gallinger Hospital, for $13,300.

The Peter D'Adamo Construction Co., of Baltimore, was awarded a $21,275.55 contract for the laying of a divorcement sewer in the Macomb street drainage area.

The John W. Hunt Co. was awarded a $20,283 contract for foundations for the new Juvenile Court building to be erected in Judiciary Square.

The Gallup Poll

Rank and File Want More Liberal G. O. P. Sentiment May Be Important in 1940

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Oct. 18.—New and striking evidence of a trend in Republican sentiment toward greater liberalization of the Republican Party is revealed in a Nation survey just completed by the Institute.

GALLUP.

To a cross-section of the 17,000,000 persons who voted for Landon in 1936 the Institute put this question: "Would you like to see the Republican Party be more liberal or more conservative than it was in the Presidential campaign of 1936?"

The vote is for "more liberal" by a substantial majority.

More liberal	56%
More conservative	15
About the same	29

With far-reaching implications for the 1940 campaign, the vote indicates that, in the opinion of the Republican rank and file, the party's best strategy is to move more to the left. While the elections next month will give the first clear-cut picture of 1940 possibilities, it seems likely from the survey that liberal leaders, rather than the so-called Old Guard, will control the party's councils in 1940.

Reupblican backers of Thomas E. Dewey, G. O. P. candidate for Governor of New York, claim that his candidacy is a death blow to the Old Guard and the beginning of a new type of progressivism in the party, which would be in line with the sentiments expressed by Republicans in the Institute survey.

If the trend continues and if rank-and-file sentiment is reflected in the G. O. P. convention in 1940, the candidate named probably will be more liberal than was the 1936 ticket.

"Only Chance to Win"

The survey vote for greater liberalization is significant for another reason. Many stanch Republicans have felt that the G. O. P. should become the conservative party in American politics, drawing a sharp line of distinction between itself and the Democrats so that the voters would have a clear choice between two points of view. But the survey vote indicates that this tactic is not at the present time popular with the G. O. P. rank and file. The reasons appear from the many hundreds of comments given by Republican voters in the poll. Typical is the sentiment expressed by a Republican civil engineer in West Virginia: "The Republicans have to be more liberal if they ever expect to be revived. Reactionaries in the party have killed it." Another comment typical of many was that of a New Jersey grocery store owner: "The trend today is toward liberalism. The Republicans must go that way in order to be elected. It's their only chance of winning."

Farmers More Conservative

The highest vote for change comes from Republicans in the cities, 60 per cent of whom would like to see the party become more liberal. Small towns—the backbone of Republican strength in 1936—also vote "more liberal" by a majority of 55 per cent.

Republican farmers, on the other hand, are much less in favor of liberalizing the party. A slight majority, 53 per cent, think it should be either more conservative or about the same as in 1936, while 47 per cent vote "more liberal."

Public Opinion Favors Social Security Extension

By Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Oct. 18.—The Social Security Board last week recommended extension of the social security act to domestic servants, farm laborers, seamen and others to a total of 16,000,000 persons.

Last January a survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion found overwhelming sentiment for extending the security program to these same groups of people. The vote was 74 per cent for extension, 26 per cent opposed.

Pi Kappa Alpha Elects Howorth

Joseph M. Haworth was elected president of Pi Kappa Alpha, Gamma Xi alumni chapter, at a dinner meeting last night in the Continental Hotel.

Other officers elected were Burt M. Andrews, vice president; Joseph C. Rich, treasurer; David C. Longinotti, corresponding secretary; Ivan D. Smith, recording secretary, and Hal Baker, chairman of publicity.

Charles H. Dunn, the retiring president, introduced the principal speaker, Roy D. Hickman, national alumni secretary.

Zoning Appeal Forms Approved

Application forms for appeals to the newly created Board of Zoning Adjustment were approved yesterday by the board.

Capt. Hugh P. Oram, executive director of the Zoning Commission, said yesterday he would send the form to the commission members for their approval before hearing cases.

He said approximately 20 persons had made known they will appeal decisions by District Building and zoning administrative bodies.

Lawyer Attacks Broker Practice

Real estate brokers and agents who have been preparing bills of sale, chattel mortgages or promisory notes for their clients are engaging in "unauthorized practice of law," it was charged yesterday by a member of the District Bar Association.

In a letter to the District Real Estate ommission, Richard A. Harman, romer secretary of the Bar Association committee for suppression of unauthorized practice of law, requested it prohibit licensed brokers and agents from performing these tasks.

The commission has referred the matter to Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward Thomas, who said yesterday he would reserve his opinion pending outcome of a case now before the Court of Appeals.

Food for Cities

United States farmers raise a quarter-acre of wheat, three-quarters acre of corn and one-eighth acre of cotton for every American city dweller, a survey shows.

Andrews May Urge Intrastate Wage Compliance

By the Associated Press.

Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, appealed yesterday for universal acceptance of principles of the new wage-hour law.

The law, which becomes effective next Monday, applies to industries in interstate commerce but Andrews told newsmen today he thought it would not "be a catastrophe" if an intrastate business conformed to the act.

"In fact," he said, "I think I will make an appeal later for all intrastate industries to come in."

Meanwhile, 70 clothing and apparel manufacturers met here to form an industry committee under the new act.

Andrews said the manufacturers would consider first the clothing and pants industry. Today they will study the pajama, shirt and work clothing branches, and on Thursday dresses, coats, suits and infants and children's wear.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel punk, sick and upset all over.
Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach gas. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

Office Women Under Scope Of Pay Board

Hundreds Seen Aided
$17 Base Expected
2 Industries Remain

Several thousand women office workers throughout Washington will be brought under the terms of the District minimum-wage act this fall as the result of action taken yesterday by the District Minimum Wage Board.

A public hearing was scheduled for November 2, to begin at 10 a. m., in the board's headquarters in the old Police Court Building. A conference committee of three employer representatives and three employe spoksmen will be named next Tuesday, and these two groups will in turn select three public representatives.

While no wage proposals have been received by the board yet, it is expected that the scale adopted ultimtaely will approximate $17 a week minimum ordered for office workers in the retail trade, laundries, beauty shops, hotels and restaurants.

Miss Rwen Geach, secretary of the board, said hundreds of girls were now working in varied offices for as little as $10 or $12 a week.

She could give no estimate of the total number of office workers who may be covered in the contemplated order, but one official guessed that it might run between 4,000 and 5,000.

Women office workers in public utilities, law offices, doctors' offices, real estate firms, clubs and so on, are invited to participate in the forthcoming conference, Miss Geach said.

The wage scale, as in other industries, will be based on a work week of between 40 and 48 hours.

Only two industries remains to be brought under the minimum-wage act, Miss Geach said. They are manufacturing and wholesale houses, but in both the number of women workers is btlieved to be small. The printing trades have not been touched either, but Miss Geach pointed out that women in this industry are practically all paid on union scales, wtih a $21-a-week minimum.

Bridge League Sponsors Tourney To Open Nov. 3

Contract bridge luminaries from all over the Atlantic Seaboard will be in Washington for the eighth annual District championship tourney at the Shoreham Hotel beginning November 3 and continuing for four days.

The tournament is under the auspices of the Washington Bridge League, of which Mrs. E. B. Swanson is president. A special committee headed by Lieut. Comdr. W. A. Corley, retired, will be in charge of arrangements. Russell J. Baldwin, of Cleveland, will direct. He also will represent the American Contract Bridge League, national association of 15,000,000 bridge players, that sponsors the event and awards national master points to winners.

Five separate championships are included in the program. Custody of a handsome trophy is awarded to the winners of each event. The best-known trophies are the Eynon Bowl, donated by the secretary of the Washington Baseball Club, and the Woodward Cup, donated by Donald Woodward.

The Columbia Broadcasting Station has arranged to send a play-by-play account of the tournament over its network, with special interviews with the bridge stars who are playing.

Purse Snatcher Eludes Pursuer

Her courage was greater than her speed and consequently a pocketbook thief escaped Hazel Franklin, 1835 California street northwest, after a three-block chase yesterday.

Miss Franklin saw the purse snatcher sneaking from a beauty shop at 1803 Connecticut avenue northwest, early yesterday. In addition to the Franklin pocketbook which contained $52, the thief had the bag of Gladys Latham, Takoma Park, which had $12 in it. Both women work at the beauty parlor.

Miss Franklin climbed a 5-foot brick wall in pursuit. She lost the man on Florida avenue when he boarded an automobile.

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Oct. 18.—Twenty-year-old Edith Snyder, who shot at her father, Martin (Col. Gimp) Snyder in defense of Torch Singer Ruth Etting, wept bitterly today as police staged a re-enactment of the melee of last Saturday night in Miss Etting's music room.

Because, as a police investigator explained it, "the various versions of the shooting now in our hands do not coincide in many vital details," Miss Etting and her secretary, Miss Snyder, were asked to show officers exactly what happened.

The other two principals, Myrl Alderman, who says he and the torch singer were married at Tijuana last July, and Snyder, Miss Etting's divorced husband and business manager for 17 years, were not present.

Alderman is in a hospital, recovering from a wound in his abdomen which he asserts Snyder inflicted. "Col. Gimp" is at liberty on $10,000 bail on charges of attempted murder, kidnaping and carrying a gun from which the numbers had been filed. Snyder declares he shot in self-defense.

His daughter, silent since telling officers after the shooting that she fired to save Miss Etting, sobbed out:

"I don't yet know whether I am sorry I missed my dad or whether I am glad."

Alderman, meanwhile, continued to improve.

A uniformed policeman stood outside the door of his room—at Miss Etting's request. Others guarded Miss Etting, named yesterday as defendant in a $150,000 alienation of affections suit by Alderman's former wife, Alma, whom he divorced last December.

2 Thompsons Die; Last Children of Pa. Coal Baron

Uniontown, Pa., Oct. 18 (AP).—John Thompson and Andrew Anderson Thompson, prominent coal operators and the last surviving children of J. V. Thompson, coal baron, once reputed to be the wealthiest man in the Nation and later bankrupt, died today within a few hours.

John, 56, died of heart disease at his mountain retreat near Chalk Hill without learning of the death of Andrew, 58, a few hours earlier, at his country home.

Both had inherited vast coal holdings from their father. Andrew Thompson was treasurer and general manager of the Thompson Coal and Coke Co. of Republic, Pa.

The brothers were cousins of the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, widow of a Hungarian prince.

Turnkey Claims Virginia Title of Meanest Jailor

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Found: The meanest jailor in Virginia.

At least, Roanoke City Jailor J. C. James nominates himself and tells this story to support his claim:

Johnson Compton, colored, was arrested Saturday when police found in his possession a quantity of decapitated chickens. The chickens were placed in cold storage.

Finally it was decided that keeping the chickens in cold storage would be too expensive. And so on Sunday 233 prisoners were served chicken and dumplings with all the trimmings.

The 234th prisoner, served baked beans, corn bread and fat meat, sat with his mouth watering but nary a scrap of chicken did he get. His identity: Johnson Compton.

D. C. Job Center Mails Folders To 120,000

Bills Stress Services
Sent to Employers
Work Free of Charge

Housewives, homeowners, big businessmen—120,000 of them—in the next few days will receive folders through the mail reminding them that the District Employment Center is ready to serve them in their search for persons to do everything from hedge trimming to bookkeeping.

Giving notice that this is "Employment Week," the folders are designed to acquaint their recipients with all the service of the center, which has in its files applications for jobs from practically every person in Washington currently seeking employment, said C. E. Lamson, director.

The folders will be distributed gradually, 20,000 being sent out this week and 10,000 each week thereafter until the supply is exhausted.

Offers to Help

"We know you want to save time, expense and effort of interviewing unsuitable and countless numbers of workers to fill your job requirements," the folders state.

"Regardless of the number you employ, the Employment Center can help you. When a job order is received, only competent and qualified workers are referred to an employer for his final selection."

The center, which functions under the United States Employment Service, is provided for workers and employers in the District without charge.

Separate Divisions

"To facilitate rapid, efficient referrals to job opportunities in the home, in business, or in industry, the Employment Center has separate divisions for commercial and professional, industrial and building trades, hotel and restaurant and domestic and service applicants," the folders point out.

Coast Guard Aid To Halt Trawling Near Shore Asked

Ocean City, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—The Coast Guard has been asked for aid in keeping menhaden trawlers outside the 3-mile limit, the Maryland Conservation Commission announced today.

A commission investigator, after a brief inspection here during which he heard complaints from sportsmen and hotel owners and urgings by merchants that the trawler fleet be encouraged to fish off shore, said he "hoped for a peaceable solution." The commission has sent a letter to Capt. E. T. Crabster, of the Norfolk (Va.) Coast Guard base, seeking "cooperation" in patrolling the 40-mile stretch.

About 35 trawlers from Virginia, Delaware and New Jersey comprise the fleet dragging for menhaden, an oily fish used for fertilizer and in preserving leather.

Pope Brands Nazism Outrage Against God

Mooney, of Detroit, was concluding his sermon.

Thousands of worshippers scurried to shelter beneath the spreading oaks behind the altar and under the concrete stands of the stadium, but most of them returned to their seats when the heavy shower ended. They remainded for the conclusion of the mass and the broadcast message of Pope Pius XI, whose voice, bearing a benediction, came clearly across the seas from Castel Gandolfo, Italy.

Through all the rain the bishops and archbishops remained in their exposed seats. The mass went on without interruption. When the stroke of 12:30 brought the voice of the Pope, discerning "the promise of better things" on this side of the Atlantic despite the outraging of "the eternal majesty of God" in certain other countries, the skies were clearing again. As the Pontiff's words filled the air, many of the pilgrims in the stadium knelt in the fresh mud.

In his sermon Archbishop Mooney spoke of the deadly effect of the "program of Godlessness which is being carried forward on so many fronts in the world today," and denounced "the glorification of more power."

Two hours later at a private luncheon tendered to Cardinal Legate Mundelein in the Hotel Roosevelt, even stronger terms were used in dealing with the current world situation by Archbishop John J. Glennon of St. Louis. Tonight such thoughts were expressed again in a broadcast by Cardinal Mundelein.

None of the prelates mentioned names of any dictator or any country, but those who heard them knew they meant Russia, Germany and Italy—Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini.

The only calling of names was done in a sectional group meeting this afternoon by Joseph Connelly, president of the International News Service, who discussed the press and the church.

"Many nations," said Archbishop Glennon in his luncheon address, "are blighted by a corruption of patriotism—a disease which is difficult of definition—a kind of hectic nationalism. It must not be confused with patriotism; rather it is patriotism fallen into heresy. Nationalism is a vice founded on pride—patriotism is a virtue founded on charity. Nationalism leads to a nation's downfall—patriotism is a nation's security.

"Our Holy Father, whose office makes him a citizen and the teacher of every nation, has several times recently exposed and condemned the fallacies of exaggerated nationalism.

"History shows that if these national aspirations are not directed by religion, the nation itself will soon degenerate, and its benighted nationals will fall in the depths of the deposit which inevitably follows national idolatry. 'Either religion of the rod.'

"Our democratic form of government fortunately gives little opportunity for these outbreaks of exaggerated nationalism such as we are witnessing in the Europe of today. Genuine democracy stands for ordered liberty, equal justice and peace, and as a consequence the decisions it takes on national problems are sure to be saner and more in accord with justice and right than those which flow from the fevered brain of some ambitious, if not demented, dictator. We are proud as a nation of our democracy, and we pray that these principles of democracy may endure amongst us, knowing that they have also the church's blessing.

"The founding fathers of the republic strove earnestly to preserve the rights of the individual citizen against the easily foreseen tendency of the state to encroach on them. They labored assiduously to prevent what is rightly condemned today—unkieldy overcentralization of government, and to preserve what is unduly criticized—namely, rugged individualism.

Soul Not the State's

"It is true that this rugged individualism must yield in part at least to the economic needs of the present time. It is true that the individual must make many sacrifices to promote the common well-being; but however extensive these sacrifices may be, it does not mean that, at the behest of a totalitarian State, we must give up our natural rights, or those of our children. It does not mean that we must turn from Christ to the worship of a glorified state. This would not be a concession but a betrayal. Our faith, our children, our souls—pertain not to Caesar-they belong to God.

"Reform may be needed and reconstruction should be promoted, but when these touch on the sanctities of the home, when they demand the segregation of the children from their parents or their faith, when it is demanded that we give our souls to the service of a pagan State, there is only one answer we Christian people can make: It is an emphatic "no."

Lauds U. S. Liberties

A few moments later Bishop John B. Morris of Little Rock, Ark., remarked American Catholics should be eternally grateful that no dictator could deprive them of the benefits of their religion.

"To the credit of our country," he went on, "be it said that the church has been allowed to make her way here as her Divine Founder wishes, and the Catholic Church has become an asset to the Nation for morality, conservative thinking and acting, which few can estimate, but which all right-thinking persons can appreciate."

The one reference of the day's oratory to Protestants was made at the open mass by Archbishop Mooney, near the conclusion of his sermon. He referred particularly to communicants of the Protestant Episcopal Church when he said:

"It is interesting to remark that Christian groups, separated in the great defection from the only church that holds Eucharistic congresses, lose their hold on the fundamental Christian truth of the incarnation and all that it involves in doctrinal and moral teaching in almost exact proportion as they move away from the Catholic Eucharistic faith and practice, and it is consoling to see that the one outstanding group that with uncertain step and many a setback follows the path that leads back to the home of Catholic truth is guided by the light of the sanctuary lamp which symbolizes our faith in the real presence of Christ in the Blessed Sacrament."

Social Problems Discussed

In a special meeting for nurses and social workers held in the Municipal Auditorium this afternoon Mgr. Robert F. Keegan, who was the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes' secretary for charities, touched, as did other speakers in other meetings, upon capital-labor relations and other economic matters.

"Man," he said, "is not a mere social or economic unit to be exploited or conscripted in the service of industry or government. He is 'a little less than the angels.' The recognition of this fact means that there is one code of ethics for employer and employe, for capitalist and laborer, for rich and poor. It demands the right of freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship, familial integrity, the right to own private property and to enjoy the advantages of Christian education.

"This first concept differentiates Catholic social work from all other forms of endeavor. In the eyes of Christ and in the eyes of the Catholic social worker, a single human being, whatever his wretchedness, is worth more than all the world. The parable of the good shepherd leaving the 99 to search out the 1 lost sheep illustrates the value God places upon a single soul."

In that connection, however, observers remembered some of the informal remarks addressed by Cardinal Mundelein to the crowd in the Municipal Auditorium at the civic reception given to him last night.

In his remarks, spoken at the end of a formal address, was the plain hint that he, for one prince of the church, would like to see the next red hat that comes to the United States worn by the Archbishop of New Orleans, the second oldest Catholic see in this country.

Refugees Flee Canton in Face of Drive

Chinese refugees were fleeing the beleagured city as Japanese troops pressed across flat terrain toward the Bocca Tigris forts at the mouth of Pearl River. Another Japanese column intensified efforts to reach Taengahing. Shaklung was another objective miles westward across the plains of southeastern Hupeh Province to strike the Canton-Hankow Railway at a point about 50 miles south of Hankow.

Other forces were thrusting toward Hankow along the Yangtze, about 75 miles by river from their goal, and from the northeast where they were threatening Macheng, 55 miles from Hankow.

It was estimated that 3,000 square miles of Kwangtung Province had been conquered in the week-old invasion of South China. The Japanese strength now is estimated at 60,000 men, and the most advanced expeditionary force has gone about 50 miles inland.

A powerful motorized column was reported pressing steadily toward Tsengshin, 50 miles east of Canton. An advance somewhat more than 50 miles westward from Tsengshin would sever the Canton-Hankow Railway.

One hundred thousand Chinese troops sought to bar the way against this formidably equipped Japanese force. They arranged defenses east of Canton in hilly terrain.

Against an enemy equipped with virtually every modern instrument of warfare, the Chinese fought mostly with machine guns and rifles. The Japanese were reported within a few miles of Tsengshin tonight.

A second Japanese force, having sliced through the lifeline railway between Canton and Hongkong—Kowloon line—was pushing southwestward over some 15 miles of Pearl River delta country toward the Bocca Tigris forts.

The third Japanese force was reported closing in on Sheklung, one of four islands in the East River crossed by the Canton-Mowloon Railway.

The Japanese coastal occupation now includes the Taiping Peninsula, the southwestern shore of which bounds Hongkong. British and Japanese-occupied soil were separated at the closest point by 5 miles of water.

Canton was still a scene of panic. Banks closed and department stores packed up their wares. Tens of thousands of women and children and other civilians struggled to escape. Able-bodied Chinese men were barred from leaving.

Roosevelt Asked To Mediate in Spain

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—A leftist organization calling itself "The Paris Section of the Spanish League for the Right of Man and of Citizens" cabled President Roosevelt today asking him to intervene in an effort to mediate peace in the Spanish civil war.

The telegram was signed by the organization's honorary president, Eduardo Artega y Gasset, brother of the well-known Spanish author, Jose Ortega y Gasset.

To Demobilize By November 1, Nazis Announce

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP).—Every German reservist called to the colors this summer and during the Czech-oslovak-German crisis will have returned to civil life by November 1, an official spokesman announced today.

It had been estimated that Germany had more than 1,000,000 men under arms at the end of September.

Nazi newspaper commentators saw the United States rearmament program more as a threat to Germany than as a protective measure against Nazi and Facist ambitions in South America.

The newspaper Lokalanzeiger Washington correspondent said Germany does not object so much to America arming as she does to the way America seeks to justify her naval inceases on the basis that Nazi and Facist forces plan attacks on the New World.

From 200,000 to 300,000 Czechs, German Social Democrats and Jews have fled here from the German-occupied areas of Sudentenland and Polish zones. Another influx of thousands was thought possible under the option clause of the Munich agreement providing that those in occupied zones could become permanent residents of Czechoslovakia.

Magyars to Renew Parley

Budapest, Oct. 18 (AP).—A foreign office spokesman said tonight that Hungary and Czechoslovakia would resume territorial negotiations through regular diplomatic channels.

If the discussions having to do with cession of parts of Slovakia and Ruthenia to Hungary are successful, a final conference will be called for signature of official papers.

If the diplomats fail to reach a compromise, the spokesman continued, the four powers which participated at Munich—Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain—will have the last word in settling the dispute at a new conference.

The Hungarian demands were understood to be the cession of some 5,000 square miles containing a predominantly Hungarian populace. Prague has indicated a willingness to cede 2,000 square miles of territory.

Both the Hungarian and Czech borders now are reinforced.

Garlic-Parsley an Aid in HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Medical reports say that Garlic-Parsley concentrate has a double action in reducing high blood pressure. First, it tends to relax tightened arteries. Second, it checks or inhibits decomposition of waste matter in the bowels, a contributory cause of high blood pressure. To get concentrated garlic and parsley in odorless, tasteless form, ask for ALLIMIN. These tablets, used repeatedly at regular intervals, aid in reducing blood pressure and relieving headache and dizziness caused by excessively high readings. To learn what raises your blood pressure and for medical treatment consult your doctor. Large box, 60c. Special economy size, $1.00.

Wilson Backed Jewish Refuge, Tumulty Says

Telegraphs Roosevelt
Italy Replies to Hull
Arabs Protest to U. S.

Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to the late Woodrow Wilson, yesterday sent a telegram to President Roosevelt declaring that reports of Great Britain's intention to curb Jewish immigration into Palestine and reverse Jewish national home policy "are particularly distressing to all who recall how keenly interested President Wilson was in the re-establishment of the homeless children of Israel on their ancestral soil in the Holy Land."

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, declared that he had received the Italian reply to his representations in behalf of American Jews in Italy. The text may be made public today if Italy agrees. Hull made no comment on it, but said one provision in the Italian note referred to the creation of a commission to give special consideration to each individual case when it is brought up.

Asked if there had been Arab appeals to the State Department, Hull said that views and counter-views from different groups of people had been expressed but the American attitude on Palestine was well known.

The Palestine Defense Society in Bagdad, Iraq, protested to the department against American "interference" in the situation. From Damascus it was reported that Nabih Asme, president of the Syrian Arab Committee for Defense of Palestine had protested to the American consulate, saying:

"Up to now America has followed a policy of defending human rights, and we hope she will not act otherwise with the Arabs in supporting action tending to deprive them of their country for the benefit of foreigners."

Wilson Ideas Reviewed

Tumulty said:

"For several months in 1917 there was an exchange of correspondence between President Wilson and the British war cabinet with regard to the language to be used in the Balfour declaration. The President continuously emphasized the need of making Jewish rights in the country as broad as possible in order to facilitate their reconstruction program. It was on October 17, 1917, that President Wilson cabled to the British government his approval of a revised text of the Balfour declaration that was published on November 2 to assure the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people.

"Almost a year later in a letter which he addressed to Dr. Stephen S. Wise, and in March, 1919, when he spoke to a delegation which waited upon him at the White House, President Wilson reaffirmed his conviction that an historic wrong to the Jewish people could be repaired by giving them the opportunity once again to recreate their culture in the land from which so many contributions had been made in the past to the law and order of our universe."

Liberty and End of Zionism Arab Rebels' 'Minimum' Terms

Grand Mufti Talks For Status Like Egypt's Asks Curb on Jews

Copyright, 1938, by the Associated Press.

Karnayel, Syria, Oct. 18.—The "brains" and guiding spirit of the Arab "holy rebels" in Palestine, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husshini, Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, is standing pat on six "minimum" demands which he declares must be fulfilled by Great Britain before he will order his followers to stop fighting.

Interviewed in his exile home here, the Grand Mufti, the most powerful figure in the modern Arab world, said peace in the Holy Land is impossible unless these demands are fulfilled:

Immediate cessation of all Jewish immigration to Palestine.

Granting of complete independence and a national government to the Arabs in Palestine.

Abandonment by England of the idea of a Jewish national home in Palestine, as embodied in the Balfour declaration.

Termination of the British mandate in Palestine.

Absolute prohibition of any further land to the Jews in Palestine.

Conclusion of a treaty between England and the Arabs of Palestine similar to the Anglo-Egyptian, Anglo-Iraqian and French Syrian treaties, by which England would set up an Arab state in Palestine with full sovereignty and with the Jews having only minority rights.

This was the first time the Grand Mufti had made known his peace terms in such concrete and authentic form.

It is felt here that neither the British nor the Jews in Palestine will accept the terms, but the Grand Mufti has no intention of departing from them.

The Arab leader consented to an interview despite his pledge to French authorities in Syria to refrain from political talks.

"Only justice," he said, "can settle the present dispute between the Jews and the Arabs. The Arabs are the lawful owners of Palestine, while the Jews are mere intruders.

"No pressure or aggression by the British or the Jews can re-establish peace in the Holy Land. Nor can the British compel us to give the Jews concessions or rights in the Arab homeland to which they are not entitled.

The Arabs, he said, are ready to conclude a treaty with England guaranteeing the legitimate rights and interests of England in Palestine, such as ports, naval bases, air stations and economic privileges.

HAJ AMIN EL HUSSEINI

The Arabs also are prepared, he continued, to give any guarantee required to assure the Jews and other sects of the right to free practice of their religion in the Holy Land.

"Those Jews who are already in the Holy Land and who will accept Palestine citizenship like any other minority races will have . . . the right to vote and to elect and be elected to all offices. The Jews will be given the right also to have their own deputies to the legislature or government council, their own ministers, directors and other officials in proportion to their number.

"I repeat that these are the only terms the Arabs will accept for a settlement of the conflict in Palestine."

to protect Jewish and Armenian quarters. These were understood to be the only sections of the Old City under complete British control.

Last night echoed to the bursting of terrorists' bombs, the ping of snipers' bullets and rifle volleys. The riflefire continued intermittently tonight, keeping the populace in near-hysteria.

The government hospital was preparing to receive victims of shootings yesterday and today in the Old City. There were no new casualties, however, among British soldiers.

Several American institutions are in zones just outside the walls of the Old City. Just inside the Damascus Gate to the Old City is an infants' refuge operated by the American Colony Association.

Arab rebels sent word that the children would not be harmed but there remained the problem of getting food to the babies.

United States Consul Gen. George Wadsworth ordered supplies of powdered milk lowered in a basket from a nearby tower. All of the Old City was facing a serious food shortage.

British soldiers and police searched everyone entering or leaving the Old City.

Nearly 2,000 casualties have resulted in the last 12 weeks of what the British call the Arab revolt.

[The United Press reported from London Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald made a detailed report to King George VI regarding the disorders resulting from the British plan to divide the Holy Land into sovereign Jewish and Arab states with a mandated British corridor to protect the holy places.—Editor's note.]

Officials Seek Stricter Limit on Chicken-Keeping

Chickens and pigeons were placed on the District black list yesterday.

A proposed regulation would require 100 per cent approval from neighbors before anyone could keep fowl in his back yard. At present only a majority of the neighbors need aproved.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward Thomas said his special committee would soon make recommendations to the District Commissioners.

Hhe said the chicken keeper would haveto receive the signatures of all property owners and occupants within a radius of 25 feet of the property housing the chickens. Furthermore, chickens or pigeons could only be housed within 100 fee of any house. At present the limit is 25 feet. Homing pigeons are excluded, Thomas said.

using these arms or clearly is not reluctant to threaten to use them.

"The rule of law in international affairs, the goal for which millions in the world had ardently hoped, now once again is receding."

Sounding his warning that Britain must achieve domestic unity, Eden said that the nation must recognize the arms accomplishments of the dictators.

"We cannot ignore the fact that the nations whose internal economy is differently organized from ours have outdistanced us in the arms race and will continue to do so as long as they continue to employ their present methods and we continue to employ ours," he said.

"That is inevitable, for they are organized with this supreme end in view—that they may efficiently produce and present arms. We are not.

"Unless we are prepared to make a like effort ourselves our authority will continue to decline in a world which is rearming to the teeth and organized for war."

[If rearmament can be done efficiently and speedily by "a government in which all parties are represented, then the case for such a government is surely unanswerable," he declared, the Associated Press said.

[Chamberlain's national government gets virtually its entire support from Conservative Party ranks.—Editor's note.]

Accused are former Police Chief Joseph Wakelin, former Chief of Detectives Herbert Akers, former Police Lieut. Cecil Brock, Mrs. Grace Goldstein; Mrs. Al C. Dyer; Morris Loftis, and John Stover, manager of the Hot Springs Municipal Airport.

British Monarchs To Visit Dionnes, Dr. Dafoe Hints

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP).—The Buffalo Evening News quoted Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe today as having said that King George and Queen Elizabeth would visit the Dionne quintuplets during their tour of Canada next summer.

The Governor General's secretary at Ottawa, Canada, reported, on the other hand, that no arrangements had been made for the royal couple to visit the five little girls.

The Buffalo Times quoted Dr. Dafoe as saying:

"The quints are probably the only ones in the empire who wouldn't go to see the King and Queen. If Their Majesties want to see the children, they'll have to come to the nursery."

Arlington County,
Bureau of The Post, Clarendon, Va.
Tel. OXford 0509.

Plans will be outlined for the annual county-wide Community Chest drive November 9 to 22 at a meeting at the courthouse at 8 tonight.

Col. Christopher B. Garnett, in charge of the drive will name chairmen who will be in charge of each section of the county.

A system to be known as the "designation plan," will be effective this year. It will permit subscribers to designate 50 per cent of donations to any particular chest agency or agencies.

Arlington residents employed in the county are given the privilege of designating that all their donation be credited solely to the county agencies.

A third plan provides for thousands of Arlington residents who are employed in Washington, who may designate 50 per cent of contributions to Arlington County use and the remaining 50 per cent to any chest agency or agencies.

Youth Laws Topic

"Legislation Affecting Children and Young People," will be the subject of an address to be delivered by Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas at the meeting of Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington Lee High School tomorrow night. The meeting will be held in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Also on the program will be an illustrated talk on "Safety and Juvenile Protection," by Washington I. Cleveland, District manager of the American Automobile Association.

Medical Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Arlington County Medical Association tomorrow night at 8 at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Dr. J. R. McGriff will read a paper on "Advances and Otolaryngology."

Invited to Exhibit

Frank C. Hanrahan, county manager, announced yesterday an invitation has been extended to county officials to attend the "Parade of Progress Exposition" in the District of Columbia from October 26 to November 1.

The "Circus of Science" and "World's Fair on Wheels" will occupy the park at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

McShea Elected

William A. E. McShea has been elected president of the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association. Other officers are: O. W. Menk, vice president; Mrs. Mallie Plymale, secretary, and J. R. Gibson, treasurer.

Members of executive committee are Robert E. Plymale, Dr. Victor Meyer and Mrs. May Hellings.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

One flash of their first show at the Shoreham on Monday evening, and an extension of their engagement was a certainty for Elizabeth Houston and Dan Harden. Fine voices, pretty dancing and a fast light comedy touch—these place Houston and Harden in the top brackets of musical revue teams.

Fizziest of their numbers are "Girl on the Police Gazette" and "Let's Take a Walk Around the Block," with Elizabeth done up in Florodora girl style, Dan sporting a handlebar moustache and brown derby. For pure melody you should hear them do "Donkey's Serenade" and "Giannina Mia." Maxim Lowe, Shoreham's amusement manager smiled comfortably, "Yes, I think we shall have Houston and Harden with us for quite a long while."

Good for a chain of continuous laughs are White and Manning, dancing rascals. They're adepts in the gentle art of horsing around, always do the unexpected.

Myrus continues to amaze. Monday eve he told one lad the exact grade he would make on his examinations, told a girl that her boy friend would be back in town next Tuesday, told another lass that her B. F. was off the hook.

Carlin Leaves Estate to Wife

C. C. Carlin, former Representative and publisher of the Alexandria, Va., Gazette, left a life interest in his real estate to his wife, Mrs. Lillian B. Carlin, and designated his two sons, Keith and C. C. Carlin, jr., trustees of his stock in the newspaper, it was disclosed in District Court yesterday when his will was filed.

Property at 2008 Sixteenth street northwest shall go to Keith Carlin upon Mrs. Carlin's death and the remainder of the property then shall be divided between the two sons.

Carlin's sons were named executors of the will.

Well Goes Dry; Fairfax Pupils Miss Classes

Classes of the Lee-Jackson High School at Cameron Valley were suspended yesterday for the balance of the week because the water suply failed.

The unexpected holiday for 356 students came when the school well went dry. The well has been giving trouble for the past year. Only last week students were compelled to get drinking water from neighbors while repairs were being made and the well was being cleaned. Workmen yesterday started drilling a new well in the rear of the school building and expect to complete it by the end of the week so that the school may reopen Monday.

Principal G. C. Cox said the pupils would lose only three class days as schools in the county would be closed Friday to allow teachers to attend the district teachers' meeting in Warrenton.

Future Farmers Federate

A federation of the chapters of Future Farmers of America has been organized by chapters at Lincoln, Lovettsville, Leesburg, Fairfax, Ashburn, Aldie, Round Hill and Herndon.

James White, of Herndon, has been elected president; Paul Warner, of Lincoln, vice president; Howard Smith, of Herndon, secretary; Rudolf Harding, of Ashburn, treasurer; T. A. Daniels, of Leesburg, reporter; Edwin Neff, of Fairfax, watch dog, and W. R. Crabill, member of the Herndon faculty, adviser.

Fourteen objectives adopted by the federation include the egg and grain show at Lincoln, a basketball tournament and track meet, a public speaking contest, participation in the annual State rally, and meetings throughout the year.

A. P. Grow, Falls Church district chairman of the Community Chest campaign, has called a meeting of the captains of the ten divisions of the district Friday night at the home of the residential chairman, Mrs. E. D. Vosbury. The ten captains are A. K. Waterval, Ed Jones, Miss Mary Ann Redington, Capt. Acors Thompson, Mrs. Albert Ware, Mrs. Thomas Probey, Mrs. Robert Lamont, Tage Beck, Wilmer Wood and Mrs. Kortright Church. Lawrence Proctor, assistant county chairman, will meet with the captains to talk over the quotas assigned to that section.

The Star Point Society of Acacia Chapter, Eastern Star, of Falls Church, will meet tonight, instead of Friday, with Mrs. Bessie Jewell. The change is to permit members to attend the grand visitation at Manassas on Friday and the card party in Falls Church at the home of Mrs. J. W. Brown. The party is given by the ways and means committee of the chapter to raise money to buy two new throne chairs for the Masonic Temple.

Heads Floris Fair

Richard C. Peck has been named president of the Floris Community Fair Association; other officers named by the directors are John Middleton, vice president, and W. R. Crabhill, secretary-treasurer. Superintendents of the various departments are Franklin Elmore, dairy cattle; John Middleton, horses; Graham James, jr., farm produce; Mrs. Guy Popovich, home makers; Frank E. Peck, publications and premiums; John Peck, entertainment and Holcomb Rogers, dance.

The Merrifield Improvement Association has elected Charles R. Moran president; Wirt H. Ferguson, vice president; Miss Corita Seoane, secretary, and Dana P. Miller, treasurer.

Committee chairmen named by the president were Mrs. Wilber J. Ellis, entertainment, with Mrs. W. H. Ferguson, vice chairman; Mrs. D. D. Carleton, membership; Charles Kaiser, purchasing, and W. H. Ferguson, auditing.

Beware The Cough
From a common cold
That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements found in many cough remedies, such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, and fluid extract of Licorice Root, but it also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect, and most important of all, Beechwood Creosote nicely blended with all of these so that it will reach the source of the trouble from the inside.

Thousands of people, who really know their drugs, use Creomulsion in their own families, realizing that this excellent preparation aids nature to soothe the inflamed mucous membranes, to heal the irritated tissues, and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion "tops" for coughs because in it you get a good dose of Creosote emulsified so that it is palatable, and may be taken frequently by both adults and children with remarkable results.

Creomulsion is generally found satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritation, especially those stubborn ones due to common colds that hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Don't worry through another sleepless night—use Creomulsion. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained.

Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product, and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Safety Banner Raised to Curb Traffic Killing

White for Deathless Day 'Keep It,' Hazen Urges Black One in Reserve

By Howard F. Wentworth.

The District's new symbol of safety—a white flag denoting deathless days in traffic—flew last night over downtown streets, part of The Washington Post's program to aid the fight against wanton killing.

As Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen raised the banner atop a tall pole in front of the District Building, he appealed to Washington motorists:

"Let's keep the white flag flying—it's a big enough job for all of us."

In the background at yesterday's dedication was the haunting presence of a second symbol—a black banner with skull and crossbones.

On days when a life is lost in Washington's traffic maelstrom, the white flag will be lowered and in its place will fly the black standard of death.

For 24 hours after an accident fatality, the skull and crossbones will remain aloft—a reminder that another life has been sacrificed to carelessness.

The "death pole" stands adjacent to The Post-Junior Board of Commerce safety billboard at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Hazen was joined in the flag-raising by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent.

"It should become a matter of personal pride on the part of every District resident," said Van Duzer, "to keep the white flag up."

Maj. Brown urged motorists to keep a careful check on the "death pole" and "let the flags act as a constant reminder that we are determined to hammer incessantly at this problem of driving death from the streets."

Meanwhile, it was learned yesterday that the Commissioners' estimates to the budget bureau will include an item of $1,000 for "traffic educational purposes."

Maj. Brown will open Monday a school to train policemen in fundamentals of traffic control and accident prevention. Forty men will attend opening sessions.

Employes of the Department of Commerce yesterday circulated a petition for restoration of the "staggered-hour" system of relieving traffic congestion.

At closing time, more than 2,500 workers had requested a return to the 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. schedule of working hours, changed recently by an order from Secretary Roper.

The sudden switch in hours, said Traffic Director Van Duzer, threw several thousand additional autos into the rush-hour traffic tangle.

Flags Signal District's Traffic Status

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen yesterday raised the District's new safety symbol on a flag pole in front of the District Building. Sponsored by The Washington Post, two banners will be used to announce the city's progress in traffic safety—a white one for deathless days and a black skull and cross-bones when fatalities are reported. As Hazen raises the white flag, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer (left) and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, hold the gruesome black banner

$4,000 in Furs Hi-Jacked in Md., Dealer Reports

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (AP).—A traveling fur dealer, William S. Weiss, of Philadelphia, reported to Fullerton police early today that two men held up him and his companion, Gordon Frankl, of Philadelphia, and hi-jacked $4,000 worth of fur coats from his car.

Weiss said the men, riding in a big black sedan, forced his automobile to the side of the Bel Air road near Gunpowder Falls. One kept him and Frankl covered while the other transferred the coats from Weiss' car. They sped away toward Baltimore, Weiss said.

Salisbury Plans Housing Project For 200 Families

Salisbury, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—Plans for a Federal housing development were being prepared today by the Salisburg Housing Authority.

Encouragement for the $1,000,000 project to house 100 white families and an equal number of colored families in another section of the Eastern Shore's largest city was given by Peter G. Pauw, of the Federal Housing Authority, after an inspection trip.

"There is a very definite need for this project," he told members of the local housing group.

To spur the plans, former Mayor Alfred T. Truitt was appointed executive secretary for the group with authority to push a survey of housing needs.

The first move will be a detailed survey of the housing situation in sections of the city whose residents will be affected by the project.

La Follette's Investigators Linked to Reds; Dies Witness Says They Talked of Murder

that Gernaey, on February 7, 1937, swore in an affidavit given the committee that he was a labor spy employed by the Corporations Auxiliary Co., of Cleveland. Officials of that company went through many grueling hours on the witness stand, but Gernaey was never called.

Gernaey told Chairman Martin Dies, of Texas, of the Un-American Activities Committee, that he was never harmed; that no attempts were made on his life, and that the subpena was canceled.

The testimony of the spectacled, nervous witness, often hilariously received in the hearing room, ranged widely as he described his experiences as a Communist.

"Communist Cookies"

One of the Communist outrages, Gernaey pictured as the tricking of a Pennsylvania biscuit company into sending a carload of cookies as samples to his employer, Avrim Mezerik, who distributed the "Communist cookies" promptly to the children of party workers.

Mezerik, Gernaey said, handled "nationally advertised products in Detroit," and Gernaey's duties were resultantly complex, with duty to his boss, whom he described as a leading Communist, often conflicting with duty to the party itself. He pictured his own dilemma when a Communisst meeting was scheduled on a Saturday afternoon—the very afternoon, Gernaey said, his voice trembling, when Mezerik wanted him to demonstrate tomato-juice to grocery-store customers.

In desperation, he said, he went to Mezerik and asked him which he should do.

Chairman Dies Yawns

Gernaey said: "Mr. Mezerik told me, 'Well, comrade, you make your own decision!' "

Chairman Dies, cocking one long leg over another, stifled a huge yawn as Gernaey looked toward him dramatically and muttered:

"Well, what did you do?"

Gernaey shouted: "I attended the meeting and did my demonstrating of tomato juice after!"

Breaking in quickly, as Gernaey looked about eagerly, as if seeking applause, Dies asked him:

"Were you expelled from the Young Communist League?"

Rehearsal Denied

At this question, Representative Harold G. Mosier (Democrat), of Ohio, a committee member, nudged a reporter, and whispered that now Gernaey was "really going to pop something." Then Gernaey, after being repeatedly asked by Mosier and Dies if he were certain of the truth of his statements, delivered his story about the La Follette investigators.

Immediately after the hearing, Mosier denied to reporters that Gernaey had been rehearsed in his statement.

Cranefield, described as a Madison, Wis., attorney, and Allen, slender investigator who often sits at the right-hand of Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), of Wisconsin, in Civil Liberties Committee hearings, were unavailable for comment last night as to their alleged link with Detroit Communists.

A former "G-man," Jacob Spolansky, also of Detroit, told Dies and Mosier that he knew Cranefield and that the latter was definitely anticommunistic.

Expects His Dismissal

Earlier Spolansky, now a sheriff's investigator, testified that Joseph Kowalski, whom he termned a communist international representative, had "conceived the intricacies and strategy of the sit-down strike" in Michigan.

Spolansky told the committee that Sheriff Wilcox, his superior, would probably dismiss him on his return for "speaking against labor," and added that Labor's Non-Partisan League in Detroit had demanded his dismissal when he first aired his views there.

He said Kowalski had entered this country illegally and had been deported. After that deportation Kowalski, said Spolansky, headed a penitentiary in Russia, and was with the Russian secret service.

Spolansky said that Richard T. Frankensteen, official of the United Auto Workers, (an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization,) had led a delegation requesting his dismissal by the sheriff in Detroit. Frankensteen, ousted by the U. A. W. president, Homer Martin, on charges of communism, was recently re-instated after he took his case to John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman.

Martin to Testify

Martin is scheduled to testify before the Dies group later this week regarding communism in Michigan.

Another witness yesterday was the picturesque, grey-maned Tom Davis, famous railroad labor attorney, who vigorously denied that communism was rampant in Minnesota. Fingering the ends of his flowing black Windsor tie, Davis scoffed at previous testimony and ended up by blandly inviting the committee to visit Minnesota and inspect the State's football stadia on Saturday afternoons at game-time.

The committee also received a telegram from Representative John T. Barnard, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, denying statements he was a speaker at a picnic for the benefit of the Midwest Daily Record, identified by witnesses as a Communist newspaper.

Connoisseurs to Pick 50 WPA Prints Here

A jury of connoisseurs will select today the 50 most representative prints produced by the graphic arts division of the Works Progress Administration Federal art project from the 200 now on display at the National Museum, Tenth and Constitution avenue.

The selected prints will compose a traveling exhibit for circulation among museums and community art centers throughout the Nation. The jury will include Forbes Watson, special assistant, section of fine arts, Treasury Department procurement division; Frederick Allen Whiting, editor American Magazine of Art; Nicholai Cikovsky and Prentis Taylor, artists.

charge that these verbal recitations were hearsay, I requested written statements.

"As a matter of record, the testimony is history to me. Periodically since last January I have been forwarding to Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, letters from WPA workers and truck owners alleging the very conditions now complained of. But Mr. Hopkins has never done anything about any of these complaints. He has maintained a mien of the three Japanese monkeys and has 'heard no evil, seen no evil and spoken no evil.' "

He added that the committee very probably would obtain "startling testimony" in Pennsylvania and said:

"It is apparent that you are not receiving co-operation from the WPA executives, but I am certain if you and your colleagues were to enter the State and listen to sworn testimony of this despicable clubbing you could act with greater celerity and the very presence of your committee in Pennsylvania would have a moral effect of no mean value."

Meanwhile, Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, last night accused M. L. Annenberg, publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, of attempted to "intimidate" Pennsylvania radio stations and "lock the air" against a Guffey speech.

Guffey's office made public a letter to Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Communications Commission quoting from a telegram he claimed counsel for Annenberg sent to radio stations warning them they would be held legally responsible for Guffey's utterances.

G. O. P. Orators Compete Tonight

A District contestant in the national oratorial competition conducted by the Young Republican National Federation will be selected in eliminations to be held tonight in the Devitt School, 2955 Upton street northwest.

The speaking will get under way at 8 p. m. The six entrants in the local eliminations are: Hector Sherertz, 18, 2525 Minnesota avenue southeast; Paul Clifford Lentz, 18, 1415 Good Hope Road southeast; James M. Klaasse, 19, 725 Somerset place northwest; Seward Haskins Austin, 22, 1802 Thirty-seventh street northwest; Miss Antoinette Bergeron, 19, 5302 Forty-first street northwest, and Mishell George, 23, 4107 Connecticut avenue northwest.

The winner will compete in the regional eliminations in Atlantic City October 25.

Lincoln Park Citizens Oppose Safety Agency

The Lincoln Park Citizens Association, last night opposed proposed appointment of a District traffic safety adviser. The unit reiterated a request that William McK. Clayton be named to the vacant Commissioner post, and asked the President to take immednate action. Twenty-two members were elected.

Special guests of honor last night were Joseph L. Gammell, John P. Kern, and David Babp, past presidents, and George R. Linkens, a founder of the organization.

WHERE DO WE STAND ON SHRINKAGE?

A statement from the University Shop and the Manhattan Shirt Co.

Before you buy your new Manhattan Shirts, you have a right to know whether or not they will shrink after washing. The makers of Manhattan Shirts, after years of laboratory and factory experimentation, have perfected their own process against shrinkage. Instead of burdening you with a technical description of this process, we prefer to put ourselves on record with the following uncompromising guarantee:

If any Manhattan Shirt ever shrinks below the indicated size, we will give you a new shirt. This applies to every Manhattan Shirt in our store.

Touching The Fringe

Testimony thus far taken in the New York spy trial leads to the impression that the attempt of Nazi agents to obtain American military secrets has been a bungling and petty piece of work. No one can be expected to conclude that national defense is in any sense endangered by a part-time spy who receives $40 for catalogues of Army publications and a few photographs of soldiers on the march.

One bold plan of the spies, it appears, was to forge White House stationery in order to secure plans for the aircraft carrier Enterprise. Using this stationery, a Nazi agent was to write to the construction chief of the Navy requesting the desired specifications. But some one acquainted with the plot finally had the brilliant realization that a reply to any such request would go to the White House and not to the spy ring.

The alleged plot to kidnap Col. Henry W. T. Elgin, commanding officer of Fort Totten, was similarly naive. The colonel was to have been lured to a New York hotel and rendered unconscious by gas from an instrument disguised as a fountain pen. By this means the spies hoped to steal from him secret plans for mobilization of coast defense forces.

But these crack-brain schemes, and the petty character of the information turned over to Nazi agents by the first defendant in the trial, do not necessarily mean that the current movement against spies is much ado about nothing. The investigators are fully aware of the fact that they are dealing with the incompetent fringe of the spy ring. The more astute culprits known to have been involved fled before the net closed about them. Possibly others are still unknown.

Certainly there is enough evidence of a well-organized spy racket to justify a thorough investigation and vigorous prosecution. Such precautions become all the more important when a confessed spy gives testimony suggesting a link between the Nazi espionage system and the German Embassy.

Karl Kautsky

Karl Kautsky, one of the outstanding disciples of Karl Marx and for decades an intellectual leader of German Social Democracy, is dead in Amsterdam at the age of 84. Like so many distinguished leaders of contemporary social and political movements, he was a fugitive from Hitlerism.

During his years of exile he doubtless lived through many bitter moments of disillusionment. Material destitution is the lot of most refugees. But it is not so hard to bear if the victim believes his past efforts have been constructive. And Kautsky must often have felt that the teachings to which he had given his life had been a barren effort.

Karl Marx certainly never envisaged the kind of economic and social order in continental Europe that has succeeded the regime of private capitalism whose downfall he so confidently predicted. And it was the personal tragedy of Kautsky that he lived to see the rise to power of a kind of proletarian rule for which no good Marxist could possibly have the least tolerance. In place of the capitalistic system, whose downfall came in many countries as Marx foretold, there rose a new form of labor enslavement made possible by the submissive attitude of the workers themselves. In Communistic Russia, as in Nazi Germany, the workers have come to be regarded as tools in the hands of a new exploiter—a minority party controlling the state. And the state is in many ways a more exacting taskmaster than any private employer.

It is strange that Marx, with all his perspicacity, did not envisage the possibility of such a development. He talked in terms of the irresistible evolutionary forces that would destroy the power of private capitalism, but he assumed that they would lead to emancipation of the workers. While Marx indicated that the evolutionary process could be hastened by direct action, his attitude was essentially that of the philosopher content to wait for his wishes to be realized. That attitude enabled the Socialists to overcome fears of the established groups and was a factor in helping the party to further many constructive social reforms.

Karl Kautsky lived to see the triumph of terrorism over the policy of compromise. He also witnessed the decline of internationalism and the substitution of a belief in national self-sufficiency which divides the workers of the world against one another and concentrates power in the hands of the most unscrupulous. Since Kautsky began his long career as a protagonist of Marxian ideals there has been no time when the Socialist movement had as little vitality on the continent of Europe as today, with Stalin dictating in the East and Hitler and Mussolini overshadowing the remainder of the continent.

Not Necessarily Gloomy

Walther Funk, the German economics minister, is back in Berlin after a tour of southeastern Europe in its way as important as the occupation of the Sudeten area by the army of the Reich.

The purpose of the trip was to consolidate Germany's already dominant commercial position in middle Europe, to open up new export outlets on a barter basis and to extend credits, as has just been done in the case of both Turkey and Poland, where such action will result in effecting a permanent interchange of the manufactures of Germany for the raw materials of her less developed neighbors.

The long-range character of the program is indicated by Dr. Funk's announcement that the economic ministers of Bulgaria, Turkey and Yugoslavia will in due course return his visit, to knit the new commercial ties more closely. These countries, in Dr. Funk's words, "form a kind of Balkan axis which reaches from the German border to the Black Sea. This fact made it possible to negotiate great economic reconstruction plans for all three countries, including extensive road construction and telephone cable installation."

There is nothing essentially new in this development. Even before the annexation of Austria, last March, there was a steady drive to increase German commercial strength in southeastern Europe. Anschluss greatly furthered this economic penetration. Prior to Czechoslovakia's dismemberment Germany accounted for between one-third and two-thirds of all the foreign trade of Hungary, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Turkey and Greece. Increasing German monopolization of international trade in this area is now anticipated.

In one way this development tends to be encouraging. The greater the German commercial domination in central Europe the less the likelihood of further political surprises in that area. A German economic empire, running from Hamburg to the Bosporus, would of itself create a much-needed feeling of stability. It would place German interests on the side of maintaining rather than upsetting the status quo. Presumably there is a point at which the advantages of stable peace will become more important to Germany than the continuous threat of war. Such a point may now have been attained.

In another way the extension of German commercial hegemony in southeastern Europe provokes discouragement. Such a feeling will be justified if Dr. Funk's program means extension of the principle of autarchy, of economic self-sufficiency, over an ever-widening area. Anticipation that this will be the case obviously prompted Walter Lippmann to write, in The Post yesterday: "We shall soon find, I think, that there is not much hope of further progress along the lines of Secretary Hull's trade agreement program."

It would be premature to say that Germany's current trade push in southeastern Europe is an indication of stabilized peace, though there are factors leading to that conclusion. But it is also premature to argue that the American program of reciprocal trade agreements is necessarily threatened by the strictly bilateral commercial treaties which Germany is now promulgating.

There is, of course, a fundamental difference between the German type of barter agreement and the Hull program of relaxing all trade barriers in behalf of general prosperity and peace. But the gap between the two types of treaties can be surmounted. Otherwise it would have been impossible for the British to abandon the Ottawa principle of a self-contained empire in behalf of the broader agreement which, it may be hoped, will soon be announced here.

Whether bilateral or multilateral, international trade is politically constructive. It develops an economy for the continuation of which peace is essential and it is conducive to that prosperity without which progressive social achievement is impossible. A greater volume of trade between this country and Russia, under the bilateral agreement to that end, does not mean that the United States is drawn toward communism or Russia toward capitalism. It does mean fewer unemployed and less economic tension in both countries.

There is no prima facie case for saying that autarchy in Germany will in the long run be strengthened by the growth of that country's trade with Turkey and the Balkans. There is, indeed, good reason for believing that Dr. Funk's activities may add to the volume of world trade and thereby diminish rather than augment existing international political tensions.

When the German economics minister talks of good roads and telephones in the Balkans he of course has German manufacturers in mind. But if those anticipated roads do not carry their quota of American cars, and if some of the foreshadowed telephones are not of American make, then this country is losing technical skills and commercial enterprise which have become proverbial.

We may voluntarily select, but there is no reason to believe we shall be driven to, that "greater economic isolation within our own national frontiers" which Mr. Lippmann gloomily anticipates.

The Problem Remains

Now that the Government's suit against the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society has gone to the grand jury comment on the legal aspects of the case are out of order. Many months of litigation seem in prospect, since the organized doctors have announced their determination to carry the case, if necessary, to the Supreme Court.

This test case will be fraught with the most profound social consequences. Something will certainly be gained by having the legal issue clarified in the courts, but whichever way the decision may go, something of great value will also be lost.

What the doctors have staked in this fight, it would seem, is nothing less than their professional status. To make this clear, it is well to ask what would be the effect of a grand jury indictment against leaders of the Medical Society followed by a conviction that could be sustained in the higher courts. Entirely aside from any consequences for the Group Health Association, which is now a merely incidental factor in the case, the moral effect of this decision would be to place not only medicine, but all other learned professions practiced for fees, in the category of a business or trade, or, at the very best, of a public utility.

The irony of such a decision would be in the fact that of all the professions medicine is the one that has clung most tenaciously to the professional spirit. That is to say, it is the one which has most assiduously exalted the ideals of research, expert training and public service over economic expediency. And to this, even more perhaps than to its scientific progress, is owing the prestige the medical fraternity now enjoys.

No doubt this spirit of professionalism, this jealousy of their special and well-earned status, has actuated the doctors in their uncompromising opposition to collectivized medicine. The necessity of preserving their professionalism is readily understood. It is only their intransigeant attitude toward co-operative health groups that gives justification for the present grand jury probe.

Recently the medical society brought forth a plan of its own to make the service of doctors more readily available to families of moderate and low incomes. The GHA probably exercised a stimulating influence in this. Yet the two plans are fundamentally different in several respects. Impartial observers see advantages in each.

The public interest calls for development of both types of organization so that the people to be served may decide for themselves which is most effective in extending medical service without impairing its quality. It is extremely unfortunate that an understanding was not reached before the Department of Justice began presentation of the case to a grand jury.

This investigation cannot be anything more than a negative approach to a complicated problem. Whether or not the grand jury decides to act against the doctors, the task of working out an understanding with co-operative agencies like the GHA will remain. The public will be fortunate if these proceedings do not result in greater antagonism than existed before the Department of Justice set out to prove that the practice of medicine is a trade.

Another thing of which we are growing weary is holding our breath over week-ends while Europe trembles on the brink of war.

We had hoped that maybe Hitler had quieted down for a spell, but already again he is standing on his hind legs yelling "Peace!"

Career Women

From the Chicago Daily News.

First, they polish off their noses, and arrange a vase of posies, or telephone to fix a dinner date. Then, lest business get too heavy, they all gather in a bevy to discuss the girl who always comes in late. Then they probably review the latest styles while they look for letters missing from the files; or wonder if the fashionable hat will look more like a saucepan or a mat.

After that they generally go to join the boss's rally. It's a rather nervous duty, for his stocks have dropped a mile; write some letters for dear Mary—she's the boss's secretary. She is shaky in her spelling, so they help her with a smile. Then with sandwiches to crunch on, they can have a merry luncheon, or reduce their husky figures with some lettuce and a bun; spend an hour titivating with those clients who are waiting; or run on little errands for the boss's only son.

Oh, philosophers may sneer at a woman's stern career. Yet the labor is a trifle and the privileges fun; but the most delightful duty that will make a beauty snooty is to run on little errands for the boss's only son!

Costly Peace

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the recent Munich agreement, I have noticed a tendency to give "credit" to the part the President of the United States played in bringing about peace.

In thus crediting President Roosevelt I cannot see where a compliment is paid him. He has always stood for the principles of democracy, and a peace that is so manifestly unfair in the the conditions imposed on a democratic nation by reason of its size and consequent weakness is a credit to no one except possibly the bullying nation which put it across. Certainly democratic principles, which President Roosevelt has openly favored on more than one occasion, are temporarily in eclipse. Surely the President, in his desire for peace which all right-minded people share, did not want or approve of the kind that has just been obtained.

Nor do I think that God should be thanked for such a peace, as I recently heard done from the pulpit. Every thinking person knows it cannot be permanent, and it brings discrimination, persecution, not to say atrocities, in its wake. The short period of peace that is secured at such a price is not the kind our President desires, and certainly not what is wanted by the "Prince of Peace." PORTIA.

The FCC Purge

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post is taking its place here as a vital force in the community and is to a constant reader not only interesting but truly educational. As an educator, I like to recommend it to scholars in high schools and colleges.

As evidence of what I believe to be real service to the people is your editorial of October 16 on "Dissension In The FCC."

While you tried hard to present an analysis of the conditions prevalent in the FCC, I beg leave to carry the thoughts just a bit further in the interests of fair play.

Chairman McNinch has traveled a long way since he stepped in to rid the FCC of its so-called dead timber. First, he destroys whatever little confidence the public may have had in the FCC by serving notice that he, McNinch, has been chosen to lead the commission out of its mire of inefficiency and incompetency.

Being a humanitarian, however, McNinch proceeds to find jobs in other alphabetical agencies or those he has selected for the slaughter. Perhaps the RFC can do better with them. H. H. F.

Constitutional Catharsis

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That democratic institutions have proved open to the absorption of improved functions discovered from time to time in the social cauldron, argues for an even firmer faith than our inherited patriotism.

Recalling how Mr. Justice Field's dissenting opinions based upon the doctrine of "inalienable rights" supported the age of captains of industry who rushed America forward from pioneer ways and days, and, how the incorporation of sociological and other scientific data into their opinions by Justices Holmes and Cardozo, paved the way for the extensive general welfare program demanded by a world-wide emergency, it can be noted how the national interest and rapid communication made the proposed changes in the Supreme Court result in simplification of procedural rules at least.

Now that the railroads loom large in national economy, despite their powerful centralizing force in money, power and politics 50 to 60 years ago, argues that the fourteenth amendment under judicial interpretations of which they were born and nurtured, is again to come up for modern interpretation.

It is this constant compelling of an examination of the fundamental principles of democratic institutions as they affect the lives of succeeding generations, that makes general education so vital to their preservation; acting as a catharsis for strange foreign systems.

Mexican Land Policies

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To be commended, as pointed out editorially in The Post of October 15, is the spirit of conciliation that is manifest on both sides in giving effect to the forthcoming agreement for solving the difficult problem of the expropriated United States citizens that had threatened our relations with Mexico.

But there remains an important corollary that should not be lost sight of, viz., the attitude of each country in the event of expropriations of a similar nature that may be deemed necessary in furtherance of the Mexican agragrian policies. I raise this point because of press reports in the recent past stating that President Cardenas has no intention of curtailing this program whereby perfectly valid titules to land are being voided through an illegal exercise of the power of the state.

It has been reported that the Mexican government will continue to expropriate whomsoever, be they nationals or foreigners, for the purpose of making the donation of lands for community uses. This system, known as the ejido method of land tenure, whereby large estates are carved up and parceled out to the Indians, involves gigantic financing on the part of the public treasury. Undoubtedly it lies at the root of Mexico's present economic plight.

The former owners of these properties have, if they so elected, received bonds as a means of indemnification; but the American landholders foresaw that such bonds would soon be worthless and refused this method of payment. Feeling that they had been grossly defrauded, claims on the Mexican government were made through the Department of State, which procedure has often, as in the instant case, led to an acrimonious exchange of notes.

Evidently Mr. Hull is most anxious to preserve the Administration's good neighbor policy in dealing with our southern friends from the Rio Grande to Tierra del Fuego. Therefore, upon his return from Mexico City, it is hoped Dr. Castillo-Najera will give his fullest cooperation to the Secretary of State. The avoidance of pressure ought to strengthen materially the ties uniting the American republics when their diplomatic representatives assemble in Lima next December.

Defense Of WPA

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial called "WPA Spending," which appeared in Monday's Post, is so vicious and cruel that it is almost impossible to write a calm reply to it. Nevertheless, in justice to your readers, we feel that the callous policy expressed in your editorial should be interpreted in human terms.

A study by the WPA in Atlanta, Baltimore, New Bedford, St. Louis and San Francisco, of what happens to workers after they have been released from a WPA project reveals these pertinent facts. Apply them to the local situation and see if the phrase "reckless spending" doesn't turn to ashes in your mouth.

At the end of 30 days one-fifth of the workers dismissed are totally without funds. They can apply for direct relief ($25 a month, perhaps) but not if they're able-bodied. The relief agency refers them to WPA; the WPA has nothing and sends them back to the relief agency. How many of your readers have ever been caught in so vicious a circle? Do the words "totally without funds" mean hunger, despair, madness to them?

One-fifth of the dismissed WPA workers are forced to live on friends. One-fifth do get relief (they starve quietly—which is the translation of that term.) Two-fifths of the remaining workers beg, steal, work at odd jobs, and with their leisure time they read pontifical articles in the newspapers about the extravagance of WPA.

Now—let us see whether your strongest point holds good: "serious threat to the hopeful recovery movement under way."

A WPA worker averages $55 a month. Suppose you dismiss 1,000 $55 a month workers. The purchasing power of Washington is cut, immediately, to the tune of $30,000 to $40,000 a month. What happens to those merchants who are literally supported by WPA purchases? The city's grocer will lose $12,000 to $15,000 a month; the landlords lose $6,000; the clothing stores, $3,000; fuel, gas, electricity lose $6,000, and so on. This takes care of only the money the WPA worker himself spends; it does not take in consideration the money spent for the material the WPA workers use.

Does this sound like a threat to recovery? It certainly does, but only where the WPA projects are shut down! Can the editors of The Post tell us what to do with the workers thrown off their jobs?

We'll give you the answer: It is this: Refuse to starve! It will be for us to decide whether this shall happen. Us—13,000 of us in the District. PHILIP BONOSKY,
Vice President, District Workers' Alliance.

TANSEL BUTLER,

Illogical Boundaries

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the handling of the Czech-German crisis by the great powers, there have been many and serious blunders, to put it charitably. But perhaps none has been worse than those involved in the principles adopted for the determination of the new boundaries. Not only have the population data been based on a census which is nearly 30 years old and which was well known to have been incorrect even for that time, but, according to reports, where a district was found to be 51 per cent German and 49 per cent Czech, the entire district was given to Germany, and the Czech population of the district was given the choice of moving out or submitting to Nazi domination. It would seem both more logical and fairer to make the division within such a district; that is, to give Germany 51 per cent of it and Czechoslovakia the rest of it. Unfortunately, fairness and logic seem to have no place in the settlement of such problems. EDW. WOLESENSKY.

Jeff Davis In Richmond

I SAW the portrayal by Raymond Massey of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and will agree that the actor did all that mortal flesh, fashioned to the likeness of Lincoln, could do with a part so morosely difficult.

There was none in the audience whose admiration for the whole thing outdid my own; and that my emotions were, in two scenes, at least, without a semblance of restraint was the cause for a secret joy, a vindication of sorts, a reversal of an injustice trumped upon me two years ago.

I was then a reporter in Richmond and had written the advance ballyhoo for the play "Jefferson Davis," a kidney punch dramatic effort by the Federal Theater Project. Months had been spent on the production; the stage trappings glittered like an 1861 South Carolina regiment and the motif of good will (a Federal project would demonstrate that the scars of Antietam and Bull Run were healed and had kicked off the last scabs) was secure.

The premiere was to be in Richmond, appropriately. The United Daughters of the Confederacy were atwitter. The public schools hurriedly armed Richmond children with enough knowledge of their granddaddys' President to give them a proper understanding of the play. The cast arrived and was met at the railroad station by a small host in what seemed a flower garden of Confederate flags. Bands played "Dixie."

Well, the show just ran a couple of nights. Not many saw it after the first night. They blamed me, the sponsors did, and one Daughter requested the editor to boot me from the shop. She said I broke up the show and some other things. And having gone to the show with the most intentional reverence in my soul, I reread the review for one glimpse, however dim, of what I had actually said.

This was, in effect, that no mortal man could portray Robert Edward Lee to a Southern audience. There were no powers in my typewriter to keep people from a show. They simply didn't want to see Robert Edward Lee portrayed by anyone. The review sought to explain the phobia. It said, not irreverently, that no theatrical producer would attempt to place the Spirit of God on the serious stage. It might be attempted by some technical indirection, such as having a shaft of light descend from above, or through the medium of a dove moving across a troubled issue.

The latter-day Confederates said the show was pretty good, but they didn't like the Gen. Lee. In the first place, the general's beard was 7 inches long, when actually it was only 5; the general's trousers always fitted him immaculately around the seat, "and did you see the bag in the trousers that person wore on that stage?"

The sale was awful the next night. They took the general off the stage, let him speak his part to Davis from the wings. But the goose was cooked. The sponsors had agreed that Gen. Lee's appearance was a technical fault, but this was corrected and the show should go on. For there is nothing amiss in portraying Jefferson Davis. One might even portray Stonewall Jackson, for they were objects of the flesh, subject to carnal faults and trials. Their mortal errands and fulfillments, long gone with the wind, might even, in proper environment, be returned to this sphere of flesh for a footlighted night of glory and hallelujah.

But Gen. Lee is different down there. He is neither flesh nor sword. He is of the spirit. He is of the wine that still is lifted in crystal cups behind hundreds of shuttered windows. He is not of the storm that was hurled by Longstreet from the right flank at Second Manassas. He is not the sharp blade that Richmond schoolboys are supposed to whet their patriotism upon. He is not their God of Battles . . . He is their ideal. And the fact that he once walked upon this earth is a little damaging in the premises; but glory must ofttimes come to ground to prove its very power.

So I know that I didn't break up the show. The show itself tried to deal with an ethereal quantity and bogged its chances in a sensitive people's emotions. It became perfectly clear when I saw "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." I knew then that I was not of the sort to laugh at historical dignity; and it was clear that there can be historical dignity when the character under portrayal was of flesh and blood in this life.

For there was Lincoln, born in a cabin, a speaker of hard or cajoling drolleries, a politician at times and a searcher after some vague light that tortured and finally drove him to prayer. And you know that, through such a mold of flesh, blood must have run, and warmly; and you accepted him, as I did, behind the footlights.

Of some such stuff was Lee, no doubt. But we've tried to state his case. Stephen Vincent Benet has stated it much better

"The beaten cause turns into the magic cause,
The victor has his victory for his pains. . . ."

And also his right, we submit, to portrayal behind the footlights that are too blinding and impudent for something lost forever in the silken swish of sentiment that amounts to magic. SCOTT HART.

Fair Enough

The Song Racket

I AM MILDLY startled to read that suits have been filed against Walt Disney on allegations that he plagiarized the work of two original composers in songs used in his production of "Snow White." This was to me the first intimation that plagiarism, brain-picking or even outright, undisguised theft was held to be improper, much less illegal, in an art whose ethics and morals always seemed to have been frankly stolen from the pickpocket and chicken thief.

Larceny long ago came to be regarded as respectable practice, for there have been recitalists in vaudeville and in the night clubs in our time who made a specialty of playing current popular songs and then playing them over again with slightly different tempo and accent to demonstrate that they had been stolen from more or less familiar pieces.

IN THE LAST dozen years or so at least five popular American songs, including one great national success, have been swiped from an old English hunting and drinking song called "Cram-Bam-Boolee," which the British fliers sometimes roared far into the night.

And it was a surprise to me one evening a few years ago, on tracing these American pieces unmistakably to the English hunting and drinking song, to be told by a friend in the composing business that the English song itself probably had been stolen from a German song, apparently even older, which he then showed me in a reference book and played over on the piano to prove the sameness.

THIS WAS by no means a rare case. He continued for more than an hour, checking songs of current or recent American popularity whose composers had had the gall to copyright them as original work, including one rank theft from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Tit-Willow," and even found songs stolen from songs which themselves plainly had been stolen.

It appears to be a very loose woman, this composing trade, and of such habits that a man producing a musical show or movie might be permitted a little surprise and hurt on being sued for infringement, even if it were true that he did infringe and knew it all the time.

I suggest, however, henceforth no original author need lose any sleep over the subject of his rights to his work, because, as music is played nowadays, not even the author himself would be likely to detect any resemblance to his property.

MR. BENNY GOODMAN's version of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" is one that will serve the purpose of illustration—a performance so tricked out in his own rare cleverness and fancy work that it seems a 90 per cent waste of his money to pay Mr. Irving Berlin his royalties on the grand old job that made the feet shuffle and the shoulders hunch in its tumbling rhythm when you and I were young.

This thing called swing as applied to a well-loved song is like a bath of some distracting French ketchup from molten tar and ipecac sloshed over a Kansas City T-bone, and it is my wan but earnest hope that some daring maestro will one day organize a band of musicians who can read music and play what is written to revive for the members of my generation in recognizable form the music of our teens and twenties.

LOVE SONGS—may I say?—are excepted from this yearning, because mine is a generation that sang not of its love when young but, unknowingly, perhaps, sang more of amour which is, in the American sense of the word, a very different and distinctly less dignified sentiment than that which our elders gave voice to in "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

THE LOVE SONGS of our time, appropriately, were mooed, not sung, for they were vealy songs of calf-love and are remembered without pride.

"I'll Be Waiting With a Taxi, Honey" and "Pick a Pinky Petal for Your Papa's Pride" were tawdry expressions of the sweet agony of youth, and there was, to my taste, something unmanly and deserving of a swift kick in the seat about anyone who mooned "All Alone by the Telephone" and blabbed his pining over town.

I just doubt that that was love. I know not whether the Greeks had a word for it, but the American Indian, with his blunt economy of speech, would have expressed it indelicately in the phrase, "Ugh! Ketch'um squaw."

Tugmen Striking, Queen Mary Sails To Pier Unpushed

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—With the help of a rowboat and, her skipper believes, St. Christopher, the huge line Queen Mary was berthed successfully today when unable to obtain the assistance of tugboats, due to a strike.

Ordinarily it takes 12 of the powerful little craft, worrying the 83,000-ton liner like ants around a big caterpillar, to bring the Queen Mary to her berth. But with an estimated 2,000 tugboat sailors on strike, these craft were not available.

Commodore Robert B. Irving sailed the Queen Mary up the Hudson and lodged her gently against the Cunard-White Star Line pier under her own power.

An hour later Commodore Irving said: "She came in all right, but I haven't stopped shaking yet."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

COMMERCE Department employes are circulating a petition asking a reconsideration of the change in hours from 8:30 to 4 to the Government's customary hours of 9 to 4:30. They would want, according to the petition, to continue getting to work at 8 a. m., and this is difficult to understand with winter coming on. But of course under the old 8 a. m. arrival, traffic conditions were helped.

At the last report, about 600 signatures had been affixed, these principally in Census and the Patent Office. There are approximately 5,000 employes to contact. Officials, asked about it yesterday, said, they have no idea of what the real sentiment is in the big department.

Someone in authority at the conference of the Civil Service Assembly says that of all places Washington is the most difficult in which to make delegates settle down to convention work. Particularly in the case of the assembly; because its members mostly are connected with Federal work and they slip off without the slightest by-your-leave to see how the work is progressing here in Washington.

And they will all slip off, by invitation, to go to the residence of Civil Service Commissioner Samuel H. Ordway, at 5 this afternoon.

Also, the Federal Diary chews, and finds indigestible, its words of Monday morning. Then it was said that such experts as composed the Assembly would be able to speak, in words of one syllable, on the technicalities of government. The subjects, made hideously involved in this technically-talking town, would be brought down to clear earth, it was ventured.

But nothing of the sort. Many, all too many, of the speeches are like Albert Einstein's flights into relativity and these seem to the non-technical hearer as related to nothing understandable. Exhibit A is that confounded interim report.

FROM THE mail box: "Bureau of Public Roads Lodge 344, A. F. G. E., deeply regrets the departure of one of its oldest and most active members. T. Dwight Kelley, one of the charter members and one-time president of the lodge, has left for Denver, Colo., to take up new duties in the district office of the bureau. Although all members dislike to see him go, we are all glad that he has received the reward he deserved in obaining a better position in his home town."

More leave-takings and farewells for good, are sent in by the Government Printing Office. These retirements are George C. Havenner, 2912 Albermarle street northwest, liaison officer, 49 years; Minnie B. Hegeman, 4120 Fourteenth street northwest, cataloger, 36 years; Richard H. Jennings, 1718 Fifth street northwest, unskilled laborer, 31 years; Charles S. Moore, 4511 Garrison street northwest, proofreader, 16 years; John E. COMES NOW a request from the Colville Indian Reservation in the State of Washington for information concerning a certain superintendent who has been presiding in the Chippewa Reservation. The correspondent notes that the superintendent was beaten up not so long ago by a group of Indian squaws, and also notes that the superintendent now has been assigned out Colville way. Yes, we have no information on any of these goings-on.

People and affairs: Aiding prominently in the plans for I. D. R. A.'s masquerade ball Friday night are Fred Fetter, Guy Gaston, Louis Croft, S. M. Barrett, James West, Neal Butterfield, Tex Travis, Helen Cranston, W. C. Frost, Dorothy Richardson, Anna Munkavich, Robert Price, Kenfield Bailey, Charles Graham, Grace Hazard and L. P. Kirkland. The affair, expected to be a humdoola, will be held in the cafeteria space . . . The Agriculture Chorus turned 300 people away from its recent performances of "A Nightmare After the Opera," Irene Bartlett lets us know. So the program will be repeated tomorrow and Saturday evenings at 8 in the Agriculture Auditorium.

Thomas Loses Plea For Speech Permit

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP).—The New Jersey Supreme Court denied today the petition of Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, who asked that Commissioner Daniel Casey, Jersey City director of public safety, be compelled to issue him a permit for an open-air meeting.

An opinion by Justice Bodine said Thomas "may speak freely in any proper place. He has spoken in schools and churches in Jersey City.

"He has no more right to speak in public places in that city, such as highways and parks, without a permit than he has to invade a citizen's home without invitation."

Washingtonians to Meet

French War Debt Plan Seen Near

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—Premier Daladier and his ministers are reported to have investigated the possibility of finding some solution to the French war debt to the United States.

The financial newspaper Agence Economique et Financiere predicted today the British and French war debts would be settled after the American elections next month.

The government gave no official confirmation or denial to the reports.

Baptist Revival Slated

The Rev. P. H. Shelf will conduct a two-week revival at the Ballston Baptist Church, Ninth and north Stuart streets, Arlington, starting next Monday. Services will be held nightly at 8 p. m., except Saturday, with an extra service at 11 a. m. Sunday

Toward A New Foreign Policy

THE GALLUP POLL, published a few days ago on American opinion regarding the Munich pact, was extremely revealing. In answer to the question whether it was well for England and France to give in to Germany, 59 per cent thought yes, 41 per cent thought no.

On the moral issues involved, only 23 per cent thought the annexation of the Sudetenland justified, 77 per cent thought it was not.

Similarly, only 22 per cent were in favor of returning any colonies to Germany.

And, most importantly, 60 per cent thought that the possibilities of war had increased, whereas only 40 per cent thought they had diminished.

The results of the poll, therefore, add up to this: That the American public believe that England and France capitulated to terror, and that terror will, as a result, be increased to the point where war is more, rather than less, inevitable. That the two western nations did capitulate was, nevertheless, justified, which can only mean that the American public believes that these countries were inadequately prepared.

NO PUBLIC in the world is so well informed about world affairs as the American public. No newspapers carry so much or so independently reported information, and it is quite remarkable how swiftly the American people are beginning to grasp the significance, for us, of what has happened.

The isolationist opinion is strong in this country, but the average man has thought of America isolating Europe rather than Europe isolating us. Suddenly we are beginning to realize what the weakening of the British empire means to us.

We have been at peace with Great Britain for more than 100 years.

We have a common frontier with one of the Great British commonwealths under conditions so compatible that it is unfortified.

We are on the friendliest possible terms with all those other members of the British commonwealth which have been heavily colonized by Englishmen. Our institutions have been profoundly similar. We have a common language and, to a great extent, a similar mentality. And so we have been living comfortably in a world policed by the British empire on terms under which we could trade and prosper, glad to be free of the responsibilities borne by Great Britain.

WE DID NOT have to appoint Dies committees to ferret out British spies. We were not afraid that the British government would steal our naval plans. We were not afraid, because we often so closely collaborated with the British navy that, in all probability, they were freely informed by us of many of our plans for the sake of common effort.

We cannot blink the fact that it is no longer written in the stars that this condition of affairs will continue indefinitely or even, perhaps, for long.

And this country would be in a totally different position, in a world dominated not by Great Britain but by Germany, Italy and Japan, or perhaps by a combine of these, together with France and Great Britain.

In either case, if we were to preserve our independence we should have to be more prodigiously armed than we ever have been in history. In either case, we should have to envisage the possibility of Canada, Australia, New Zealand drifting into our orbit more and more closely, increasing our international responsibilities.

There would, of course, be an alternative, that we ourselves should join the combine. But that would mean the end of the institutions of this republic.

Now, the latter is not likely to happen unless it happens as a coup d'etat, unless a government with very great posers and great control over public opinion commit the United States to a course from which retreat is impossible—as the Chamberlain government has committed Great Britain.

The spontaneous reaction of American public opinion is a quite remarkable affirmation of feeling that if France and Great Britain are on the way to being "finished" this country is not; that we are still in the same familiar boat, although the high seas are very rough; that we can not exist on tolerable terms in a world in which the balance of power is held by nations who have no respect for the sanctity of treaties, for the rights of other nations and other ideologies, and in which "dynamism" is a substitute for law.

AND IF THE EMPIRE which has held the balance of power on the side of what is loosely called "democracy" is likely to retreat from her sovereign position, this Nation may be driven to assume a large share of her function, not out of idealism, but out of sheer self-preservation.

There will be those, of course, who will counsel us to retreat behind our borders, assume a wholly defensive position and take on the mentality of a small power. Whether the counsellors are "right," or "wrong," I hardly think that their advice will prevail.

A nation, like an individual, has a personality. This country is, in the first place, world conscious and will continue to be as long as we have a free press.

This is not a degenerate country. As a people we are not only and tired, but nervous, highly strung, vital and aggressive.

Despite our internal struggles and all the repercussions upon us of a revolutionary world, we care passionately for freedom and democracy—although we have difficulty in defining what we may mean by the terms. We do not by any means agree upon what we like, but we are almost unanimous about what we do NOT like.

WE HAVE NOT the mentality of a small power, for the simple reason that we are not a small power, but an enormously powerful nation. We have never minded our own business, but have been free with advice and, in a showdown, an aid to our friends in every period of our history. If we have chosen to give advice without assuming responsibility, it has been largely because of a comfortable thought that the French and British empires would assume the responsibility for us.

And my guess is that if they will not, or cannot, assume it, we will assume it for and by ourselves.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis

Mr. Green:
Come back home, the room is furnished,
We have thrown the key away!
Come back home, you C. I. O. boys,
You have but to name the day.

Mr. Lewis:
Hark! The fellow's choice of language
Should envelope you in gloom;
What has William got to offer?
Nothing but a FURNISHED ROOM!

• • • •

Mr. Green:
Disregard him, boys; it pains him
Just to think of harmony;
I repeat: The room is ready,
And I've thrown away the key.

Mr. Lewis:
Tossed away the key! I ask you what is in that statement flat?
It just means you must have keys made—
And at your expense at that!

Mr. Green:
What a very stubborn leader!
How his nerves appear to crack
At the very thought you workers
Who have left us MIGHT come back!

• • • •

Mr. Lewis:
There can be no peace together
As one great big family;
You are much too fond of YOU, Bill . . .
And I'm much too fond of ME!

Mr. Green:
You are arrogant and pompous—
Power is your only goal;
To achieve what you are after
You'd keep labor in a hole.

Mr. Lewis:
Izzat so! Well, Bill, I tell you
What I now propose to do:
I'll get out as C. I. O. head
If you'll quit your body, too.

(A rustle of skirts is heard is heard without, the door is suddenly pushed open, and, Miss Perkins appears. She looks strangely militant, and for once doesn't smile at John.)

Miss Perkins:
What's the row? Why all the yelling?
Why, it's Johnny and it's Bill!
Dear! I almost had forgotten
That you two were at it still.
You had better get together;
I'm a patient girl, you know.
But at last I'm getting angry
And I'm tired of the show.

Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis:
(Astounded and somewhat cowed by this decisive attitude by Madame Secretary.)

What! Miss Perkins firm, decisive!
Now I think I hear the gong . . .
Come, we'd better talk things over,
For there must be something wrong!

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

Masefield Mystery

Here's John Masefield again, with as swift-moving a yarn as England's poet laureate and champion story teller ever spun "Dead Ned" (Macmillan, $2.50).

When Masefield writes straight sea stories, men's books with no female romance about them, he rates comparison with the Stevenson who wrote "Treasure Island." And happily there isn't a woman who matters in "Dead Ned." It has one single fault; it ends "I who was Dead Ned was bound for the Coast of Dead Ned, to what Fortune who could tell? I shall tell you in a second volume." Here it is mid-October, and who knows how many weeks Mr. Masefield and the Macmillan Co. will keep us waiting, gasping for our sequel?

This is the autobiography of a corpse, written in such sound eighteenth century prose as Defoe used to tell of Robinson Crusoe. It has the tang of the period, and what we miscall the Gothic horror of the age. Mr. Masefield assures us that the tale is based upon true stories. That, after all, is of small importance; what matters is the sense of truth, the swaggering authenticity of the telling.

"Autobiograhy of a corpse" is a part of Mr. Masefield's own subtitle. (So, I belatedly discover, is the promise of a sequel.) It is hardly a fair description. The book purports to be the tale of a young man accused of murder and hanged for it, and brought back to life by a great English surgeon. He could not, of course, resume his normal habits, so he sailed on a slaver for the hot lands known as the Coast of Dead Ned. You end the book, mightily curious what happened on that stinking ship, under that pockmarked cruel captain, in the hot lands where the so-called pirate, Jean Quichet, had disappeared. Mr. Masefield is pridogal with his clews; it is an art to be able to give so much away and leave so much suspense. (I hope Volume Two will be rushed out for the Chirstmas trade at latest.)

Meanwhile, you meet the crochety old admiral, who had won his prestige as the man who had downed Quichet; you had learned that Quichet was no pirate at all, merely a decent Frenchman engaged in organizing the blacks to stop the slave trade, and that the admiral, who reported him dead, had seen him rowed up river in a sumptuous barge. You have met the sinister Henery, who, with his equally sinister mate plotted to ruin our hero, and did; you have seen the inside of Newgate Prison and a hanging on Tyburn Hill. You race through the pages as you read, panting to know the outcome. There isn't a mystery on the market which contrives more cleverly to maintain such shuddering expectation.

Zora Hurston has been to Jamaica and to Haiti—she who in "Their Eyes Were Watching God," in "Mules and Men" and in Jonah's "Gourd Vine" took the folklore of her own dark-skinned people and wove it beautifully into the subtle rhythms of that people's soft speech and into engaging stories. "Tell My Horse" (Lippincott, $3) is her report on those dark islands. The book is something of a hodgepodge; some reporting with a touch of genius, some fantasy, occasionally bits of report on folklore—Zora Hurston is one of Franz Boas' most distinguished students in her chosen field.

If you want to know about voodooism in Haiti, Zora Hurston tells you of it from the inside. She is no apologist; neither is she a sensationalist. Only occasionally is she arch, as in her report on the zombi whom she photographed—("We have the quick and the dead, but in Haiti there is the quick, the dead, and then there are zombis . . . people who have been called back from the dead.") She has seen strange sights through her non-Nordic eyes, and felt strange emotions. She could come closer to them than white reporters. And she has the wisdom to speculate about drugs, and to realize that here is something brought over with Africa, mixed with the teachings of an Asiatic church and molded by primitive centuries in this hemisphere. The Haitian "elite" will not like her book.

Here, too, are pages of rare beauty. The Haitian people, she says, have "a tremendous talent for getting themselves loved. They are drenched in kindliness and beaming out with charm." They are like the "pintards of God" in one of their own "Green Pastures" legends. Pintards are guinea fowl.

God planted a rice field, they say, and it was big. But the pintards came in huge flocks and threatened to eat all God's rice. So God sent the Angel Michael with a gun, but when Michael heard the pintards singing in a mimbon tree he could not pull his trigger. He began to dance, keeping time to the clapping of the pintards' wings. So Michael went back to God, reporting that the birds were too happy and too beautiful to shoot.

Gabriel as as lax as Michael. Peter was no better. So God took the gun and went down to earth himself. But when the pintards saw God coming they sang a new song and danced a double rhythmed dance. God aimed the gun, but God, too, listened to that song and God himself could not shoot. . . . So He thought, "So far in this world that I have made nobody is happy and nothing goes right. I'll send those pintards down there to make music and laughter so the World can forget its troubles." He made a shaft of lightning and the pintards slid down it and landed in Guinea . . . "So that is why music and dancing come from Guinea—God Himself sent it there first."

May Gain 50 Seats In House

UNLESS ALL the political signs are wrong, the Republican Party will gain ground in the 1938 election. There are two yardsticks by which recovery of the Republican Party will be measurable. The first is by the extent of its gains in the House and Senate. The second is by the extent of its victories in the election of local and State officers.

The top-ranking politicians of both major parties expect the Republicans to increase their membership in the House and Senate. In the survey of experts on the fall election recently conducted by Newsweek the most optimistic Democratic politician conceded a loss of 25 seats in the House, while the most optimistic Republican politician claimed a gain of more than 83 in the House. The average of the forecasts—among both politicians and well-known political correspondents—was a gain of 50 seats.

A gain of 83 seats would increase the Republican membership of the House to 172. This would leave the Republicans far short of a majority, but strong enough, in combination with conservative Democrats, to check certain tendencies of the New Deal. A gain of only 25 seats would be regarded generally as insignificant. Somewhere between 25 and 83 seats is a point where the Republican gains would cease to be regarded as a normal mid-term swing and would begin to be construed as a slow-down signal to Mr. Roosevelt. This point probably is somewhere between 35 or 40 seats, on the lower end, and 55 or 60 on the upper. The majority of political experts polled by Newsweek believe that the Republican gains will come within these middle brackets, where nobody can be quite sure what they mean.

THE SENATORIAL campaign looks as if it would be even less decisive than the House campaign. In the Newsweek poll the most optimistic Democratic politician conceded a net loss of one seat and the most optimistic Republican forecast a gain of only 7 seats—out of the 35 that are at stake this year. The average forecast was a gain of 4 seats for the Republicans. As the Democrats now hold 77 seats, a loss of 7—or even 12—would still leave them a two-thirds majority in the Senate. The phychological effects of the senatorial election probably will depend less on the total number of Republican gains than on the result of a few key contests where the line between the New Deal adn its opponents is rather clearly drawn, as it is in Ohio between Senator Robert L. Bulkley and Robert A. Taft, son of the late President and Chief Justice of the United States.

If Republican gains in the House and Senate approach the most sanguine expectation of the most optimistic Republican leaders, the morale of the party will be greatly strengthened. Whether the effect on the Democrats would be further to disrupt them or to press them into a greater degree of harmony would depend largely on the tactics chosen by the President. Conceivably, a substantial gain in Congress in 1938 would diminish the Republican chances of victory in the 1940 Presidential election—by encouraging the Democrats to unite behind a middle-of-the-road candidate and platform.

FROM THE VIEWPOINT of practical politics, the second yardstick—the extent to which Republicans recapture State and local offices—is more important than the Congressional yardstick. For State and local offices carry patronage with them, whereas seats in the Senate and House, for the minority party, do not. For eight years the Republican party has been suffering from an increasingly restricted diet of patronage. It now controls only seven of the 48 State administrations; and the 1936 election swept local offices in some States almost clear of Republicans. Even in their leanest days during the last several decades, the Democrats retained not only their strongholds in the South, but a liberal sprinkling of municipal machines in the North.

As between a gain of 60 House seats and two important governorships, on one hand, and of 25 House seats and five or six important governorships, on the other, practical politician probably would choose the latter unanimously. In Farmer-Labor Minnesota and at least 11 States now governed by Democrats, Republicans are offering stiff competition in the gubernatorial campaigns. In Michigan, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Ohio, Kansas and two or three others, they feel they have an even chance or better of winning. On the other hand, they may lose in Maryland and California.

UNLESS THE Democratic lines throughout the country hold much better than the leading politicians of both parties expect, the Republicans will win at least two or three of the campaigns for Governor. The question is: Which ones? In States like Pennsylvania, in which the Republican party is still clearly under the control of its most conservative elements? Or, on States like Massachusetts, Kansas and New York, where more moderate influences, or at least new faces, prevail?

The influence of the 1938 election on the political trend of the next two years will depend quite as much upon the character of the leadership of the reviving Republican opposition as upon the number of Republican gains on any or all fronts.

Tydings Denies Violating Law On Expenditures

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (AP).—Senator Millard E. Tydings denied today he had violated Maryland's corrupt practices act in the recent primary election campaign which cost the Tydings' forces $88,814.

Tydings, victor in a fight against the New Deal "purge" of conservative Democratic Senators, filed a demurrer to proceedings brought against him by ten petitioners and asserted he and his wife contributed only $2,600 of the total spent in his behalf.

Under the corrupt practices act, candidates are limited in their expenditures to approximately $4,250.

Rosenthal to Play With Symphony Oct. 30

Moris Rosenthal, veteran pianist, will play Liszt's Concerto in E flat with the National Symphony Orchestra at the opening fall concert in Constitution Hall October 30.

Rosenthal made his American debut 50 years ago and will celebrate the anniversary November 13 at New York City. Mrs. Roosevelt heads a committee preparing the "jubilee" celebration.

Jefferson Shrine Group Authorizes Call for Bids

Steam shovels will be at work in West Potomac Park digging the foundation for the Thomas Jefferson Memorial before the snow flies, it was indicated yesterday.

At the first meeting of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission since the death of its chairman, Representative John J. Boylan, of New York, Arno B. Cammerer, director of the National Park Service and executive agent for the memorial group, was directed to call for bids.

Stuart G. Gibboney, of New York, was elected acting chairman. The few members of the commission present decided to defer election of a permanent chairman.

Representative Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, was the only Congressional member present. Senators Thomas, of Utah, and Lonergan, of Connecticut, and Representative Culkin, of New York, are in the midst of re-election campaigns. Senator McNary, minority floor leader, also is out of the city.

The two vacancies on the 12-man commission have not yet been filled. Hollins Randolph preceded Representative Boylan in death by several months.

Mary Pickford Arrives Today

IT IS a new formula—for him—that Paramount has exhumed for Bing Crosby in "Sing, You Sinners," coming to the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday.

Those who attended the preview of this diversified item yesterday afternoon were just a mite surprised after it was all over that Mr. Crosby hadn't won the girl in the last reel. As a matter of fact, Mr. Crosby didn't even have a girl. That was his brother, played by Fred MacMurray. Only on one bibulous evening did Mr. Crosby make discreet passes at Mr. MacMurray's sweetheart—that would be Ellen Drew—and all he got for his romantic impertinence was a good, swift clout on the chin.

BELL.

Neither is Mr. Crosby all bogged down with songs in his new charade. He has a nifty number or two, of course, but as much of his yodeling is done in concert with Mr. MacMurray and Master Donald O'Connor as by himself.

What Mr. Crosby does find at his disposal in his latest vehicle, to get to the nub of the matter, is perhaps the closest approach to a straight acting role he has ever had before the cameras. There is not too much romance in "Sing, You Sinners," but there is a considerable spread of locale and scene and enough excitement to do for half a dozen of the ordinary run-of-the-mine Crosby releases.

These moments of high tension come when the Beebes move from the small town, where Mr. MacMurray has been trying to support the entire family and save money enough to get married, on the side—and Mr. Crosby has been the ne'er-do-well dreamer of clever schemes to avoid getting a job—and upon reaching Los Angeles discover that the second son of the family of three has traded his "swapshop" for a race horse of doubtful velocity. The bangtail turns out to be a pretty good plug, but not until after the kid brother-jockey has been ganged by the crooked race track gamblers and all the boys have been beaten into a very elegant mess of hamburger. That was all right, too. They won the battle royal—and then went back to singing in the Ship Cafe in Venice, Calif., as a reason for their three squares a day and immunity to black eyes and rearranged features.

It is quite a yarn that Claude Binyon has fashioned here for Mr. Crosby and his associates. There is a mild tincture of "Stablemates" in it, and a faint trace of "Cocoanut Grove," but on the whole it serves nicely to remove its star from the marshmellow school of "June-moon-spoon" romance.

And the greatest of these, if you know what I mean, is Elizabeth Patterson, that unfailingly reliable character actress, cast in the role of Mother Beebe. The horse is good, too, and little Donald O'Connor, as Mike Beebe, is what is technically known to the trade as a "find."

After having viewed the unwinding of "Sing, You Sinners," your reporter is beginning to sense the causes of Paramount's enthusiasm over the capabilities of Ellen Drew, as communicated to this department by the ambulatory Rufus Blair on his recent visit to the Capital. As she appears opposite Fred MacMurray in the present masquerade, Miss Drew might be looked upon as just another attractive young leading woman, but when you stop to consider the vivid contrast afforded by her work opposite Ronald Colman in "If I Were King," her potentialities begin to take on new stature and added importance. You'll find out.

That dancing contest in three-four time, inspired by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's forthcoming production of "The Great Waltz" and staged in the Shoreham's Blue Room on Monday night, turned up five winning couples.

After estimating the rhythmic skill of some 75 gliding twosomes, the judges—Howard Burkhardt, manager of Loew's Capitol; LeRoy Thayer, president of the Dance Masters of America, and the Shoreham's musical conductor, Barnee—selected these as winners of the preliminary elimination trials: V. L. Paris, 2514 Massachusetts avenue, and Barbara Burt, LaSalle Apartments; Tido Savage and Olyve Folden, both of Fredericksburg, Va.; Pablo Santana, 2320 North Capitol street, and Martha Benitez, 2303 Tunlow road; Henry Reynolds, 927 F street, and Elsie Weber, 1009 R street, and Albert Nathanson, 1,000 Fourth street southwest, and Lilly Miller, 3026 Park place.

These five teams will compete again for the title of Waltz Champion of the District of Columbia on the stage of the Capitol next Monday night. Early next month, the winners of these finals will compete again on the Capitol stage with the finalists from Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the Carolinas for the zone championship. It looks a little as if the waltz was here to stay.

Wire advices are to the effect that Mary Pickford, one-time "America's Sweetheart," will arrive in Washington this morning at 8:50 o'clock from Chicago, for a visit in the Capital that is described as "largely sentimental." She will be available for press interviews from the hour of her arrival until 10:30 a. m., and at 4:45 p. m. will entertain at a cocktail party in the Carlton, where once again she will submit herself to the friendly impertinences of the ladies and gentlemen of the scratch-pads and typewriters. She was preceded to town yesterday by her personal representative, Charles Stevens, whose luggage also bore Carlton labels.

With well over 5,000 patrons on their 1938-39 subscription list, the Theater Guild and American Theater Society, of Washington, issue warning that the books may be closed for the year any day now and that those wishing to participate in the series of six subscription plays at bargain prices best had hurry. Once Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne open at the National in Chekov's "The Sea Gull," on November 7, it will be too late.

In past seasons, it has been the custom to permit five-play subscriptions, and even four-play subscriptions to those missing the first two offerings. That practice now has been abandoned. Only the full six-play subscriptions are available.

For those who haven't heard, "The Sea Gull" will be followed on November 28, or December 5, by the Group Theater's production of "Golden Boy" in which Frances Farmer, Luther Adler and Morris Carnovsky will be seen as the second attraction of the subscription season.

And speaking of touring attractions, the Cross Roads Theater production of "The Old Soak" will become a "road show" for one night on Friday of this week, October 21. At that time, the production which enjoyed such enthusiastic support in the late summer will journey to Leesburg, Va., under the auspices of the PTA. Arch MacDonald, WJSV's ace baseballer, will again be seen in the title role, supported by the original Cross Roads cast.

This column would rather be anything under the sun but a name-caller, yet appearances sometimes are against it. Take yesterday, for an example. In referring to Leonard Bergman, the Erlanger estate executive, in Washington on a visit to Eddie Plohn and the National Theater, a typographical error—curse the mark—made us seem to esteem Len no higher than as a "busy young yellow." "Fella" or "feller," if you like, sturdy old Linotype Machine, but, please, not "yellow." Under certain circumstances, that can be a fightin' word—and we abhor fightin', especially with old friends.

Mary Olive O'Connell will appear as Lucy Wayne in the Blackfriars' production of "First Lady," now in rehearsal for public presentation in St. Paul's Auditorium on November 8, 9 and 10. This, of course, is the title role in the Katherine Dayton-George S. Kaufman comedy, in which Jane Cowl triumphed so enormously a season or two ago. Irene Hubbard, who rivals Lucy in politics, prestige, fashions and other fields of feminine activity, will be portrayed by Anne Moran. The following cast will appear under the direction of S. Carleton Ayers: Edna Evans, Evelyn Drayton, Stephen Trodden, Roy Bateman, Elinor Cahill, Margaret Collins, Mrs. George Campbell, Paul Whippeau, Raymond Boulger, Robert Dillon and Loren Freund.

The Variety Club, of Washington, will go rustic this Saturday night. Through Chief Barker A. Julian Brylawski it is announced that "Country Store Night" will be held in the clubrooms in the Willard, beginning at 9 o'clock. Early comers will receive special prizes and a gift of some sort will be given everyone in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Lohmeyer will be storekeepers for the evening.

Nice-Day-for-It Note

Yeah, just like summer—some went to the races, some played golf, some went to work, as usual, and some, sitting in the last row, merely went to sleep. Don't ask me who.

Boy Actor Mourns Pup, Birthday Gift

Nine-year-old Scotty Beckett was the central character of a real juvenile tragedy when grim reality turned a joyous birthday into a day of heartbreak.

Scotty had just finished work in "Listen, Darling," with Freddie Bartholomew and Judy Garland, and was all set to celebrate his ninth birthday with all the happy vigor in his small frame.

Scotty's first present of the day was a 5-month-old cocker spaniel, "Jigger" by name. Eager to romp with him, Scotty opened the door to let him out.

"Jigger," too, was ready for a romp. He dashed through the door like a small thunderbolt and into the path of a passing automobile where instant death wrote a finish to the first romp with his new master.

Relic of Custer 'Prop' for Beery

A cap and ball pistol, relic of the Custer massacre and now a prized item in Wallace Beery's collection of ancient guns, will make its first film appearance in the star's hands in his latest picture, "Stand Up and Fight."

The pistol was discovered by Beery and an uncle, T. S. Mills, during a hunting trip in the Big Horn country of Wyoming. Packed in bear grease and wrapped in rags which had almost rotted away, it had apparently been hidden by one of Sitting Bull's warriors who had no opportunity to reclaim it after Gen. Merritt's troops moved in to avenge the slaughter on the Little Big Horn.

Beery has been looking for a chance to use the gun in a film role and finds it in his new picture where it will be true to type for the period, 1850.

The Beebes Pull a Little Close Harmony

THE WARBLING PRINCIPALS IN "SING, YOU SINNERS"

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 18.—I buckled on my roller skates and went out to Metro for some hot news. Most of my time was taken up getting a passport vise to wiggle through the new entrance. I've been bouncing in and out of that place for 15 years without showing anything but a smile. Why, it's so tough over there now, the top executives got tickets for parkir ; their cars in front of that new executive building. And the street is public property. While I was there Gov. Merriam dashed in to see Papa Louis . . . Sure, I know Mr. Mayer well enough to call him that. I wondered if the Governor was there to fix Louis' ticket. Oh, shut up, Hopper, you talk too much!

HEDDA HOPPER

At Metro, I chatted with Mabel Willebrandt, who's been commuting weekly between here and Washington for the last two months. You know Mabel's one of our greatest tax experts, and tries more cases before the Supreme Court than any other lawyer.

Sam Woods and Ben Goetz were being snap shotted before they left for Europe. Sam vehemently denied ever turning down "Boys' Town". He was dropping off in Cleveland, Ohio, to see his daughter play the lead in touring company, "You Can't Take It With You." She got the job on her own but when George Kaufman saw her at dress rehearsal, he said: "Hey, there, tell your old man I got you this job so he'll give me a break. I may be needing a job myself when the public sees my new crop of plays."

On "Christmas Carol" picture set—which Ned Marin was directing—I found him sharpening a knife for me while he denied he'd ever turned down "Boys' Town." But there I found Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lockhart and daughter, June; Gene Reynolds, Terry Kilburn and four other children—all playing Cratchit family . And, by golly, all the children looked so like the Lockharts they might have been theirs.

On the "Dramatic School" set Genevieve Tobin was trailing cloth of gold, sable trimmed, through a gas house, while Luise Rainer and 50 other slaves just like her were in mussed blue cotton uniforms making and testing gas meters. Quite a contrast—I'll take Luise—with vanila.

Bob Hope sat in Producer Ted Reed's office for 3 minutes while Ted had the telephone glued to his ear without saying one word. Bob couldn't stand it, and said: "Let me know when you've quit talking to your wife and I'll come back.

Eddie Robinson's mother cooked a farewell dinner for her son just before she left for New York. Mrs. Bruno Frank, one of the guests, enjoyed a large black cigar after dining. Virginia Fields smoked one after lunch at Omar Kiam's house the other day And here I've patted myself on the back for giving up cigarettes.

When George Raft went to New York for the world's series, he went around to the East Side to see his old pals. One of them asked if he'd like to see the teacher they had in grammer school. "Sure," said George.

So, arm in arm, they went down to the latter's house. She looked at the now famous star and said: "Georgie, I'd have known you anywhere. Haven't heard about you for more than ten years. They told me you were a dancer up town. What have you been doing lately?"

Shep Fields got his idea for "Rippling Rhythm," which is his trademark, from his wife when she was trying to get that extra drop of ice cream soda through a straw.

Poor Sally Rand! She can get in and out of more law suits and garner more publicity than Aimee Semple McPherson. Sally has a horror of candid cameras. It was those pesky pests that killed off burlesque by snapping strip teasers. Sally refuses to be put in that class—and quite right, too.

Studios Call Players Back For Fall Jobs

Playtime is over for Hollywood's acting folk.

Comes now the annual fall rush, unusually heavy this year after a slack summer season, for players to round out casts of the many pictures being put into production to meet next year's theater demands. And so, after weeks of comparative leisure, many of the studios' contract actors find themselves faced with the task of appearing in two or three pictures each before the end of December.

Typical of the situation throughout Hollywood, is the demand for acting talent at Paramount studio, where a new list of player assignments has just been completed.

John Barrymore, currently on loan to Twentieth Century-Fox, will return to Paramount to appear in "Gracie Allen Murder Case" and "Midnight." Jack Benny, having completed "Artists and Models Abroad" recently, is slated to do "Man About Town" in November. Petite Olympe Bradna, who has rested since making her first starring picture, "Stolen Heaven," has been given three assignments: "Say It in French," which is to go before the cameras shortly, "Follow the Sun" and "Air Raid."

Bob Burns, now appearing in "Arkansas Traveler," has been put down for "Arkansas Traveler Abroad;" the C. B. De Mille production, "Union Pacific," and "Our Leading Citizens." Claudette Colbert, currently in "Zaza," also will appear in the De Mille picture and in "Midnight." Bing Crosby will do a picture for Walter Wanger and then, at Paramount, "Follow the Sun," as a follow-up to his current "Sing You Sinners."

Frances Dee, soon to be seen in the feminine lead of the Frank Lloyd production, "If I Were King," supporting Ronald Colman, has been listed for "The Lady's From Kentucky." Bob Hope, currently in "Thanks for the Memory," will do "Never Say Die" and, probably, will appear with Crosby in "Follow the Sun."

Fred MacMurray is being considered for "Cafe Society," as well as "Untamed" and "Invitation to Happiness."

Color Screen To Be Factor In Fall Films

Hollywood moved another step toward an all-color screen this week with an announcement from Technicolor, Inc., the laboratories from which emanate most of the screen's rainbows, that the studios have contracted for 40 motion pictures in color.

Paramount, one of color's pioneers with the filming of "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" in 1935, will make several features in Technicolor, according to the announcement.

Of these, one, the William A. Wellman cavalcade of the air, "Men With Wings," is currently under production, with Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland and Louise Campbell.

This picture, first Technicolor feature of the air, will trace the history of aviation and will take more than six months to film.

Next, Paramount will make "Tahiti," with Ray Milland and Dorothy Lamour, and "Northwest Mounted Police" in full color.

The best-seller novel, "Northwest Passage," will be filmed in color by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

First Kentucky Derby scenes ever to be filmed in Technicolor made at the recent running will be included in the new Twentieth Century-Fox feature, "In Old Kentucky."

Good-Luck Message From Veteran Star

Lionel Barrymore filled the role of "starter" when, over the telephone, he wished Reginald Owen "good luck" to send him into his first scene as Scrooge, the miser, in "A Christmas Carol" as it started production at Metro-Goldwyn Mayer.

Barrymore, who has played Scrooge over the radio each Christmas for five years, was slated for the part, but felt unable to play it at present because of a recent injury, and rather than have the picture postponed begged that Owen replace him.

Miss Cowan Attains Fame The Hard Way

Shuttles Ocean for Job Often Turned Down Signed in Budapest

By Frederick C. Othmon,

Hollywood, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Here's another one of those balmy stories that only Hollywood produces and the only explanation, apparently, is that movie producers have hard times making up their minds.

Four years ago, in any event, Miss Evelyn Cowan made a name for herself in Kansas City as a radio actress. She was 18 years old, brown-eyed, beautiful and ambitious to become a movie actress. So she came to Hollywood.

She tried every studio in town from M-G-M to Mascot, without any luck whatever. Eventually she got a job with the Hollywood Theater Guild, whereupon its treasurer disappeared with the pay roll. She was pretty glum.

She told her troubles to the only real friends she had in town, Henry Koster, his wife and the latter's mother, Mrs. Herman Solti. Koster was a German movie director who somehow couldn't get a foothold in Hollywood. His mother-in-law, a well-known Hungarian actresss, could do no better. Evelyn and her friends were disgusted with the movie business.

Mrs. Solti decided to return to Budapest. She offered to take Evelyn along. "You may not be an actress in America, but you'll be one in Hungary," Mrs. Solti said.

Evelyn was. She led an American orchestra in Budapest for a year. Eventually she caught onto the language, fell in love with the country, and appeared in the Hungarian National Theater. She played on the Budapest stage for a year, earned considerable money and decided to tackle Hollywood again.

So She Bought Clothes

Authorities would allow her to take only $50 out of Hungary. So she spent her $3,000 savings on clothes. Back in America, she was all dressed up, with no place to go. Several film companies expressed vague interest, but none produced any dotted lines for her to sign.

Evelyn hastened back to Budapest, where a contract awaited her. She was about to kiss her native country good-by for good. She'd hardly seen the Danube again, however before Fred Tunsten, Hungarian agent for Republic pictures, decided his company ought to have her.

He cabled Hollywood, Hollywood cabled Evelyn—and she returned once more. This time with a movie contract in her purse. The studio didn't much like her name for picture purposes. She changed it to Jill Martin.

The name didn't make much difference to her. After four years of trying on the other side of the world to get a movie job here, she finally made it.

Prosperity Rounds Corner

Upon her return, she discovered that her friend, had moved from furnished rooms to a mansion of his own. He had become one of the town's top directors and his wife, one of its social leaders. Jill moved in with them, at their invitation, and awaited her first part in an American movie. It wasn't long in coming.

"They put me into a serial entitled 'Hawk of the Wilderness,'" she said ruefully. "I worked four years for that!

"But it was good experience and it was a lot of fun and I still have hopes."

Oddest part of the story is that Republic Pictures is the company which grew from the old Mascot Studios, where Jill tried to get a job in the first place.

"A lot of people have said that Hollywood is a funny place," she laughed. "I don't think that 'funny' is the word.'

Lester C. Dunnigan, assistant United States attorney, who conducted the examination today, read into the record depositions of two postal officials in Dundee, Scotland, who intercepted correspondence between Rumrich and a "Mr. Sanders," Rumrich's principal point of contact with the German intelligence service. Sanders, also indicted in the case, is said to be attached to the German naval intelligence office.

Other defendants on trial are Otto Herrmann Voss, 39, former mechanic at the Seversky Aircraft Corporation plant at Farmingdale, N. Y., and Erich Glaser, 32, a former United States Army private.

As Rumrich took the stand to continue the story he began yesterday he appeared nervous, and at times spoke haltingly, his voice low.

U. S. Attorneys Consulted

Although Dunnigan conducted the examination, Lamar Hardy, United States attorney, and John W. Burke, jr., assistant United States attorney, sat at the counsel table throughout the proceedings, and Dunigan frequently conferred with them.

Rumrich testified yesterday that Sanders sent him $40 after he had supplied information regarding the number of artillery units in the Panama Canal Zone, where he once was an Army sergeant.

Sanders asked for figures on the strength of troops stationed in the Eastern United States, especially around New York. He also asked for "Secret and confidential military booklets," and Army and Navy catalogs containing lists of all Government publications relating to military and aviation matters.

Rumrich obtained the catalogs, he said, by writing to the Government Printing Office in Washington, but made no attempt to get the other information. Sanders' next letter was "somewhat brusque," he said, "because I wasn't prompt enough in complying with his requests, particularly with reference to the booklets he desired."

This letter was received October or November, 1936, and because of Sanders' brusqueness, Rumrich did not communicate with him until he received another letter in April, 1937.

The correspondence then was resumed and during the summer Rumrich sent Sanders a booklet he described as "a training manual for extended order drill" and photographs of troops on parade which he had taken in the Canal Zone. He said Sanders asked for a list of names of commanding officers of military posts in the vicinity of New York.

Naval Officer's Aide Involved

In September, 1937, Rumrich received a letter by messenger, and was told that in the future all letters from Sanders would come by messenger instead of by mail as previously. The messenger, named Schmidt, was named in the espionage indictment, returned last June, and is said to be an assistant to Ernst Mueller, in charge of naval intelligence at Hamburg, Germany, who also was indicted.

Schmidt gave Rumrich half a postcard, which had been torn raggedly, and retained the other half. In the future, he said, messengers from Sanders would identify themselves by presenting that half of the postcard. On one half were the letters San, and on the other the letters ders, so that the name Sanders appeared when the halves were put together.

Schmidt brought a letter from Sanders and $50. Sanders, Rumrich testified, "said he had received advice from his 'zentrale' that I would be allowed $50 a month for family support. He mentioned that it was largely through his intercession that this request was granted and that I would have to show results."

"Zentrale," a German word, means "central" or "headquarters."

Facts on Steel Plants Sought

Wiegand brought a letter from Sanders, also containing $50. Sanders told Rumrich not seek any more military information, but to attempt to garner facts about industrial plants "doing work for American rearmament," especially Bethlehem and DuPont plants.

Sanders also told Rumrich to send no more letters to Hamburg by mail, but to mail them to Mrs. Jessie Jordan, 1 Kinlock street, Dundee, Scotland. "He said I should be very careful," Rumrich testified. "If I should be apprehended he said I should say I was working for England. I should never admit I was working for Germany. I should say I was working for Maj. Christpher Draper in London."

Maj. Christopher Draper is an officer in the British Intelligence Service. Mrs. Jessie Jordan, who is also named a defendant in the espionage indictment, was sentenced last May in Edinburgh, Scotland, to serve four years in prison after pleading guilty to espionage charges.

Rumrich also told of meeting Schmidt a second time, last November.

Schmidt took a packet of eight or ten letters from his pocket, and handed one to Rumrich, telling him not to read it there, but to wait until he got home. Rumrich looked and found $50 in it, but did not read the letter.

Shown $1,000 Bills

Schmidt told him the order for Rumrich to obtain industrial, rather than military information, "was due to an agreement between someone in Washington and someone in Berlin."

Then, said Rumrich, Schmidt drew two $1,000 bills from one of the envelopes, saying they were going to someone in Brooklyn who had furnished information. "He said," Rumrich testified, "the plans had been sent to the naval war ministry in Berlin. He said the plans were for some sort of a gyroscope made in a submarine factory in Brooklyn."

Hardy, in his opening address yesterday, said it would be shown that Schmidt told Rumrich of plans obtained from someone connected with the Sperry Gyroscope Co. in Brooklyn, but Rumrich did not name the company yesterday.

On January 4, 1938, Rumrich again met Schmidt, and Schmidt told him the order regarding military information had been withdrawn.

Schmidt asked where coast mobilization plans could be obtained, and Rumrich said he thought they were kept under lock and key in Washington, but that they might exist in abridged form in coast artillery posts. The largest post in the metropolitan area, he said, was Fort Totten, in Bayside, Queens.

"Schmidt suggested that a ruse be employed," Rumrich testified, "which would make it feasible to have the plans regarding the Atlantic coast defense brought to a certain appointed spot."

Rumrich then related the plan whereby an officer would be lured to a hotel, and there relieved of the plans.

The ruse was not carried out, however and Rumrich did not give any reason today for abandoning it.

Karl Schlueter, a member of the crew of the Europa, and a fugitive defendant in the espionage case, brought several letters from Sanders, Rumrich said, and on January 14, 1938, came to Rumrich's apartment, bringing Miss Hofmann with him. Rumrich said he did not introduce Miss Hofmann by her real name, but as his niece, Ruth.

Schlueter told Rumrich that he had just come from Buffalo, where he had paid $2,000 to an employee of the Curtiss-Wright airplane factory.

"This party" Rumrich said, "had furnished him with a set of plans for some kind of an aviation device. Schlueter said the plans had been approved by Berlin experts and payment was granted."

Rumrich went to the kitchen and Schlueter followed him. There they were out of hearing of Miss Hofmann.

"Schlueter told me," Rumrich testified, "that Miss Hofmann was very well known to the Nachrichtenamt, the Bureau of Messages. He said if he didn't show up on the next trip she would come as his representative and would be authorized to take messages."

"Schlueter also wanted to know," Rumrich said, "if I could obtain for him 50 passport blanks, which he said he would like to have for the use of his home office. He said these blanks would be used as a convenient way for German agents to enter Russia."

Odd McIntyre's Successor A New Yorker From Kansas

Must Be 'Small-Towner' Driscoll Visits Capital He's Kansan Himself

CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

"The typical New Yorker?"

The man who daily takes the pulse and heartbeat of O. Henry's Bagdad on the Subway and analyzes them for millions of out-of-town American citizens, looked at the interviewer with a suspicious twinkle.

"The typical New Yorker," he said, augmenting the twinkle with a smile, "has three major characteristics.

"He was not born in New York.

"He doesn't speak like a New Yorker.

"The traits which lead him to fame or success are definitely foreign to New York."

The interviewer peered quizzically at this native Kansan who made good in the big city, who distinctly did not speak with a New York accent, who . . .

"But . . ." He went on to answer the unasked question . . . "but, don't you believe for a minute that I am a typical New Yorker. Far from it. I've lived in New York 15 years, yes. But never have I forgotten that I'm a small-towner.

"Besides," he added, clinching the argument, "I hate night clubs."

Typical Small-Towner

No! You'd never take Charles B. Driscoll for a New Yorker. His 15 years in Manhattan haven't altered his resonant Western speech—"Kansas language," as he terms it.

And when he dropped in on The Post yesterday, he looked more like a small-town business man taking in the sights of Washington than a New York columnist. You would never guess that this modest-mannered man seeks out pirate treasure troves.

Driscoll, whose "Pages from a Journalist's Notebook" delight readers of The Sunday Post, last February took over the writing of "New York Day by Day" upon the death of his close friend, O. O. McIntyre. Three hundred newspapers carry Driscoll's daily musing to literally millions of small-town and country readers.

His column, however, is not published in New York. "Nor will it ever be," Driscoll averred. He just is not writing for New Yorkers, he insists, only about them.

Fondly gazing back on his early days in Wichita as McIntyre did on his beloved Gallipolis, sharing McIntyre's belief that you must remain a small-towner at heart to interpret New York for the small-towner, Driscoll is apt successor to his 13-year friend, whose column he edited in that period. Driscoll gave up his post as editor of McNaught Syndicate and stopped writing his own 12-year-old comment column on world affairs, "World and All," in order to devote a larger share of his time to portraying the skyscraper city.

After giving up those two jobs, Driscoll was left with only a couple of books to write, lectures to prepare and broadcasts to make—besides writing the daily column.

Driscoll usually starts writing his column before breakfast, discusses plans with his wife over the breakfast coffee, and finishes up by noon. He likes to write about the doings of his family—he has two daughters whom the Driscolls are bringing up to be Kansans rather than New Yorkers — and his "guaranteed thoroughbred St. Bernard" which turned out to be part collie and mostly mutt, Capt. Kidd. The readers like it, too—the mail bag proves.

Newspapering Since 1912

The canine Capt. Kidd is as well known as the notorious buccaneer.

Author of "Doubloons" and other books on pirates, Driscoll has traveled widely following up clews to caches of corsair booty. A graduate of Friends University, Wichita, where incidentally he began his columnist career with the college paper, Driscoll later attended three other universities. Starting as a reporter for the Wichita Eagle in 1912, he has worked as a newspaperman in many cities.

The visit here yesterday was a brief one. "I'm heading South," Driscoll explained. "Not going anywhere in particular. But I feel that in order not to lose contact with the people I'm writing for, I must get away from New York now and then. It gives me a chance to look at New York from the outside."

Well, he had to be off. He shook hands with the interviewer, and that same suspicious twinkle reappeared in his eyes, as he left the parting remark:

"By the way, I believe I'll dissect the typical New Yorker a little more fully in next Sunday's column."

Young Md. Farmer Killed by Auto on Eve of Marriage

George Roland Ward, 27-year-old farmer, of Barnesville, was struck by an auto and killed Monday night while walking on the Barnesville-Comus road near Wards Hill, Md.

A technical charge of manslaughter was placed against Notley Hays Davis, jr., 19, of Barnesville, driver of the car.

Ward, who was to have been married within a few days, was thrown onto the hood and against the windshield. He suffered a fractured skull.

Justice of the Peace Charles M. Webb, assisted by Justice of the Peace Charles Stang, acted as coroner and issued a warrant holding Davis on the technical charge. Davis was released late last night on $1,000 bond.

Indian's Widow Drives Marshal From Her Palace

Los Angeles, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Mrs. Anna Laura Barnett, supported by her daughter, tonight put to flight in a spectacular front-yard battle Federal officials who threatened to evict her from the palatial home she occupied with the "World's Richest Indian."

U. S. Marshal Bob Clark, who used to be a buffalo hunter, and a deputy were repulsed with fists and missiles when they sought to serve formal notice on Jackson Barnett's widow that she must evacuate within two days.

News photographers, reporters and several score of spectators also were peppered.

A writ of assistance probably will be issued Thursday, and Clark will then have to return to the Barnett mansion and dislodge the widow by force.

Baldwin Loco Orders Exceed Year Ago

Philadelphia, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The dollar value of orders taken in September by the Baldwin Locomotive works and subsidiaries, including the Midvale Co., was announced today as $1,946,689, compared with $1,673,241 for September, 1937.

This brought the bookings for the first nine months of the year to $20,611,079, compared with $27,905,527 in the same period last year.

Business Loans Gain in Week

By the Associated Press.

Banks throughout the country increased their commercial, industrial and agricultural loans in the week ended October 12.

The Federal Reserve Board said, after surveying banks in 101 leading cities, that increases were reported in 11 of the 12 Federal Reserve districts. In the 101 cities, the increase amounted to $28,000,000.

Col. Van Nostrand Dies on Coast

Col. Percy E. Van Nostrand, 51, of the United States Air Corps, and a lighter-than-air craft expert, died Saturday at March Field, Calif., the War Department announced yesterday. He had recently completed a three-year tour of duty here with the military intelligence of the War Department.

A native of Washington, Iowa, Col. Van Nostrand was graduated from Iowa State University in 1909 and entered the Iowa National Guard infantry. He served at Kelly Field, Tex., during the World War as adjutant.

Sent to England in 1921 in connection with inspection of the dirigible, R-38, Col. Van Nostrand also served in France and Germany. He served three years in Hawaii and was detailed to Langley Field as instructor of the tactical school. He also was a graduate of the Army War College in 1933, the technical school at Chanaute field and the Army Industrial College.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lavinia H. Van Nostrand, of March field.

sonal increase in business which occurs every spring."

The increased employment, it was pointed out, may relieve some of the pressure from automobile union circles for a 32-hour week to further spread work.

Government officials received Sloan's statement enthusiastically.

It came at a time when President Roosevelt had told Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA head, that diminishing WPA funds must be stretched to last until March 1, despite the present peak enrollment of 3,100,000. Officials have waited for and predicted a business upturn that would take some of the load off the Government relief agencies.

Senators Enthusiastic

Capitol Hill comment on the Sloan news, as given to the Associated Press, included these expressions:

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, member of the monopoly investigating committee—"I think it is an indication that at least industry believes the Government is not going to bear down on business. It is a very fine move."

Senator Lee (Democrat), Oklahoma—"It looks like the Roosevelt prosperity is coming back again."

Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota—"I don't know of any industry that I would rather see show a pick up in business than the auto industry, but I am afraid that we still have a heavy unemployment problem on our hands."

Senator Radcliffe (Democrat), Maryland—"I think the announcement by General Motors is most encouraging and indicates the country is going ahead on the road to recovery."

19% Arrested For Grave Crimes In U. S. Are Minors

Nineteen per cent of the persons arrested for serious crimes in the United States during the first nine months of 1938 were under 21 years old, the Department of Justice reported yesterday.

The total number of minors arrested was 81,964 for the period studied as compared with a total of 70,417 for the corresponding period last year. Of this number, the department said, 591 were charged with murder or manslaughter, 3,244 with robbery, 2,798 with assault, 12,378 with burglary, 17,147 with larceny and related crimes and 5,379 with auto theft.

"It should be noted," Attorney General Homer Cummings said, "that the figures are extremely conservative because in many jurisdictions juveniles are not fingerprinted, or copies of fingerprints taken are not forwarded to the FBI."

The figures which were based on the department's fingerprint records, indicated "the need for community-wide crime prevention programs throughout the United States," Cummings declared.

King George Seen Ready to Accept Bids to Visit U. S.

London, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—King George may be expected to accept any invitation from President Roosevelt to visit the United States on his trip to Canada next year, Buckingham Palace officials indicated tonight.

Palace spokesman said, however, that so far as officials know, the King has not received a personal letter from the President. It was pointed out, however, that they would not necessarily know whether an invitation had been extended if the letter was a personal one.

While the first official approach would probably be made by Ambassador Kennedy, so far no audience with the King has been arranged.

Hunter Greenlaw Is Peer of 171,000 Boys Profits Rose From $115 to $3,200 in 5 Years Captures Prize at F.F.A. Session in Kansas City

Kansas City, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Hunter Roy Greenlaw, lanky Falmouth, Va., youth of 21, who operates a 453-acre farm once owned by George Washington, was acclaimed Star Farmer of America for 1938 today at the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show.

With the title goes a $500 cash prize and designation as peer of the 171,000 Future Farmers of America, whose national convention is held in conjunction with the stock show.

Young Greenlaw took over management of the Bottomlands Farm, near the spot where tradition says Washington threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River, at the death of his father five years ago.

Cash income from the 435 acres, owned by his uncle, was only $115 the year before young Greenlaw took charge. Last year, his first out of high school, he had a profit of $3,200.

Greenlaw practices crop rotation in 5-year cycles and raises pigs, dairy cows, horses and mules.

For the past two years he has devoted himself to the farm's management and to the livestock, hiring two men to plant and harvest.

'Pressure' Needed on A. M. A., Rosenwald Man Tells Jury

mittee on research in medical economics and has been a leader for 30 years in efforts to modernize the approach to the public health problem.

"The practice and payment of medicine is undergoing a substantial change," Dr. Davis said, "which is being brought about both by the physicians themselves, on the one hand, wanting a more stable income and by the public on the other wanting more medical care.

"I believe that the public has got to have more medical care, and that includes preventative medicine, too. However, there are a lot of factors involved. If we lower the income of doctors, they have less incentive and ability to supply improved services. On the other hand, we cannot permit the cost of treatment to go on rising.

"Under the stress of these forces the profession and its place in society are being changed."

Of these changes, Dr. David said, "the American Medical Association has demonstrated some capacity to effect them and to adapt itself to them, but it has not shown sufficient ability to do so without substantial outside pressure."

The Rosenwald expert said he did not believe the Federal Government ought to administer a socialized medicine program but that he saw no reason it should not pay a share of the cost by aiding the States where this was necessary.

"When I consider the difference in the standard of medical care—the difference of 10 to 1 in facilities between such communities as New York on the one hand and Alabama on the other, I cannot help feeling that some such aid might be called for.

"I think that the plan of a group of patients associating to retain medical care be productive of gratifying results. I have gotten several associations and dispensaries organized and they are still operating.

"The ability to select the right qualifications for a physician is not lowered by group selection under the organization plan. Many persons do not select their physicians in private practice for very good reasons, often for no real reason at all."

Dr. Davis lectures at the University of Chicago and is a medical service adviser of the Department of Labor. He is a member of the American Hospital Association.

Dr. Davis concluded his testimony late yesterday.

Skeleton Not Sen. McCoin's, Police Assert

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Police said today they were convinced a skeleton found at a railroad junction near here last Monday was not that of Rufus McCoin, Henderson, N. C., State senator who disappeared on a business trip in 1932.

They said a comparison of the skeleton's teeth with dental X-rays of the missing man showed McCoin had a partial lower plate, while the skeleton's teeth were sound.

The skeleton, which had been buried following its discovery was exhumed for the examination at the request of the Hagerstown, Md., police chief, Carl H. McCleary, who at first said he believed the skeleton was that of McCoin. The senator disappeared a few days before Christmas, 1932, after he had left Henderson for Richmond, Va.

Colored Plaint On Job Is Denied

ABC Unit Tired Of Bill-Collecting

Members of the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board announced Monday they are no longer willing to act as collectors of liquor bills from delinquent retail dealers.

It has been the policy and practice in the past to require a "clean bill of health" of retailers before a renewal or transfer of license would be granted by the board.

George W. Offutt, chairman of the A. B. C. board, said under proposed regulation the board would not be constrained to refuse renewal and transfer of licenses for retailers for failure to pay bills to wholesalers. It was stated, however, retailers who fail to pay their bills within the credit limitation period (fifteenth of the month) would be required to make future purchases on a strictly cash basis.

Slayer of Three In Fla. Ends Life; Blames Lost Love

Miami, Fla., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The body of Joe Miller, 34, house painter, hunted as the shotgun slayer of a woman and two men, was found in a ditch today, officers said, with a suicide note in his wallet.

It read, "Goodby all—You folks think I am crazy for what I have done—I can't help it—I loved her and she did me—I couldn't stand it any longer . . ."

Miller, police said, apparently had swallowed poison.

P.-T. A. Gives $800 For Needy Lunches

More than 800 parents of Shaw Junior High School pupils gave $100 and pledged additional sums last night, at a meeting of the Shaw Parent-Teacher Association, for the purpose of feeding needy children of the school community with appropriate lunches. The funds were raised following a health talk by Dr. William J. Howard, who was re-elected president of the association.

Mrs. D. I. Miller, home economics director, spoke on the George Dean project in homemaking and child care, for which night classes have been organized at Margaret Murray Washington School.

Other officers elected were C. J. Blayton, vice president; Myra Alastino, secretary; H. J. Robinson, treasurer; Mrs. Rachel Arrington, William F. Henson, executive committee.

Deportation Death, Non-Nazi Fears

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Paul List, German-born Rochesterian whose illegal entry into this country to see his wife and 3-year-old daughter started Federal deportation proceedings, heard from the Government today that he was to be sent back to Germany—an order he considers equivalent to a death sentence or long imprisonment.

List was ordered to report to Ellis Island Friday to await deportation. Because he fought with the loyalist army in Spain and is not in sympathy with the Hitler regime, List fears he will be punished.

Newlywed Youth Is Given 18 Years In W. Va. Slaying

Williamson, W. Va., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—The honeymoon of 19-year-old Noah Maynard interrupted by his arrest on a murder charge five days after he married Dixie Muncey, may not be resumed for 18 years.

A jury convicted the mountain youth today of slaying Garfield Moore, 45, his bride's former sweetheart. Judge Charles W. Ferguson immediately imposed the maximum sentence of 18 years in prison.

Mercy Slayer Of Wife Freed

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 18 (A.P.).—A Nassau County grand jury declined tonight to indict Harry C. Johnson, 65, for the mercy death which freed his wife from the agony of incurable cancer after years of suffering.

For the first time since October 1, when Mrs. Johnson was found dead of illuminating gas which her husband admitted he had piped into her blanket-sealed bedroom with a garden hose, the policeman guarding Johnson's bed at Meadowbrook Hospital was removed—permanently. Johnson is suffering from a heart ailment.

Perjury Suspect Insists Curley Asked Bribe

Boston, Oct. 18 (A.P.).—Sticking to the story that brought his indictment on a perjury charge, Frederick H. Graves yesterday testified James M. Curley, as mayor of Boston five years ago, had discussed with him settlement of a damage suit against the city and had inquired "how much is there in it for me."

Before Graves went to the stand, two police officials testified he had retracted that story after his arrest on the perjury charge, and Curley, now the Democratic nominee for Governor, entered a flat denial of ever having sought or received any money from the settlement.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Oct. 18.

EVERY NOW and then they sweep the ghosts and spiders out of the famous old Eastern Service studio on nearby Long Island, and make a feature movie. The cry goes up "Film Production Moving East"—but that is grade A bunk. Hollywood has the movies in its pocket. Even so, it is always fun to see that historic barn at Astoria open once more for business because, as the Paramount Studio, in the old silent days, it was the cradle and deathbed of many a great screen name.

ALICE HUGHES.

It's busy now, and I went out there to see both the current company at work, a well as my pet spooks of the dear old times. Just now Dudley Murphy is directing the screen version of the current F. T. P. hit, ". . . one-third of a Nation," with little Sylvia Sidney starred and big blond Lief Erickson, Frances Farmer's husband, opposite her. It was nice to get back again to the aimless, hysterical madness of a movie set again, and to wonder afresh how in the heck a finished spool of film emerges from such bedlam. But I soon tired of the actual shooting, and wandered off to a pile of sets in a corner, where I could ponder on the greatness of that old barn's past.

Romance note. Richard Watts, jr., the dramatic critic in the blue shirt, and lovely, Jean Muir, of stage and screen, seem to be as lovey-dovey as they were last spring before Dick went around the world. This is a twosome that we all watch with affectionate interest.

Lupe Velez, having brushed off her Johnneeee Weismuller, is said to be showing pals pictures of a new sweetie, another big boy, now in Hawaii. Lupe liked the lads huge. Remember Gary Cooper? Sure you do.

I went to the seventh anniversary birthday party of the new Waldorf-Astoria the other day, with Lucius Boomer playing host to 1,400 hirelings of that great inn. Food, movies and dancing filled the evening, and there were prizes for arts and crafts work by the men and women. It was a swell party for people who make other people comfortable. Even old Oscar of the Waldorf got a prize for a model of a Swiss chalet he had whittled from cigar box wood. Happy birthday, Waldorf! Many a fine meal I've had with you—on the cuff.

'Teen-Age Girls Still Have Time To Grow Tall

Exercise, Diet Help 9-Hour Sleep Needed Westerners Are Biggest

By Ida Jean Kain.

IF YOU are a 'teen age girl with a yearning to be taller, you may still have a chance. So many girls in their teens write and ask whether there is any way of growing taller that I have consulted a medical authority on the subject and the answer is yes. The best aids to growth—aside from tall ancestors—are diet, exercise and plenty of sleep.

About 70 per cent of your possibilities for growing tall depend on your heredity, and you can't do a thing about that. But the other 30 per cent depend on you. Your full growth is not achieved until the age of 19 and in the meantime it is up to you to see that your diet includes plenty of milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables, that you sleep nine hours a night, and that you engage in stretching activities.

Westerners Are Taller

Our doctor tells us that there are two marked periods of growth. One takes place from the age of 12 to 16, the other from 16 to 19. Often a boy or girl is very short until around the age of 16 and then suddenly begins to shoot up. If you are 16 and a "shorty," you may be able to take a hand in the business of growing taller.

Perhaps you have wondered why it is that girls in one section of the country average a better height than the girls in another section. In our country the tallest girls seem to come from the Western States and the explanation is easily found. They lead a healthful outdoor life, have liberal quantities of milk, fruits and vegetables in their diets, and have inherited the tendency to grow tall.

Many of the families in this section are of Scandinavian descent, and the Scandinavians are notably tall. An interesting point in this connection is, so our doctor says, the fact that the Swedes and the Norwegians were eating codlivers long before the rest of the world. The codlivers were perishable and, at that time, could not be sold to other countries. The Norwegians and Swedes had to eat them. And don't be under the impression that you are too old to take your codliver oil!

Hard Play Helpful

And don't be inventing excuses to be allowed to skip gym class, as girls often do. Play hard. It will not only help you to grow, but it will help you to grow up with a lovely figure.

Unless you are already too grown up, go out and play on the "jungle gyms," the horizintal bars, or just climb trees and pull yourself from limb to limb. These stretching activities are the ones which help you to grow.

Business and Date Frock

Sleekly groomed business women would not consider going through the fall and winter without a dress such as the one shown above. This simply sophisticated frock exemplifies all the points for which they are looking. First, its black crepe material and short sleeves mean that it can see them through any season. Second, its lines are kind to both tall and short. Third, its smooth purity of cut makes it basic for added furs, jewels or gay inexpensive belts. Most important of all it is new and up-to-the-minute because of a high neckline and bands of shirring across bodice and sleeves

Help Wanted

A woman old enough to be able to do her work without being told how, yet young enough not to ask more than a novice's pay check; a woman good-looking enough to be pleasant scenery around my office, yet not so disturbing as to have too many married men and office boys hanging around her desk; a woman hard-boiled enough to be a buffer to job applicants, peddlers, bill collectors and other minutae, yet gracious enough to make my friends welcome and impress important callers; a woman with enough initiative to run my job when I am gone, yet not so smart as to challenge my superiority; a woman intelligent enough to have lots of bright and original ideas, yet not so gifted that she will crab about doing detail and routine and other dirty work; a woman up-to-date enough to be smartly gowned, perfectly groomed at all times, yet not so vain and addle-pated as to want afternoons off for shopping and wave sets; a woman with gentility enough to be known as a perfect lady, yet good sport enough to enjoy crude office jokes and horseplay; a woman clever enough to appreciate my ideas, yet never brash enough to dispute them; a woman womanly enough to be kindly, warm, cheerful, tactful, sympathetic and charming, yet not so weak as to be tearful, catty, gossipy, hysterical, personal minded, or ever to behave "just like a woman;" a woman with enough administrative ability to direct janitors, office boys, window washers, et cetera with certain authority, yet never bossy about my affairs or the office in general; a woman 100 per cent normal, yet not handicapped by any appendages of husband, baby, fiance, boy friend or family life; a woman feminine enough to add a restrained touch of Cleopatra to my office yet sufficiently a robot to get the work done—and get it done darned quick. Applicants please address communications to J. Bantam Flint, Box 777, Utopia.

"Now let's see . . . well, well, everything looks fine and dandy . . . Yes siree. All fine and dandy. Well I will say you've taken wonderful care of your teeth . . . Yes indeed. I don't believe I'm going to find a thing to do—Oh now, wait, wait a minute . . . What's this? . . . Well, well, well. You know I was afraid of that . . . it seemed a little soft. There it goes; Well, well, I guess you've got to have a little filling there. Of course though that's nothing. You really have wonderfully strong teeth—wait! Say, you've broken off an edge there! Well, well, that'll have to be fixed. . . Now then let's see. No, you really have extraordinary teeth . . . Now wait a minute. Yes, here's another little cavity. It won't take long, though. You know except for a few places your teeth are remarkable—say, you know that looks like a dead tooth; I believe you'd better have that X-rayed.

"Now then let's see. Everything seems fine—and—no, right here between these two molars it needs a little work—my you have such nice enamel!—another thing, that wisdom tooth needs a little attention, but everything else—wait there's another little hole at the side here. Ye—es, I believe that's all. You really have wonderful teeth. Now when do you wan't to make your next appointment?"

Elastic Pressure of Arteries Keeps Blood Flow Continuous

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The elasticity of the arteries has a great part in maintaining an efficient circulation of blood. If the thrust of the heart beat alone had to send the blood to every part of the body, the pressure required would be two or three times what it is. But the heart throws its load of blood out into a set of elastic tubes. These first expand with the initial impulse and then grasp the column of blood, contract down on it and send it further along its course in a smooth way.

I say "in a smooth way" because this arterial pressure on the column of blood distributes it to all the tissues under just enough pressure so that in the thin-walled capillaries it is moving rapidly enough to deliver its energy and oxygen load with the greatest efficiency.

The elastic pressure of the arteries keeps up even during the rest period (diastole) of the heart, so that the blood flow in the capillaries is even and continuous.

If we could watch the rate of blood flow in a single tube, we would see the blood in the big arteries near the heart rushing past at the rate of about a foot a second, and then gradually slowly until in the capillaries it is going at a rate of about half an inch a second.

When the elasticity of the arteries is reduced, high blood pressure results. The physiologists tell us that there are only two possible causes of increased blood pressure—increased output of the heart, and increased peripheral resistance. In clinical high blood pressure, in man, there is no primary increased heart output, so the cause must be increased peripheral resistance. This increased resistance is probably due to the decreasing elasticity of the arterial walls. If the walls of the arteries can no longer distend to accommodate the thrust of the heart beat, there is automatically increased resistance.

High blood pressure simply means that the pressure inside the arterial tube is higher. And, obviously, high blood pressure in man is a compensatory and helpful adjustment. The circulation must be maintained if life is to.

If people worry about their blood pressure at all, they usually worry too much. It is one of nature's adjustments, and, except for rest, there is nothing to be done about it.

Girl Asks How Tactfully to Decline Invitation of Man Who Is Loved by Her Best Friend

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: During the past 18 months I have developed a very close friendship with another girl. I have always had plenty of boy friends and a number of girl friends, but not a girl friend in whom I could confide and who could confide in me. This girl and I are very much alike and we understand each other. Therefore, she means a great deal to me.

This summer she met a boy and fell very much in love with him and he with her. He is the first boy she has ever cared for, as she and I had led a very happy-go-lucky existence before, never getting serious over anyone. This fall she left home to go away to college, hating to leave the boy behind. I have known this boy for years and this past summer I acted as a sort of go-between when difficulties arose between them. He called me a number of times and while we talked of other things, the main subject was her.

Since she has gone he still calls me and the last time he suggested our going out one evening. Now this girl and I have never had any scruples about beating another girl's time, but we would never do it to each other. I like the boy very much, but I would never consider him as a beau, and I know she would be very much hurt if I were to go out with him. When he asked me, there wasn't much to say as he named no particular time. I made a mental note that I would tell him I was busy if he went on to make a date, but he said he would call in advance as he knew the only way he could ever get a date with me would be to call a week or so ahead. That puts me on the spot.

How can I handle the situation tactfully, so that there will be no hard feelings? If he were not a good friend, I would tell him where to get off, but since he is, I don't know what to do. I find myself up a tree. I hope you can suggest something.

FAITHFUL.

A Simple Matter

DEAR FAITHFUL: Aren't you making a mountain out of a molehill? I do not see that extraordinary finesse is required for handling this situation. It seems to me that all you need do—if, as and when the boy "calls in advance" for an engagement—is to tell him, simply and frankly, just why you think it best not to accept.

Tell him you understand, of course, that it would be a perfectly harmless gesture, to all intents and purposes; that you aren't such a dunce as not to know that whatever attention he pays you is due to the fact that you are Jane's best friend; but that since you are her friend, you have to admit that if the situation were reversed, and she were to go out with your favorite man in your absense, you would feel very badly about it, and would probably think the very worst of her, in spite of anything your common sense told you to the contrary. Tell him you suppose this all sounds very silly from a man's point of view, but that's the way women are, and you guess he'll just have to reconcile himself to their peculiar theories and codes.

If you go on record at once, and so explicitly, as being entirely loyal to your girl friend, I am sure the man will take no offense. The only possible catch is this—he is likely to be so impressed by your attitude that he may, for the first time, feel the stirrings of a really personal interest in, and admiration for, you. But that should give you little concern, if you are as disinterested in him as you say, and as entirely devoted to your girl friend as you profes to be.

Advice for "Puzzled"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A woman after your own heart, one with the same fine feelings and perception of all that is right and good although perhaps somewhat more mellowed and lenient, due to the trials and human contacts of many years—wishes to offer a bit of advice to "Puzzled," the young lady who, on October 9, declared her fears for her fiance's future fidelity, all because he had the courage to be honest in answering her questions.

A really smart and tactful woman knows better than to place her fiance in a position where he must either lie or tell a painful truth. No unmarried man—especially in this day—could truthfully say that he is immune to temptation, no matter how high his ideals or how strait and narrow the path he tries to follow. "Puzzled" touched on the deeper truth when she observed, "He is not the type who would deliberately run after women." Then her perception failed. But I am sure she can find the true answer within her own heart.

It sums up to this: After putting her sweetheart on the spot, she fails to appreciate his honesty enough to give him a break. My eldest son—a fine, clean lad of sound principle—agrees with me in this. Too much issue is being made of the matter. Women as a whole jump too quickly to conclusions, and listen to hearsay instead of using their own brains. "Puzzled" seems troubled by subconscious doubt as to whether she is capable of holding a man, and if this should be the case, she is off to a bad start with any man.

I would bet on the present and future fidelity of the young man who could be honest at the risk of losing someone very dear to him. Evidently this man's mother has taught him what I have instilled into my own sons—that truth comes first, despite all consequences. Truth has its own virtue. So now it is up to the young woman to show her hand; to demonstrate how much womanly grace, big heartedness and fine understanding she possesses for the man she loves. I do hope you give her opportunity to read this—so that she may be guided aright.

Care of Hose Prolongs Wearing

Frequent washing is the first rule in cutting down costs of stocking replacement. Experts recommend a washing even before a pair of new hose is ever put on. It acts to make the threads more pliable and therefore less likely to develop runs. Washing after each wearing, as soon as possible after, prevents perspiration and soil from attacking the tender fibers.

Lukewarm water for washing and rinsing, and quantities of thick, mild soapsuds, make the washing easy and quick enough to be tossed off at odd moments before bedtime or during the day. A moment's rolling in a towel speeds up the drying and prevents the development of disfiguring streaks.

Woman Collects 1,700 Historic Buttons as Hobby

Painesville, Ohio (U.P.).—A collection of 1,700 buttons—from the clothing of rich and poor, of soldiers and priests—is the hobby of Mrs. Martin Kohankie, 66, who has been collecting them for 15 years.

"I started collecting buttons accidentally, you might say," the white-haired woman said, fingering a finely carved cameo button. "I attended an auction and bought a box full of ancient buttons. As I sorted through them, I got to wondering what was the history of each—and I've been collecting ever since."

Among 25 military buttons is one taken from the coat of a Revolutionary soldier and another from the suit of a member of the Cleveland Grays, private military order, of 50 years ago.

Ethel Worthington Will Be Wed Saturday

Marriage to Mr. Coad Is Autumn Highlight
Out-of-Town Guests Begin Arriving Today
Ceremony Will Attract Cream of Society

By Hope Ridings Miller,

The Post Society Editor.

HIGH LIGHTING the autumn season for the next few days will be the round of parties preceding the wedding on Saturday of Miss Ethel Worthington and William James Coad, jr. Into the Capital today and tomorrow will come a number of out-of-towners to attend the ceremony and the pre-nuptial events.

Miss Josephine Coad, the bridegroom's sister, who will be a bridesmaid will arrive today from Omaha, Nebr., and will stay at the Shoreham, where she will be joined tomorrow by her parents. At the same hotel are Mr. and Mrs. Adam K. Luke, jr., of New York. Mrs. Luke, the bride-elect's sister, will be matron of honor.

With the announcement today of Mr. Coad's ushers, plans for the wedding are complete, and by this evening all members of the bridal party will have arrived to attend the dinner to be given by Miss Emily Davis at the home of her mother, Mrs. Archibald Davis.

TORREY WILKINS, of Omaha, will be best man, and ushers will include Charles Fitzmaurice, of Philadelphia; Moorhead Tukey, of Omaha; Adam K. Luke, jr., and Frank Hamilton, of Washington. Mrs. Ralph Worthington 3d, will serve with Miss Coad as bridesmaid.

Tomorrow, Ralph Worthington 3d, will entertain at luncheon for the bridal party at the Iron Gate Inn. In the afternoon the company will motor to River Farm, Mrs. Worthington's home near Alexandria, where cocktails will be served at the guest house.

Mr. and Mrs. Luke will give a dinner tomorrow evening at the 1925 F Street Club in compliment to Miss Worthington and Mr. Coad, and on Friday Mrs. Mae Hamilton will honor them at a luncheon at the Chevy Chase Club and later will take members of the party on to the Inter-American Horse Show at Meadowbrook.

ON FRIDAY EVENING, Mrs. Worthington will give the rehearsal dinner at the Sulgrave Club, the event rounding out the calendar of parties for her daughter and the prospective bridegroom.

Although the ceremony is to be largely a family affair, the reception will draw the cream of Washington society and a sizeable number of guests from other cities. Among those coming from elsewhere especially to attend the event are Miss Cecil Gibson, of Baltimore; Mrs. Riley Boland, of Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Eleanor Shutts, of Miami, Fla.; Mrs. Clifford Black, of New York; Miss Martha O'Brien, of Louisville, Ky., and Miss Carlyle Porter, of Philadelphia, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. David Porter, who formerly lived here. Miss Porter and Miss Worthington made their bows to society here in the same season.

Mrs. Worthington's apartment at 2029 Connecticut avenue will be the scene of both the wedding, which is scheduled for 4 o'clock, and the reception afterward. On Saturday evening the couple will leave for their wedding trip, later going to Omaha, where Mr. Coad is in business.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, who recently returned from Europe and have been spending a few days in New York, are now in Washington but will be off this afternoon for their home State to stay until Congress convenes . . . Yesterday Mrs. Pepper and Mrs. William P. MacCracken were glimpsed lunching at the Mayflower . . . Mrs. Justin Miller, who as May Merrill Miller is winning wide acclaim for her recently published novel, "First The Blade," left last night for New York where she will be interviewed over the radio . . . She will return to Washington on Friday . . . Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, expects to attend the Navy-Princeton football game in Baltimore on Saturday and will take several guests with her . . . Mrs. McCook Knox, who not long ago rented her house in Georgetown and took an apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street, is now in Johns Hopkins Hospital taking a rest cure . . . She is expected to return soon.

Sally LeFevre Wedding Set

Miss Sally Mitchell LeFevre, whose engagement to Squadron Leader Francis Ronald Downes Swain, of the British Royal Air Force, was recently announced will be married next month at Emsworth, Hampshire, England, where the prospective bridegroom's mother lives.

The bride-elect's sister, Mrs. LeFevre Luke, of Leesburg, Va., is planning to attend the wedding and will leave the latter part of this month for England.

Miss LeFevre, who is now visiting in Emsworth, will remain there until the wedding. A popular member of the post-deb set, Miss LeFevre met her fiance in August when he visited Washington with a group of other aviators. In September she sailed for England. She attended Potomac and Holton Arms Schools here.

Visits in New York

Mrs. John F. Wilkins, of Washington, is at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel in New York.

Mrs. H. Harland Crowell, of Sandy Spring, Md., and her son, H. Harland Crowell, jr., will be at the Waldorf Astoria in New York until the end of the week.

Felicia Adams To Be Wed to William Rodman

Lieut. and Mrs. Raymond Asserson, of Washington, announce the engagement of Mrs. Asserson's sister, Mrs. Charlotte Von Volger Lindholm, to William Acker Rodman.

Mrs. Lindholm is professionally known as Felicia Adams and is a prominent New York interior decorator and stylist. Mr. Rodman is a member of the Horticultural Society of New York, and executive secretary of Hortus, the horticultural exhibition at the New York World's Fair.

Lieut. Asserson, who is retired from the Navy, is with the Radio Commission in Washington.

Gen. Fries in South On Speaking Tour

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries left Washington last night for a short tour of the South, where he will fill several speaking engagements.

This evening he will speak at Almenah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., in Nashville, Tenn. Capt. J. C. Acker, the present potentate of that temple, served under Gen. Fries in the Chemical Warfare Service in France during the World War.

Gen. Fries will stop in Memphis, Birmingham and Atlanta before returning to Washington at the end of the week.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

MISS JONES, the little terrier belonging to Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, attended what is probably her last fur show yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club. Every time a sable neckpiece or chubby wrap came into view the yipping Miss Jones went wild and only a firm grip on her leash restrained her from leaping at the models.

Although the weather of the past few days has not been conducive even to looking at furs, much less to trying them on, yesterday's show, which also featured attractive negligees and housecoats, attracted a number of prominent Washington women.

MRS. JOHN GROSS, came down for the exhibit from her farm near Bethlehem and will be here until Friday. She looked particularly well yesterday in a black georgette frock with wide accordion pleated sleeves, with which she wore a string of pearls and a diamond clip. Mrs. Gross entertained at luncheon following the show, which will be repeated at 11 this morning and again at 6.

Mrs. Davis, who lunched with Mrs. Gross, wore a smart black tailleur with a bouquet of flowers on her lapel and a small peaked velvet toque.

An interesting guest at the club yesterday was Donna Julia Brambilla, a sister of Mrs. Philip Coffin, of Washington, who is staying at the Fairfax. One of Rome's prominent hostesses, Donna Julia, also has a reputation for chic, and yesterday wore a black and white print and a black straw hat with a veil drawn tightly over her face.

The screwiest and the most becoming hat yet seen in a season of crazy models was that worn by pretty Mrs. Newbold Noyes. It consisted of nothing but a tiny swirl of ostrich feathers perched over one eye and tied on with a ribbon, yet the effect couldn't have been smarter.

Others at the club yesterday were Mrs. Claude A. Swanson in a black frock with bright colored bows; Mrs. Mark Bristol, and Mme. van Kaathoven, who had succumbed to the weather and wore a tan frock of lightweight georgette.

JOHN FARR SIMMONS, Charge d'Affaires of the American Legation in Ottawa, is in town for a few days, but unfortunately without Mrs. Simmons, the former Caroline Thompson. She remained in Canada with their baby son. This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger have asked a few of Mr. Simmons' friends in for cocktails at their new house in Westmoreland Hills.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY, truly sorry that the popular Netherlands Minister has been transferred to Berlin, will be glad to know that Mme. van Haersma de With is expected to come back for a few days to pack up. One of the prettiest and best dressed members of the diplomatic corps, she will not stay for long, as the Minister has booked passage to sail November 2.

INVITATIONS are out for the series of Friday evening supper dances at the Sulgrave Club, and this year's list of sponsors has been considerably enlarged. New names appearing on the invitation include Rear Admiral and Mrs. George Pettingill, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kauffmann, Dr. and Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Achilles, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding and Mrs. Granger Blair.

Bachelors added to the list of sponsors include Commander J. W. Wiltse, Joseph Alsop, John Hammond and Harold Fangbener. Myron Hofer's name is again, as on previous programs, misspelled, and Maj. Barry is for some reason christened commander.

American Horse Show Team Presented at Fort Myer Fete

By Elizabeth Henney.

While the Mexican and Chilean horse show teams have been covering the social front in Washington for the last few weeks, the American horse show squad has been training in Fort Filey, Kans. At long last, however, they have arrived in town and social Washington viewed them for the first time yesterday afternoon at Fort Myer, when Col. and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright and the officers and ladies honored all three teams at a tea dance from 4:30 until 7 o'clock.

Maj. John T. Cole, who heads the American team, was accompanied by Capt. Royce A. Drake and Mrs. Drake, Capt. Milo H. Matteson, Lieut. and Mrs. F. F. Wong, jr., and Lieut. and Mrs. William H. S. Wright.

In the long, high ceilinged Hop Room of the post, Col. and Mrs. Wainwright received their guests. With the United States officers in "Army Blue" the Mexican and Chilean teams wearing their army garb, and with other military attaches in uniform, the event was especially impressive.

Flanking the host and hostess, the color guard snapped to attention, with a barked command and a rattling of sabers every time an officer passed in the receiving line. The officers returned the salutes with great formality.

Just as the Chilean team (the last team to arrive) finished the receiving line, the bugle call "Attention" was blown. As all officers saluted, the regimental flags were dipped in salute to the American flag, the bugles blew "Retreat," and the color guard marched off the floor.

Mrs. Wainwright wore a gown of black chiffon, with a flared skirt around the border of which were large hand painted flowers. Her corsage was of gardenias. At the tea table were Mrs. Renn Lawrence, Mrs. Albert Kenner, Mrs. W. C. Crane, Mrs. A. W. Roffe, Mrs. John Crane, and Mrs. Ora Cohee. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. J. V. Collier, Mrs. Leslie D. Carter, Mrs. Robert la T. Cavanaugh, Mrs. Charles McC. Downs, Mrs. C. L. Taylor, Mrs. Edward L. Strohbehn, Mrs. T. F. Hickey, Mrs. Basil L. Riggs, Mrs. George T. Barns, Mrs. Francis A. Garrecht, jr., Mrs. Charles B. Hines, Mrs. Henri A. Duebbermann, Mrs. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, and Mrs. Lawrence G. Smith.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Mrs. Hazen were among the guests, Mrs. Hazen in a brown matelasse gown with gold and green clips. Also noted were Lieut. Gen. Friedrich von Boetticher, the German Military attache, and Frau Boetticher.

Others sighted here and there were, Col. Teofilo Ganzale Jasso, Mexican Military Attache, Maj. Gen. Leon Kromer, Col. and Mrs. Creswell Garlington, Col. and Mrs. Jon Millikin and Lieut. Fletcher Cole.

Dr. Hadow Emphasizes British Unity

Oxford Principal Here Addresses A. A. U. W. Dominions Loyal Asks Co-operation

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

There is "a tremendous unity of feeling in the British commonwealth of nations, according to Dr. Grace Hadow, principal of the Society of Oxford Home Students. Dr. Hadow, who was in the Capital for a brief stay, addressed a group of officers of the American Association of University Women yesterday at a luncheon given in her honor at the clubhouse, 1634 I street.

She spoke with authority on the attitude of the dominions within the British Empire, having been the only woman delegate from England to the British Commonwealth Relations Conference last month in Australia. All the dominions were represented at the conference at which Dr. Hadow was one of three women present, the others being Australians.

There was discussion of problems of individual nations as related to the empire, frank criticism of each other and often of government policies, but the conference left no doubt, she said, of the warm feeling for the old country.

"The dominions are like children growing up in the house," said Dr. Hadow, "having their freedom, differing from each other, but mainaining a strong family tie."

Another attitude by which she was impressed was that of taking the whole international situation into account—a realization that, although the English-speaking peoples might join hands in an effort to work out their problems, no permament solution could be found which did not embrace universal welfare among nations.

"One of the most important things in the world today," said Dr. Hadow, is that the English-speaking peoples should come closer together in sympathy and understanding. I have traveled 30,000 miles since July 22," she added, "without being outside the area where Englis his the chief language."

Before she was appointed delegate to the Australia conference, she had arranged to come here for a lecture tour, with the purpose of arousing interest among American women in study in England. She likewise encourages English students to come to this country, as a means of promoting international understanding.

The Society of Oxford Home Students, of which she is the head, is one of five women's colleges at the Oxford University. Among those graduated under her are 300 American women.

Guests at the luncheon yesterday included Mrs. Robert Olesen, president of the Washington branch of the A. A. U. W.; Mrs. Duard Sandifer, vice president; Mrs. John Donaldson, chairman of international relations; Miss Anna Cooper, of George Washington University; Mrs. Frederick Tryon, Dr. Esther Cole Franklin, Dr. Esther C. Brunauer, Mrs. Frank Houdelette, Mrs. Peter Speek, Donald Shand, of the American Council of Education, and Ben M. Cherrington, chief of the division of cultural relations of the State Department.

Mrs. Reed to Preside At Chest Meeting

Mrs. Hennen Jennings, a member of Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone's Community Chest League educational meetings committee, will hold a meeting at her home at 5 o'clock this afternoon at which Mrs Stanley Reed will preside. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes and Mrs. Ernest G. Draper.

Press Women Hear Writer

May Merrill Miller, author of "First the Blade," yesterday told members of the Women's National Press Club how she gathered material for her novel and cherished it for nearly 20 years before its publication.

Mrs. Miller, who is the wife of Judge Justin Miller of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, was introduced by Hope Ridings Miller, president of the club, at its weekly luncheon at the Willard Hotel. Another guest of honor and speaker was Toni Frissell, who has just returned from Hawaii, where she made the first motion pictures taken on the islands.

Mrs. Miller's talk on her experience in writing had the same sincerity and simplicity which characterize her book. She told of talking to the pioneer settlers of San Joaquin Valley, 32 years after their settlement of the section, and of being touched by the realness of their life and their regard for each other. She knew, because of this, she said, that there was a story to be told—and she wanted to be the one to tell it.

Questioned as to whether she would write another book or perhaps a trilogy, she said she hoped to do another story of the same family, but had not gone as far as planning a third.

Also seated at the head table was Dr. M. Therese Bonney, noted photographer and European consultant for the Board of Design of the New York World's Fair. She now is working on plans for the commemoration of the centenary of photograph with exhibitions in New York and Washington. Dr. Bonney was introduced and spoke on some of her experiences here and abroad in taking pictures for the press.

Among guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Lawrence Groner, Mrs. Wilson Lee, Mrs. Louis Caldwell and Mrs. Paul Godehen, of Chicago, who is visiting her; Miss Marion Martin, of the Republican National Committee, and Alice Rogers Hager, a club member, who just has returned from a 20,000 mile air trip.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne.

THE JUNIOR GUILD of the Women's City Club lastt night was entertained with a program of music and dancing at its regular meeting in the clubhouse. Miss Carol Cox, the chairman, presented her sister-in-law, Mary Rountree Cox, dramatic soprano, and Saritza, Esthonian dancer, both of whom are at present residents of Washington.

The former ,who studied under Queena Mario and Helen Jepson of the Metropolitan Opera, has been heard since coming to the Capital with the George Washington Glee Club and in several churches and one of the theaters. The latter, who has been affiliated with the Metropolitan Ballet of New York and the Adolphe Bohm Ballet in San Francisco, appeared here in a program for the first time last night. Jack Gee accompanied the artists.

Miss Mary T. Shaw and Mrs. Annette V. Clayton assisted the guild chairman as hostesses for the evening, and Mrs. William Farnum Clark and Mrs. Martin Petersillia presided at the coffee table after the program.

A BRIDES' DEPARTMENT is to be started by the Housekeepers' Alliance, it was decided yesterday. A junior alliance will be started such as the organization had 15 years ago. The members, who will study cooking, household management and other related subjects, will be the young matrons and brides who belong to the alliance.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley was hostess to the members of the senior organization yesterday and, as civics chairman, presented W. C. Kirkpatrick, president of the Group Health Association, as speaker. Mrs. Frederic Newburgh, president of the alliance, presided at the business session.

THE KENSINGTON BRANCH of the Needlework Guild last week had its annual ingathering of garments to be given needy school children of the community.

The Needlework Guild, which has branches throughout the country, requires of its members contribution of two new garments a year or their equivalent in money. It does not have meetings except those essential to arrangements for the annual ingathering of garments, and the session at which these are arranged in attractive piles for display before they are distributed.

In some places it distributes directly to the needy but in others, it functions as a charity helping other charities, giving the new clothing and linens donated, to social agencies for distribution.

Officers and directors of the Kensington Guild are Mrs. Arthur B. Miller, president; Mrs. George C. Covalt, vice president; Mrs. G. Milton Benson, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. J. Wilkins Cooch, Mrs. Felix Spurney, Mrs. Bernard Bent, Mrs. Frank Chapman, Mrs. Herbert Schiefer, directors.

The regular Wednesday open house silver tea of the League of Republican Women will be held today from 3 to 5:30 at the clubhouse, 1301 Seventeenth street.

Police Capt. Rhoda Milliken Urges Clinic for Alcoholics

Stresses Need in Address to W. C. T. U. Says This Method Affords Spiritual Rehabilitation Suggests Group Backing for Project

A clinical service to handle alcoholic cases was urged yesterday by Capt. Rhoda Milliken, of the Woman's Bureau of the Police Department, in an address before the annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the District, held at the First Congregational Church. Both institutional and clinical service are needed, but if only one can be provided, the latter is the more important, she said.

At present, persons arrested for intoxication are either fined and dismissed or, if they are frequent offenders, they are sent to the workhouse, or to the hospital until sober, she said. This method does nothing in the direction of curing the drunkard, who in many instances should be considered in the light of a patient who is ill, Capt. Milliken pointed out. After he has recovered from the physical effects of drinking, he needs the moral and spiritual rehabilitation, which only a trained staff could give.

She suggested that the W. C. T. U. could give assistance in supporting some such project.

Capt. Milliken said arrests for drunkenness had increased in 1937 over 1936, but had showed no further increase this year. During the last year there were 1,465 arrests of women for intoxication, she told her audience, and estimated 50 per cent of these were either mothers or came from families in which there were young children. Approximately 30 per cent of the arrests were of repeaters, reducing the number of individual cases.

Mrs. Ida B. Ramsey, State president of the W. C. T. U. for the District, introduced Capt. Milliken and also presented a report on the national convention and the work of the local organization.

There has been an increase of 29,525 in the membership of the national organization during the year, she said, with Pennsylvania leading. The District unions have already come within $431 of their $5,000 goal in the $1,000,000 educational fund campaign. There are 21 Loyal Temperance Legions in the District, with a membership of 580 children, she said.

Reports were made at yesterday morning's business session by Mrs. Earle Wilfley and Mrs. Jenny Esmond Wright, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Florence W. Warner, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Darrel C. Crain, treasurer; Mrs. Frances Winters and Mrs. M. C. Bennett.

This morning at 9:30 the polls open for election of new officers with the slate headed by Mrs. Ramsey, who is scheduled for re-election without opposition. This evening Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will address the closing session of the convention.

D. A. R. Holds Bridge Party

The Army and Navy Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday sponsored one of the largest bridge parties which has been given by the D. A. R. It was in charge of Miss Frances Marvin Webster and was held in the gold ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, where nearly 90 tables were arranged.

Mrs. George R. Harrison is regent of the chapter, which ranks as third largest in the United States, and includes in its membership wives and daughters of officers in the Army and Navy. Miss Webster was unable to be present as she had gone to Williamsburg for the observance of Yorktown Day by the Daughters of the Cincinnati. Other District D. A. R. officers, including the regent, Miss Lillian Chenoweth, also were there for the patriotic ceremonies. Miss Webster's mother, Mrs. Edmund K. Webster, attended the card party in her place.

Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War, came in briefly at the tea hour and patronized the cake and candy tables which were in charge of Mrs. J. E. Hunt. Among the guests who played cards during the afternoon were Mrs. Malin Craig, wife of the chief of staff; Mrs. George Lynch, wife of the chief of infantry; Mrs. Archibald H. Sunderland, wife of the chief of coast artillery; Mrs. J. E. DeWitt, wife of Gen. DeWitt.

Prizes for high score were jeweled pins and were in charge of Mrs. Brady Guttencutter. Mrs. John L. Homer was in charge of tickets; Mrs. J. W. Joyes, of seating, and other chairmen were Mrs. W. R. Smedburg and Mrs. David J. Rumbaugh. The proceeds go to the educational and philanthropic work of the chapter.

D. C. Club Speakers To Aid Course in Public Speaking

Club leadership as it is affected by ability to speak will be discussed by club presidents and other club leaders at opening session of Mrs. Hugh Butler's fall course in practical platform speaking, at 10:30 this morning, at All Souls' Church, at Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest.

Among those who will speak are: Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, president of the League of Women Voters; Mrs. Edward G. Montgomery, president of the Twentieth Century Club; Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Edgar Meritt, president of the Poltical Study Club; Mrs. Leonard Nicholson, of the Bethesda Woman's Club; Mrs. Ellis Meredith, Mrs. May Thompson Evans, assistant directors of women's division, Democratic National Committee; Mrs. Frank A. Mondell, vice president of the League of Republican Women; Mrs. Harvey Wiley, Mrs. Daniel Partridge, Mrs. Chester Leasure, Mrs. Ebert Burlew, Mrs. Harry Kramer, Mrs. Charles Sinisgalli, Mrs. Samuel Swiggett.

Tableaux Depict A. D. P. History At Rush Party

Tableaux depicting the history of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, the oldest secret society for college women in the United States, were presented last night at a rush party at the home of Miss Phoebe Beall, 3400 Newark street. The affair was given by Alpha Pi, active chapter at George Washington University.

Miss Margaret Balcolm, representing the period of 1878, wore the wedding dress of her grandmother, who at that time was a member of the sorority. It was then known as the Adelphean Society, the name under which it was established at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., May 15, 1851.

Others on the program were Miss Ane Thomas, as the college girl of 1851; Miss Ruth Leavitt, treasurer of the sorority, as the girl of the Civil War period; Miss Beall, as a Florodora girl and Miss Doris Cunningham, representing the Merry Widow era. Miss Carolyn Watson, president of the sorority, represented the present. Miss Maxine Mitchell was in charge of the program.

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The Breakfast Hunters

A ready meal most folks will find Conducive to content of mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

People who have little to worry them are prone to grow fat. Johnny Chuck was growing fat. You see he never had to worry about where the next meal would come from. Living as he did on grass, clover and other plants, he could always get a mouthful whichever way he turned. This was just as well for it was time for Johnny to be growing fat. Yes, sir, it was time for Johnny Chuck to be getting fat. It wouldn't be a great while now before cold weather and time for Johnny to go to bed for the winter. To do that and sleep comfortably, he needed a nice thick blanket of fat under his skin.

Now Johnny didn't have to hunt for his breakfast, but perhaps you have noticed that often those who have plenty are the ones who become most fussy about what they do have. Also they are the ones who so often think that that which they haven't is better than that which they have. It was so with Johnny. He wanted sweet clover when grass would have done just as well. Furthermore, he was sure that some clover was better than other clover and the best was always some that he hadn't sampled.

So it was that this particular morning just after jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun had begun his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, Johnny Chuck was actually hunting for his breakfast when there was no need of hunting at all. He was in a bed of clover back of his house farther from his doorstep than was really safe. He was taking a chance and he knew it. But such sweet clover was worth a chance. Had he been satisfied to eat his fill from the edge of the clover bed nearest to his home he would have taken less chance, but he wasn't. He was sure that other parts of that bed of clover were sweeter and he couldn't be satisfied until he had sampled them.

Now there were two other people out hunting breakfast that morning. One of them Johnny Chuck had seen as soon as he sat up on his doorstep for a look around. It was Reddy Fox. Reddy was over near the edge of the Old Pasture. He appeared to be hunting Mice. Johnny had seen him there for several mornings. Johnny wasn't worried. Reddy was too far away to be dangerous. He would just keep an eye on Reddy.

So Johnny kept watch of Reddy and in so doing forgot to look behind him. When he had first come out and sat up on his doorstep to look all around he had failed to see Mrs. Reddy behind a clump of weeds some distance away. She had been lying as flat as possible behind those weeds since before daylight. Now as she saw Johnny Chuck's attention fixed on Reddy she began to steal forward, crouching low and moving swiftly. She had almost reached Chuck's doorstep and he had not seen her. Then he turned his head.

Johnny saw at once that he could not reach the front entrance to his home before Mrs. Reddy. He started for one of his back doors. So did Mrs. Reddy, and because she could run so much faster than he it was plain that she would get there first. It was plain that she knew just where that back door was and that she was making straight for it to head him off. There was a gleam of triumph in Mrs. Reddy's eyes. Had Johnny glanced back he would have seen Reddy Fox racing toward him at top speed.

It looked as if at last Johnny Chuck was in a tight place from which there could be no escape. Mrs. Reddy was sure of it. Reddy was sure of it. They had planned this very carefully. Everything was working out just as they had planned it.

Johnny Chuck turned aside and ran as fast as his fatness would allow. He really did very well for such a fat fellow. He headed straight for a little bed of ferns. They grew very thick there and quite tall. Mrs. Reddy grinned. She was wondering if Johnny thought he could hide under those ferns.

She was no more than two jumps behind him when he entered those ferns and disappeared under them. Mrs. Reddy leaped in among them expecting to pounce on Johnny. She didn't. He wasn't there. He had vanished. Reddy came racing up. "Where is he?" panted Reddy.

Mrs. Reddy said nothing. She simply stood still looking at something down among the ferns. Reddy joined her and looked, too. There was a hole there. It had been wholly hidden by the overhanging ferns. Both knew instantly where Johnny Chuck was. He was safe down in his house. This was another back door to that house, a back door of which they had not known.

Acrobats ..... JACK REYNOLDS and SOL BLACK

Sharpened in its witticisms, expanded by the rounding out of the friendly burlesques of the leading dignitaries of the incumbent Administration, including George M. Cohan's amiable impersonation of the President of the United States, and whipped into a fast musical pace by a year's playing in New York, "I'd Rather Be Right," the satirical revue by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, belatedly reached the National Theater last night and added another enthusiastic audience to its long list of conquests.

It is, of course, known to all by now that "I'd Rather Be Right," with utter frankness and unfailing good nature, pokes fabulous fun at the perplexities and foibles of the New Deal, from the President's struggle with the budget to the Wagner act, the PWA, the Federal Theater project, the Supreme Court and even the moot question of a third term. The succession of travesties on the functioning of the Federal establishment that comprises the two acts are motivated by the problem of a young couple who wish to be married, but cannot be until the boy can get a raise, denied by his boss until the President has balanced the budget and business is enabled to perceive some slight indication of the precise direction in which it may be going.

It is a sympathetic President who encounters these two youngsters on their way to a Fourth of July concert in Central Park, while he is homeward bound to Sixty-fifth street to prepare his Independence Day speech to be delivered that afternoon. Immediately he calls the Cabinet in session and the fun begins. It is fun that is boisterous, but not biting; pointed, but not poisonous; vivacious, but not vicious. Just fun.

A Kindly and Unctuous President

The central figure in all of the sprightly incidents that mark the highlights of the revue is Franklin D. Roosevelt, depicted by George M. Cohan with many effective mannerisms and embellishments that have been added since so many Washingtonians first viewed the piece in the early days of its formative period before it had moved into New York to take the metropolis by storm as the first and most outstanding hit of last season. Mr. Cohan is a kindly and droll Chief Executive who elaborates the role with his distinctive manner of speaking and singing and the nimbleness of his inimitably personalized dancing, with never a suggestion of offensive incongruity. There is no one else in the contemporary theater who could match his performance in deftness, quiet humor and propriety.

In the character-caricature of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Taylor Holmes, similarly, has multiplied the comic embellishments of his portrayal of the Nation's chief financial functionary, puzzled by the ponderous futility of all that buried gold out in Kentucky, until it has become a gem of cartoon portraiture. His last-act song, during the "White House Jamboree" radio hour—in which the Cabinet does the entertaining and the President "does the commercial," with James A. Farley as master of ceremonies—has become so emblazoned with lyrical nonsense as to recall Mr. Holmes' convulsing "If I Could Be by Her" and other recorded classics of an earlier day. Next to Mr. Cohan, Mr. Holmes comes first.

Original Cast Remains

But "I'd Rather Be Right" is not by any means a "two-man show." The youthful causes of it all are made extremely likable young people by Marie Nash, as Peggy Jones, and Austin Marshall, her bewildered swain. Phil Barker. Paul Parks continues to be an especially adroit Postmaster General and Marion Green is no less an hilarious Secretary of State, with more than a scant physical resemblance to the real one. The Madame Secretary of Labor still is put upon in the person of Bijou Fernandez and John Cherry remains an agile and prying Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, with Florenz Ames and Joseph Vitale lending still further pungency to the goings-on in various guises important to the "plot."

The musical fiber of the two acts is sustained by Carolyn Marsh, Miss Nash and Joseph Vitale and the dancing by Jeannette Lea, Margaret Sande, Don Cater and that incomparable artist of the taps, Georgie Tapps, all supported by a handsome group of coryphees and a lusty male chorus.

The Life of the Party now Looks it!

ABLEST OF THE EIGHTS is this mighty Buick Dynaflash Valve-in-Head Straight-Eight, with a cyclone in each cylinder to squeeze full power from every drop of fuel.
*GENTLING EVERY JAR, BuiCoil Torque-Free Springing is this year even softer, smoother . . . still a vital safety factor. It reduces skid risks and makes rear tires last longer.

In every 1939 Buick you get the skilled engineering and sturdy quality traditional to Buick—enriched by all the extra value which General Motors science and Buick workmanship can provide.

WHEN you've got something mighty good and know it, it's not easy to pass it up even for something better!

There's a whale of a temptation to play it safe, to coast along a while, when you're riding such a vote of confidence as we've had this year.

We had ample evidence from the start that our past season's good Buick was the life of the 1938 party.

Right through the darkest months it paced the industry in sales, setting a bright example that shone like a sudden sun smiling through the rain.

But itching in our heads and on our drawing boards were ideas.

Ideas that started with practical things like better cooling and more efficient aerodynamics and a wider field of vision for the driver and his folks.

Ideas that wouldn't stand still — that budded, burgeoned, flowered full into gorgeous new beauty of line and form and action.

Ideas that promised to re-pattern motor car design for the next half decade or more!

Now, the price of progress is daring to make good things better—even if you've got a winner to start with. Buick's whole come-back has been based on that.

We couldn't refuse to climb while empty rungs on the ladder beckoned us up!

So the life of the party now looks it. And you'll see a Buick for 1939 of very different pattern, a car fit to fix the fashion for many a long year to come.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Almost every masculine conversation in the Capital turns sooner or later to 1940 candidates, especially among New Dealers concerned about the Roosevelt program. To whom will F. D. R. pass the baton, if he can? Here's what New Dealers think of ten who might conceivably be acceptable to Roosevelt.

Justice Reed . . . explorers

ROOSEVELT: A 3-to-1 bet over any other Democrat. Doesn't want to run, but likely to become "inevitable" long before June, 1940, if he isn't guaranteed the nomination of a man he wants. New Dealers think he'd be a cinch even for a third term. And 200,000 jobholders passionately love a cinch.

• • • •

HOPKINS: The chief's first choice. But rated vulnerable to G. O. P. attack among farmers and white-collarites. Big businessmen who know him aren't as hostile to him as Garner Democrats are. A tough customer in an argument, and in a rough-and-tumble campaign he might redden the faces of G. O. P. bombers. (He and four others sit chummily around the Cabinet table.)

• • • •

WALLACE: Probably second choice with F. D. R. More popular in the crucial farm States than G. O. P. outcries indicate. For a farmer, vastly thoughtful toward labor and white-collars. Brain-trusters think he could carry New York over any Republican now in sight except Dewey. Long forgiven for his lukewarmness on court-packing and purge, which left him sitting pretty with yes-but men. More facts in his cranium than any candidate.

"—five at the Cabinet table"

HULL: Likeliest man to reunite New Deal and reactionary Democrats. This might overcome his 69 years in 1940. Least vulnerable liberal; few enemies. His nomination would flabbergast G. O. P. as did Lehman's in New York. Gallahad of the regime. F. D. R. might take him, especially if he could get a Hopkins or Corcoran type as vice president.

• • • •

REED: Among explorers the Justice's name often pops up. He's only 53, and his appointment to the Supreme Court was the most popular Roosevelt ever made. Firmly grounded liberal of the Benjamin Franklin type. Old Kentucky home excellent geographically. No enemies. Vote-getter; twice elected to Legislature.

• • • •

JACKSON: Got the White House nod first; his excellent prospects (via the New York governorship) were spiked by Farley lukewarmness and a few radio sentences in the jittery days of last December. Businessmen who have looked the Solicitor General over since think they passed up a chance to support a temperate, judicious liberal. A very long shot for 1940, but still young; eminently acceptable to F. D. R.

• • • •

ICKES: Generates conservatives' high-blood pressure, and will be 66 in 1940 . . . Can't resist hanging a good stinging phrase on his adversaries. Farley has outlawed him as a former Republican, yet he's usually included as one of the four possibilities from the Cabinet; but it's largely conversation.

"—the bed of Procruster"

FARLEY: His acceptability to F. D. R. as a compromise candidate, with one foot in politics and one in Utopia, is a very remote possibility, but still worth mentioning. His boom seems to flourish until you mention the Al Smith campaign. He's as hot after delegates as Hoover was in 1927. Has more political oomph than any candidate except F. D. R.; he generates affection, even The Chief's.

• • • •

BARKLEY: The Senate's majority leader might be the one if he hadn't got quite so jittery about his campaign in Kentucky. A man who breathes so hard in a Senatorial primary is out of breath for a Presidential campaign . . .

• • • •

MEAD: Definitely a dark horse. After 20 years in the House, this western New Yorker is getting a shot at the late Royal Copeland's seat in the Senate. He is conscientious, intelligent, industrious and liberal. If he corrals a high vote, he might—just possibly—be acceptable to both the President and the Vice President.

Which won't hurt any candidate in 1940.

This is what the New Dealers seem to think; some of these phrases are theirs.

Pistol Range Planned

The Police and Citizens' Pistol Club which is being formed with the co-operation of the Georgetown Lions Club has arranged to build a pistol target range at the Seventh Precinct similar to that used by the G-men, the Lions Club announced yesterday.

District Accepts WPA Plan to School Shut-ins

A WPA educational project for invalid Washington children now going untaught was approved yesterday by Health Department and Board of Education officials and was expected to be formally signed today.

Sixteen visiting teachers, a supervisor, a clerk and two field assistants will be assigned, Mrs. Mary Steele, director of recreation and education for the District WPA, said last night.

District officials requested 53 visiting teachers and 12 assistants and clerks.

D. C. Supplies Materials

"We are very regretful that more than 20 cannot be provided," said Mrs. Steele. "The number is sufficiently large, however, to give a demonstration of what can be done for shut-ins and those children who go to clinics for treatment."

The request for a staff of 65 to undertake the local project was made at a meeting yesterday morning. Subsequently Mrs. Steele conferred with Dr. Lewis Alderman, National director of WPA educational activities, and was told that a maximum of 20 could be provided.

How many of the teachers shall be white and how many colored is up to the Health Department and Board of Education, co-sponsors of the project, Mrs. Steele asserted. Some of the visiting instructors will be qualified to give occupational therapy, as well as academic teaching.

The Health Department has agreed to supply materials needed for occupational therapy and the Board of Education will furnish books, paper, pencils, and other supplies, she added, explaining that WPA funds may not be spent for such equipment and supplies.

Assigned to Hospitals

The teachers will receive a monthly salary of $82.80 for 108 hours' work, Mrs. Steele said.

She regretfully pointed out that they will be required to pay their own transportation costs, a sizable item. WPA money may not be used for this purpose and neither the Health Department nor Board of Education has funds covering such expenses, she said.

According to plans tentatively adopted yesterday, some of the teachers will be assigned to the orthopedic ward at Gallinger Hospital and others to Children's and Freedmen's Hospitals.

500 Baptists Dine in Honor Of Missionaries

'Mother' West Present Mrs. Ross Presides Pageant Presented

More than 500 men and women dined last night in the parish hall of Calvary Baptist Church as the D. C. Woman's Baptist Missionary Association launched its golden jubilee celebration.

Addresses of welcome were given by Dr. Gove G. Johnson, pastor of the National Baptist Memorial Church; Dr. Horace E. Cromer, Church Federation president; E. B. Shaver and Dr. Rufus Weaver, president and executive secretary, respectively, of the Columbia Baptist Union; Miss Kathleen Mallory, executive secretary of the Maryland Missionary Union, and Dr. William S. Abernethy, pastor of the host church.

The dinner, at which Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the organization, served as toastmistress, was marked by the presence of the surviving charter member—Mrs. Mattie R. (Mother) West, president from 1904 to 1907. The only other living former president, Mrs. O. E. Howell, also was an honored guest.

Later, a pageant, entitled "The Story of Fifty Years," written by Mrs. Carleton M. Long, who also took part, was presented. In seven episodes it traced the Biblical origin of the missionary movement and depicted high lights in the organization's history, from its first meeting in the old E Street Baptist Church to the present.

Participating were Mmes. William S. Abernethy, A. M. Walford, A. J. Banks, Malcolm Scates, A. G. Johnson, John R. Thomas and W. E. Ward, the Misses June Virga, R. Cox, Juanita Claxson and Sue Weeks; also Messrs. Kenneth Reynolds and Wimson Light. The Rev. M. C. Stith gave the closing prayer.

Luncheon addresses by Mrs. Charles H. Sears, foreign vice president of the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, and Mrs. Blanche S. White, corresponding secretary of the W. M. U. of Virginia, will feature today's observance.

Nice Accuses Democrats of 'Buying' Votes

O'Conor 'Derelict' No Inquiry Made Queen Annes Affected

By the Associated Press.

Ellicott City, Md., Oct. 18.—Gov. Harry W. Nice said tonight Democratic State convention votes for his opponent in the gubernatorial race were "openly bought and paid for" in Queen Annes County.

The Republican chief executive told a party mass meeting here that Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, the Democratic nominee, "must have known" of claims Queen Annes votes were bought and was derelict in his duty for failing to investigate "this debauchery of the ballot."

"In the recent convention which awarded the $70,000 Democratic nomination to Mr. O'Conor," Nice said, "there sat delegates from Queen Annes County who cast their votes for Mr. O'Conor. Without comment, he accepted those votes.

"He must have known, because it had been publicly charged, that the election of those delegates was openly bought and paid for."

Gov. Nice said newspapers unfriendly to the Republican Party had "severely attacked and criticized" the Queen Annes County voting.

"In other words," he continued, "we have the spectacle of the chief law enforcement officer of the State, Mr. O'Conor, accepting convention votes under public charges that they had been bought and paid for, in shameful violation of law.

"This is bad enough, but there is another and just as important principle involved. The person primarily charged with the duty of guaranteeing the honesty of elections, the prosecution of bribery of voters and other criminal offenses against the election laws of Maryland, is the State's attorney of the county in which such offenses are alleged to have occurred.

"Failure to perform this duty constitutes wilful neglect, and it then becomes the duty of the attorney general not only to recommend removal of the State's attorney, but to step in and make the investigation, and do those things which the State's attorney has failed to do."

The Governor asserted "it would be illuminating to the people" if O'Conor would "tell us just what are his intentions in connection with this alleged uncontradicted brazen purchase of votes."

Turning to a new attack on O'Conor's tax program, the Governor demanded to know whether the attorney general, if the income tax amendment is defeated at polls in November, hopes "that lotteries will be approved" and "thus permit him to function the State government on results of gambling."

Top Price $1,200 At Angus Auction

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Forty-five head of cattle—38 females and 7 bulls—sold for $22,445 here yesterday in the Virginia Aberdeen Angus Association's fifth annual auction-show. The top price was $1,200, paid by G. D. Hodges, of Staunton, for General Gorgius of Creswell, owned by the Creswell Farm, of Forest, Va.

In the show which preceded the auction the cattle of Alexander B. Hagner, of Warrenton, took a batch of firsts. His heifer, Enzora of Broadview, was adjudged the best "bred heifer calved during 1937" and won the grand championship of the exhibition.

About 500 cattlemen and other persons attended the co-operative's event.

Sacrificial Urn Is Acquired by Luray Museum

Luray, Va., Oct. 18.—Miss Mary Keyes, of Washington, D. C., granddaughter of the late Mrs. M. Z. Zerkel, founder of the Luray Museum, has presented to the Luray Museum a number of archeological pieces brought from Europe and Africa by the De Prorok Expedition.

The pieces include portions of the old Roman palaces and houses in the Forum. Chief attraction, however, is a terra cotta burial urn one of five such pieces brought from Carthage.

World Peace Parley Is Urged To Reconciliation Fellowship

A conference to all the nations of the world, under leadership of President Roosevelt, was proposed last night by John Nevin Sayre, president of the National Peace Conference and the Fellowship of Reconciliation and brother of Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre.

Addressing a meeting of the fellowship at the Y. W. C. A. Building, Sayre advocated an international conference as a vital move toward permanent peace. "Let us have our peace conference before war, instead of after it," he urged.

Sayre quoted George Lansbury, British pacifist, as saying Adolf Hitler told him 18 months ago he would attend such a parley if the call were issued by Roosevelt.

As a "total pacifist," Sayre rejected the theory of collective security, "the idea of good nations ganging up on treaty-breaking nations." He pointed out that "practically all nations break treaties, including the United States."

He added that he also rejected "at least half Chamberlain's policy of appeasement: Instead of ganging up against Germany, taking Germany into the gang."

"Nobody questions the desire of peoples for peace," Sayre asserted as he appealed "to the conscioucе of mankind." He said that "only a total pacifism as sure of itself as total militarism can meet the totalitarian problem."

Sayre assailed churches "that sell Christianity out" in supporting war. He held that true Christianity taught that "instead of punishing the aggressor, you take the punishment of the aggressor on you."

The speaker was introduced by Frederick J. Libb, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War. Libby will preside over the two-day annual conference of the council, which begins at 4 p. m. today at the Washington Hotel.

Forum Urges Continuance of 8:30-to-4 Day

Fears Traffic Tie-ups Vaccination Advocated Stop Lights Praised

The Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights, at its first fall meeting last night at Powell Junior High School, adopted a resolution urging the Commerce Department to continue a workday schedule of from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. instead of reverting to a 9 to 4:30 schedule.

Effect of the latte rschedule for Department employes, the association said, will be to add to traffic congestion. Dr. C. J. Fernald stressed the need for more widespread vaccination of children against diphtheria. The District commissioners were commended for installing traffic lights at Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets and Spring road.

S. A. Wood was nominated for president of the forum to succeed Dr. Lyman F. Kebler, retiring president. C. E. Foulk was nominated for secretary to succeed Kennedy C. Watkins. Lester T. Walter was nominated to succeed himself as second vice president and Mrs. C. J. Fernald for another term as second vice president. The election will be held next month.

Southeast Council

The Southeast Council of Citizens Associations voted to admit the Fort Davis Citizens' Association to membership at a meeting last night at the Eleventh Precinct police station. F. J. Lynch, president of the Fort Davis Association, and W. D. Mulky and J. R. Kirby, were present for the new group and are expected to act as delegates to the council.

The council voted to ask the District Commissioners to arrange for use of Constitution avenue for parade purposes except on exceptional occasions. The group also went on record as opposing more than one hearing before a coroner's jury, a grand jury or a police trial board in cases involving charges against policemen.

William A. Maio was re-elected president of the council, Ernest J. Reed vice president and C. A. Barker treasurer. William J. Smith was elected secretary to succeed Orrin Davy, who refused another term.

Anacostia P.@T. A.

The Anacostia Parent-Teacher Association voted to urge the District Commissioners to hasten purchase of ground for a junior high school in Anacostia at a meeting last night at the Anacostia Junior-Senior High School.

Mrs. William J. Plemmons, president of the association, was directed to write to the commissioners emphasizing need for immediate action because of crowded conditions in the junior-senior school. Congress has appropriated $50,000 for a site for the junior school.

Capital's Hopes at Meadowbrook Carried by Four Women Riders

Miss Cotter on Roxie to Lead Team Miss Steig's Hi Ho Mettlesome in Trial McDowell Mare Ragarded as Dependable

Washington hopes of winning the Governor's Cup, emblem of interstate supremacy, to be contested for in the Inter-American Horse Show opening tomorrow at Meadowbrook, were pinned last night on the outstanding mounts of four prominent Capital horsewomen.

The horses, best jumpers in the city, are Roxie, owned by Miss Margaret Cotter, team captain; Lady Jack, owned by Mrs. Gardner Hallman; Hi Ho, Miss Lisbeth J. Steig's mount, and Modern Melody, the hunter of Mrs. Nancy McDowell.

The quartette were showing top form in tryouts at Meadowbrook yesterday.

Margaret Cotter seems to have impressed Roxie with the importance of the four-day engagement with the teams of other States, for the big bay gelding was on his toes and did the difficult course in faultless style. Roxie usually puts on a rodeo performance whe nhe enters the show ring, but yesterday acted as though there was something serious ahead and buckled down to business.

Lady Jack was apparently making faces at the difficult jumps. The dark bay 4-year-old has the faculty of making the hard jumps look easy and playfully romped around the course, under the expert riding of Gardner Hallman, taking every obstruction with ease and a finish worthy of a much older campaigner.

Hi Ho, who won the championship of the Indian Springs Horse Show Sunday, was in fine fettle, too fine it seemed when she first entered the ring, but the riding of her young owner, Miss Steig, soon convinced Hi Ho that she was out for an all-important purpose. This powerful chestnut mare is on the way to become one of the best open jumpers in this or any other land and she is being piloted by a strong rider.

Modern Melody is a hunter that can jump higher and tougher obstructions than are usually encountered in the hunting field. There is nothing spectacular about Mrs. McDowell's chestnut mare, but she is a sure jumper in any type of going. Yesterday the daughter of the great Repulse looked particularly good.

Workman Atop Chimney Forced to Flee From Wasps

Workmen who were undisturbed by the mere standing on top of the 150-foot chimney at the McMillan Reservoir boiler plant at First and Douglas streets northwest and knocking away bricks with a pick, were chased from their jobs yesterday by wasps.

For the second day in succession temperatures in the eighties awakened the insects. They attacked workmen who were wrecking their homes. The men hastily retreated and built a heavy smudge inside the chimney. Still the wasps refused to leave.

Workmen hope to continue their work today while weather is cool and wasps are still asleep. Workmen tore only 25 feet from the top.

Without further wasp interference, H. Herfurth, Inc., hopes to complete wrecking of the chimney in 15 days. In December or January U. S. Army Engineers will start remodeling the old steam boiler building. Power at the reservoir is now supplied by electricity.

An Ex-Bootlegger Mourns the Old White House Hedge

The hedge around the White House grounds is being removed and somewhere an erstwhile Washington bootlegger must be reminiscing sadly.

In the Coolidge Administration, when bootleggers openly sold their wares at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, one of them used the White House hedge as a cache. He would fill all pockets with bottles of gin. After these were sold he would return to the hedge and get more from a burlap bag hidden behind the hedge.

The hedge is being removed as result of erection of a high iron fence around the White House grounds. No longer will it be necessary to stand on tip-toe to look into the Nation's most famous "back yard."

Dr. Pruden Talks To 'Spizzerinktum'

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, last night addressed more than 300 persons at the fourth annual "spizzerinktum" of the Tri-City Union of Baraca-Philathea Bible Classes, held at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest.

Other speakers at the dinner were Miss Henrietta Heron, Washingtonian, and Edwin Barrett, of Alexandria, general counsellor and treasurer, respectively, of the World-Wide Union of the Baraca-Philathea, which maintains headquarters here. Parent organization of 2000 Bible Classes, the International Union will celebrate its forty-eighth birthday tomorrow.

The Tri-City Union, comprising classes in Washington, Alexandria and Baltimore, is headed by James C. Gaines, Alexandrian, chairman of the dinner.

Colored Man Admits 2 Murders in Georgia

Smyrna, Ga., Oct. 18 (U.P.).—A middle-aged colored man confessed to police Monday he had beaten to death an aged Cobb County farmer and his daughter with an ax handle in a dispute over a $5 debt.

The man admitted he killed George Washington Camp, 66, and his daughter, Mrs. Christine Camp Pauls, 26, last Saturday night. Mrs. Pauls' 9-year-old son, Cecil, was beaten brutally.

Women's Bureau Loses New Home

To Get Remodeling Budget Item Cut 2d Precinct Wins $60,000 for Building

The District Commissioners will refuse to include $200,000 in their budget estimates to build a new Women's Bureau as requested by the Police Department, it was revealed yesterday.

Instead, they have included an item of $15,000 to remodel the old Second Precinct Building for use by the bureau.

New Precinct Building

In addition, it was disclosed, the Commissioners will seek $60,000 to build a new Second Precinct building in the general vicinity of the old structure. The old precinct building which the Women's Bureau uses at present is on Fifth street northwest, between M and N streets.

It was expected until yesterday that the Commissioners would grant the request for new quarters for the women's bureau. It is understood plans already had been started. When Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, originally asked the $200,000 for the women's building, he also requested $10,000 to remodel the old No. 2 station for use as a precinct.

Receiving Home Included

It also was disclosed yesterday the Commissioners will ask budget bureau approval for expenditure of $160,000 for a new Receiving Home, in addition to funds to continue this agency and the National Training School for Girls.

Continuation of the home and the training school was recommended recently by Miss Dorothy Henry, child welfare expert, who was called in by the Commissioners to survey child agencies.

It was further learned that the Commissioners would include an item for $1,000 to be expended next year by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer for "traffic education."

Mrs. Simmonds Dies; Pastor's Wife

Mrs. Mary White Simmonds, wife of the Rev. Newton M. Simmonds, pastor of Highlands Baptist Church, Fourteenth street and Jefferson streets northwest, died at her home, 1324 Gallatin street northwest, yesterday morning after an illness of almost a year.

Services will be held at the home Thursday at 2:30 p. m. The body will be taken to Taunton, Mass., for burial. Services will be held in Taunton at 10:30 a. m. Friday.

Mrs. Simmonds leaves a daughter, Miss Margaret A. Simmonds, and a brother, George L. White, of Taunton.

18 WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1938 ★★★

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

On the strength of his victory over Mike Belloise the other evening, Joey Archibald is recognized by the New York Boxing Commission as the featherweight champion of the world. But a vigorous dissenter is Mr. Goldie Ahearn of the Washington firm of Turner and Ahearn.

POVICH.

"There is no champeen," said Mr. Ahearn yesterday. "Und, furthermore, there will be no champeen until Monday night when we put on the Leo Rodak-Freddie Miller show. Then we will have a champeen. New York is only one State. The N. B. A. champeen is the champeen of 39 States. Archibald—phooey!"

It seems that Ahearn's Rodak-Miller fight has been, indeed, recognized by the National Boxing Association as a featherweight title match, but in the hour of Ahearn's triumph he finds the powerful New York commission setting up a champion of its own. Rodak and Miller will be fighting for a disputed title.

"I Developed Him!"

"For me somebody is always spoiling it!" wailed Ahearn. "Who is this Archibald? Whoever heard of this Archibald before I give him a chance to fight in my preliminaries? A dumb guy like me develops him and then he walks out on me! Oi, gevalt. From me he has made a mug, this Archibald."

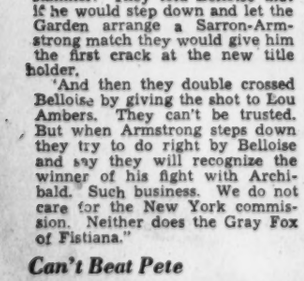
Ahearn at least was frank. Archibald had walked out on him after winning a local featherweight tournament. If he did not make a mug out of Ahearn, exactly, he had made at least a chump out of the Washington matchmaker. His reputation bolstered by his Washington successes, Archibald was able to sell himself to New York promoters.

KISS FROM DAD!
"My Boy's Champion!"

"He is a $75 fighter when I give him a semifinal shot last winter against Buddy Grimes and when I bring him back for another shot, the New York promoters laugh at me," explained Ahearn. "They want to know why I book that bum who can't get a $60 fight in New York. Now look at him! The New York champeen! Somebody made a bum outa me."

Some Stuff, Eh

As long as Ahearn is insisting on that fact, it may as well be elaborated on. Ahearn's faith in Archibald was such that he gave him a shot at Ray Ingram in a semifinal after Ingram had been ruled out as no fit opponent for Lou Gevinson in the main bout of a police benefit show. Archibald knocked out Ingram, dealt Gevinson the same dose a few weeks later and emerged as the hottest hombre in District boxing.



YOU'RE THE KING!
Armstrong Crowns Joey

Ahearn was working up toward a featherweight title bout in Washington and his hopes were riding with Archibald as a contender who would be acceptable to all agencies. There was a taint on Archibald's record—a loss to Tony Dupre—and Ahearn cleared thta up by matching the pair here last summer. Henry Armstrong helped his little plan by vacating the featherweight title and Ahearn thought he had the No. 1 challenger in Archibald.

A Horse Laugh!

But the same New York promoters who had laughed at Ahearn and Archibald only a year before now confined their laughter to a horse-laugh display against Ahearn. From under his nose they grabbed the ingrate Archibald and signed him for a "title" fight with Belloise.

"Up there it is politics, all politics," moaned Ahearn yesterday. The New York Commission will kill boxing if this keeps up. Why did they give Armstrong the title for beating Belliose? I will tell you. Belloise was supposed to be their champino, but Sarron was recognized by the N. B. A. last summer. They told Belloise that if he would step down and let the Garden arrange a Sarron-Armstrong match they would give him the first crack at the new title holder.

'And then they double crossed Belloise by giving the shot to Lou Ambers. They can't be trusted. But when Armstrong steps down they try to do right by Belloise and say they will recognize the winner of his fight with Archibald. Such business. We do not care for the New York commission. Neither does the Gray Fox of Fistiana."

Can't Beat Pete

Wahington Golfers Meet Philadelphians . . . . . .Helen Dettwelier Sinks a Putt on the 16th

Mrs. Vare, Hulme Lose Final Score, 9½ to 8½ Mrs. Platt Has 82 Two Matches Halved

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

The finest players from the 79 member clubs of the Philadelphia Women's Golf Association scored a one-point victory over the all-star team of the District organization yesterday at Chevy Chase, 9½ to 8½. The Philadelphians avenged a previous defeat by teh same score and evened the total for the year in the inter-city series.

Each team scored a majority of the points in two of the six matches, while two were even, but the No. 1 team of Mrs. Waldron's lineup, Mrs. Betty Meckley and Helen Dettweiler, scored the outstanding victory of the day as they swept three points from Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, six times National champion, and her partner, Mrs. Thomas R. Hulme.

With Mrs. Meckley playing the most consistent golf of the foursome including an out nine of 40, Miss Dettweiler stepped in with several winning holes, including a birdie on the sixteenth that clinched the 18-hole match and put the back nine in dormie figures.

Large Gallery Attends.

Mrs. Vare, the center of attraction for one of the largest galleries of the year, played well but she and Mrs. Hulme could not match the fine 78 best ball of the local duo.

The only holder of the English, Canadian and U. S. Women's titles, Mrs. E. L. Howe, the former Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who won the American title in 1910, was a member of the other losing team for the Quaker City combination, as she and Mrs. H. H. Dolan lost two of three points to Mrs. Landra Platt and Mrs. George Hussey. Mrs. Platt had one of the lowest rounds of the day, 40, 42—82.

Two of the team foursomes divided the three points, Marion Brown, District and Middle Atlantic champion who was regelated to the second foursome due to the handicap rule of the local team, pairing with Mrs. David Clark to draw with Mrs. Norman Lack, who scored 80 for the second straight day, and Mrs. J. Walker Hoopes. Miss Brown had 38 on the back nine to overcome a one up lead of the Philadelphians, while Mrs. Clark stepped in with a par on the last hole to win it and save a half point.

One Clean Sweep

Mrs. J. F. Dowdall and Louise Claytor, of the host club, playing in the last match, needed to win the hole while the visitors, Mrs. Sam Byrd, wife of the former New York Yankee, who is now pro at the Philadelphia C. C., and Elise Garthwaite, required a halve. It was halved in fives, giving the match to the visitors by the point margin.

The only clean sweep for the Quaker City Club was scored by Mrs. W. G. Hamilton, jr., and Anne Krumbhaar, who had a best ball of 75 in winning three points over the Indian Spring duo, Mrs. Charlotte Stern and Mrs. Walter Stokes.

Mrs. H. S. Giles, southpaw star from Indian Spring, will join the local team today as it plays the final inter-city competition of the year, opposing the Baltimore Women's lineup at Elkridge Club The District team, with a team much weaker than yesterday's lineup, won 12-6 early in the season and are top-heavy favorites to better that score over the hosts.

Mrs. Etty Meckley, Indian Spring, and Helen Dettweiler, Congressional, defeated Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, Philadelphia C. C., and Mrs. Thomas R. Hulme, Merion Cricket Club, 3 points to 0.

Mrs. David Club, Army and Navy, and Marion S. Brown, Manor, all even with Mrs. Norman J. Lack, Wilmington C. C., and Mrs. J. Walker Hoopes, Wilmington C. C., 1½ points to 1½.

Mrs. W. G. Hamilton, jr., Hunt Valley, and Anne Krumbhaar, Sunnybrook, defeated Mrs. Charlotte Stern and Mrs. Walter Stokes, Indian Spring, 3 points to 0.

Mrs. Conyers Button, Philadelphia Cricket Club, and Ruth Haley, St. David, defeated Mrs. L. G. Fray, Manor, and Mrs. Myron Davy, Congressional, 2½ points to ½.

Mrs. Landra Platt, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. George Hussey, Army and Navy, defeated Mrs. E. L. Howe, Merion Cricket Club, and Mrs. H. Hoffman Dolan, Marion C. C., 2 points to 1.

Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, Congressional, and Louise Claytor, Chevy Chase, all even with Mrs. Sam Byrd, Philadelphia Country Club, and Elsie Garthwaite, Philadelphia A. A., 1½ points to 1½.

Mrs. Martin Wins First Round Match

Defeats Mrs. Walden Titlist Under Par In Virginia Golf Play Mrs. Owens Victor

Richmond, Va., Oct. 18.—Blazing a sub-par trail across the long, difficult James River course, Mrs. Lily Harper Martin, of Portsmouth, advanced smoothly through the first round of match play in the seventeenth annual Virginia women's golf tournament today by defeating Mrs. C. B. Walden, of Richmond, 6 and 5.

The 22-year-old Mrs. Martin, seeking her fifth consecutive State title, was 1 under a stern women's par when the duel ended at the thirteenth for the most spectacular display of feminine golfing ability in Richmond since Mildred (Babe) Didrickson set a course record seceral years ago by equaling par 79 for 18 holes.

Today's round was a dazzling comeback for Mrs. Martin, who yesterday yielded the tournament medal, which she had held for four years, to Mrs. George S. Owens, of Petersburg. Mrs. Owens also played consistent golf today to eliminate Mrs. Jean Jones, twice State champion, of Richmond, by a 7 and 6 margin.

Meets Mrs. Priddy

Mrs. Martin had to be good to turn back the calm, steady-shooting Mrs. Walden who was 3 down at the turn after firing a 41, two over par. The defending champion will meet Mrs. Clara Priddy, of Richmond, who won the crown in 1930, in tomorrow's semifinals. Mrs. Priddy beat Mrs. Carl Boshen, another Richmonde, 7 and 6 today.

Mrs. Owens will face one of the Capital City's leading golfers in tall, long-driving Miss Lillian Wood tomorrow. Miss Wood moved into the quarterfinals today through a 4 and 2 triumph over Mrs. C. C. Vaughan, Richmond.

Two of the first-round matches, each involving iRchmonders, were decided by one-up margins, Mrs. Grayson Dashiell defeating Mrs. Ora Chancellor and Mrs. R. C. Welton downing Mrs. John Ryland.

Mrs. Quesenbery Wins

Mrs. C. G. Quesenbery, of Waynesboro, semifinalist at Hot Springs last year, had to play near par golf to gain a 4 and 3 decision over Mrs. W. M. Hamby, a sharp-shooting competitor from Roanoke. Mrs. Arch Lewis, Richmond, scored a 6 and 4 victory over Mrs. Hunter Watson Crewe, in the other championship flight match.

The Martin-Walden tilt got off to a ashy start when the Portsmouth girl won the lengthy downhill first hole with a birdie four and Mrs. Walden came back to even the count with a birdie on the exacting par-5 second.

Mrs. Martin Goes Up

Matching stroke for stroke and playing easily without the slightest show of tension, the two foes halved the next three greens with pars and Mrs. Martin went 1-up at the sixth where she pitched dead to the pin for a birdie. Mrs. Martin went one over at the eighth for the first time when her tee shot lodged in a trap but she won the hole and then went 3-up when Mrs. Walden was short with her third shot at the ninth.

oth equalled par 5 at the tenth, but went over on the eleventh, Mrs. Martin winning with a five. Mrs. Walden was unable to match the Portsmouth star's birdie on the twelfth and par on the thirteenth and the stirring match was ended.

Mrs. Owens was also impressive, playing all shots well to defeat the experienced Mrs. Jones. She carded a 41, two over par going out, and kept pace with par until the contest was ended at the twelfth. She is playing in the lower bracket and already observers are predicting that she will meet Mrs. Martin in Friday's finals.

Results Today

Championship flight—Mrs. Lily Harper Martin, Portsmouth, defeated Mrs. C. B. Walden, Richmond, 6 and 5; Mrs. Clara Priddy, Richmond, defeated Mrs. Carl Boshen, Richmond, 7 and 6; Mrs. C. G. Quesenbery, Waynesboro, defeated Mrs. W. M. Hamby, Roanoke, 4 and 3; Mrs. Grayson Dashiell, Richmond, defeated Mrs. Ora Chancellor, Richmond, 1 up; Mrs. Arch

Redskins Lose Turk, Krause for Eagles

Doctor Forbids Use of Either Star Sunday But Smith and Baugh Will Be Available Smukler Is Star of Invading Philadelphians

Head Coach Ray Flaherty heard the Redskins' doctor forbid him to use Halfback Max Krause and Tackle Turk Edwards against the Philadelphia Eagles at any time in Sunday's game at Griffith Stadium.

Flaherty had been resigned to the loss of Fullback George Karamatic for the game against the Eagles, but he had counted confidently on the availability of Edwards and Krause.

Both players, injured two weeks ago against the Giants, seemingly were on their way to recovery after absenting themselves from last Sunday's battle at Detroit. But the club doctor has refused to remove the cast from Krause's knee and declares also that Edwards' separated shoulder is improving only slowly.

Smith, Baugh Better

Offsetting the absence of the Edwards-Krause-Karamatic trio will be the improved physical condition of Riley Smith and Sammy Baugh. Smith, despite the fact that he played 25 minutes against the Lions, is not yet fully recovered from his wounded leg, but his play on that day was encouraging.

Despite Baugh's frequent appearance in the Redskins' games, he is not the rugged fellow who escaped injury until the final game of the 1937 season. Baugh's shoulder is trussed up with a brace that resembles lattice-work, but on Sunday he is expected to be at his 1938 peak.

Yesterday at Griffith Stadium Flaherty was unrelenting in his work with the team after a day of rest following the triumph at Detroit. He recognizes the Eagles as a team which pushed the Redskins to a 26-23 score in September and has the deepest respect for the Eagues' offense.

Dave Smukler, big Eagle quarterback, this year is showing for the first time in the pro league the type of football that caused Pop Warner to class him as a better back than Ernie Nevers and Jim Thorpe. Smukler throws the Eagles' passes, does the Eagles' punting and carries the ball at least half the time.

The Eagles on Sunday will be fighting to stay in the Eastern Division race. Their loss to the New York Giants last Sunday was directly the result of fumbles, and they have to their credit a victory over the Giants who are the lone team to defeat the Redskins this season.

Marked men on the Eagles aside from Smukler will be Joe Carter and Bill Hewitt, clever ends, and Fullback Dick Riffle, remembered here as the Albright star who beat Georgetown two years ago.

Navy Bans Scrimmage

Injuries Feared Eye Tiger Game Cutter Reports

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Oct. 18.—Facing the twin problems of keeping injuries at a minimum and getting the Middies in fighting trim for a succession of hard games, Navy's board of strategy tried a new tack in practice today, electing to discontinue all scrimmage in the future. Dummy scrimmage, with the varsity walking through its assignments, will be the order of the day from henceforth.

Navy's immediate objective, of course, is Princeton, which comes to Baltimore Saturday to help manufacture one of the more attractive battles on the football program. Head Coach Hank Hardwick has a wholesome respect for the Bengals, and is doubling the pressure to get his men back to par for the game.

Slade Cutter, assistant coach who saw Princeton maul Penn last Saturday, was much impressed with the Tigers, putting it mildly. Cutter's report to headquarters did nothing to disturb Hardwick's belief that Princeton will give his men more trouble than Yale—which supplied Navy with an overdose of opposition.

Hardwick stressed pass defense this afternoon, striving to bolster his secondary in this department. Princeton's aerial game is not as potent as Yale's, according to scout notes, but strong enough to worry the Tars. The Tiger relies more on power and bone-crushing line drives but Navy intends to be prepared for any exigency.

Cutter's notes were lavish in their praise of Tom Mountain, rangy halfback, whose 57-yard gallop accounted for one of Princeton's two touchdowns against Penn. Also singled out for praise and marked dangerous were Mike Casey, a 60-minute center; Bob Jackson, a small but potential quarterback; Dave Allerdice, a halfback, and Bob Tierney, a giant tackle.

Tierney, according to Cutter, is one of the year's outstanding tackles, and Slade—one of Navy's all-time best, should know. The big Irishman time and again broke through and smeared Penn runners on the defense, and opened up huge holes for his own ball carriers on the offense. He figures to give Navy a most uncomfortable afternoon.

Navy, meanwhile, is hopeful that by some miracle of medicine its own all-America tackle candidate, Al Bregner, will be available Saturday. The cast will be removed from his ailing knee tomorrow, and if the treatment has progressed satisfactorily, there is a faint hope that he will see some action against the Tigers. Hardwick was generous in his praise of Tom McGrath's work in the Yale game, but the team still could use Bergner.

Navy Seeks Ban On 'Jinx Yell'

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—There's a movement afoot at the United States Naval Academy to ban forever as a "jinx" the yell in which "Navy" is spelled out in mornful chant," followed by the screaming injunction: "Fight! Fight! Fight."

Navy finger-crossers cited records today to show it invariably brings defeat and pointed out it was used in giving the team a sendoff to Yale and an unexpected 9-7 licking last week.

New Contract And Raise For Traynor

Sets a Record Praised by Boss Holds Job Long One-Year Paper

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18.—Pennant or no pennant, piloting the Pittsburgh Pirates appeared a steady job today as Manager Harold Joseph (Pie) Traynor signed for his fifth full season, at an increase in salary.

TRAYNOR

The quiet likeable Traynor has lasted longer than any of his predecessors since Fred Clarke finished a 16-year reign in 1915.

The Buccaneers booted away a National League championship less than a month ago by losing six of their last seven games.

William E. Benswanger declared today: "We don't hold Pie to blame for losing the pennant and most baseball men don't either. He's going to return with an increase in salary."

Traynor's salary has been estimated around $18,000 by persons close to the team although the club itself never discusses its pay roll publicly.

Working on the usual year-to-year contracts the Pirates give their players and managers, Traynor has been with the Pittsburgh club continuously since 1921, 14 years as a player before he succeeded George Gibson at the helm in the summer of 1934.

Until Traynor signed his new contract at his home in Brookville, Ind., the four and a half seasons served by Bill McKechnie had been the yardstick for the careers of recent Pirate managers. McKechnie was fired in 1926, a year after beating Washington in the World Series, by the late Barney Dreyfuss, Benswanger's father-in-law.

However, Traynor has surpassed this term without even winning a pennant. The team he took over in 1934 finished fifth and the Pirates drowsed in fourth for the next two campaigns. Then in 1936 the club won ten straight at the end of the season to wind up third, and this year worked in the other direction to land in second.

Benswanger said an effort would be made to strengthen the team for next year, but not to "wreck" it.

Leo Rodak Arrives Today for Battle

Top-Ranking Featherweight to Work Out Here Freddie Miller Due in Town by Friday Heavy Advance Sale Reported for Monday Bout

Leo Rodak, of Chicago, top ranking featherweight on the National Boxing Association list, will arrive in Washington this afternoon to complete training for Monday night's 15-round bout with Freddie Miller at Turner's Arena. He will be accompanied by "Nine O'clock" Nate Lewis, his manager and one of boxing's true veterans. Rodak is expected to use the National Capitol gymnasium for his daily chores, although he probably will not drill today.

RODAK

Miller, resting up in New York after a successful European barnstorming tour that saw him conquer the pick of the overseas punchers, will continue training in the big town until the latter part of the week, when headquarters will be transferred to this city. His manager, Pete Reilly, has promised to have the fighter here by Friday at the latest, so the public may have a good look at him in training.

Archibald Again

Meanwhile, Joey Archibald rules the 126-pound roster in New York, and probably will give Mike Belloise, the midget he whipped for the honor Monday night, a return bout in the near future. Belloise was not only surprised, but startled when Archibald was awarded the decision, just as he was the night Joey won the duke over him in their ten-round bout at Griffith Stadium.

Al Weill, Archibald's manager, was quoted as saying that the National Boxing Association previously recognized his man as its ranking No. 1 contender for the title, and was quoted as saying the N. B. A. would have to go along with New York on the matter. But no such sentiment was voiced by the association which announced Monday it would not recognize either Archibald or Belloise, unless they consented to a match with Rodak. eo holds a decision over Belloise, but can't get Archibald in the same ring with him.

Mr. Scalzo, Too!

Peter Reilly also has anantidote for Archibald's championship claims in little Petey Scalzo, who lost to Tony Lupre in the District elimination tournament one stormy night at Griffith Stadium. An ambitious youngster on the way up the fistic ladder, Scalzo has been trying to inveigle Archibald into fighting him during the last year, but gets no cooperation from the challenged party. This gives rise to a suspicion that Archibald entertains a wholesome respect for the Italian.

Scalzo, however, is young, and Reilly intends to keep him on Archibald's trail until Joey fights either Rodak or Miller or Scalzo. Any one of them, according to the Silver Fox, will knock the pins out from Archibald's pretensions to the throne

A hevay advance sale was reported from Turner's ticket office for Monday night's card. Because of limited seating accommodations the prices have been scaled at $1.15 general admission; $2.20 reserved, and $3.30 ringside. The District promotorial firm was loath to raise the ante, but obliged to do so because of the heavy guarantees exacted by the principles who feel the bout will produce the new 126-pound champion.

Admiral Stages Speedy Workout

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (AP).—War Admiral, displaying a liking for the fast Pimlico strip on which he will race Seabiscuit November 1 in their long-awaited $15,000 match race, uncorked an impressive workout today and turned in a time of 2:09 for a mile-and-a-quarter jaunt.

An hour after Samuel Riddle's star left the track, Trainer Tom Smith brought out the 'Biscuit for an easy mile gallop marking his first appearance here since he was taken to Laurel last week for the Laurel Handicap.

War Admiral, with Charlie Kurtsinger riding, broke at the quarter pole and finished alone, with fractional times of 13 3-5, 26, 38 2-5, 51, 1:16 4-5, 1:30, 1:42 2-5 and 1:55 3-5.

Prison Gridder Dies of Injuries

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (AP).—Football claimed the life of a prisoner in Western Penitentiary today.

Rex Warman, 21, a regular for two seasons on the prison's football team, was hurt Saturday while his team was losing to a sandlot aggregation, 6 to 0. His injury at first was not believed serious but an abdominal operation was performed from which he never rallied.

Warman was serving a three to six year term for assault and battery.

Bobby Cruickshank Signs Florida Contract

Richmond, Va., Oct. 18. (AP).—Bobby Cruickshank, golf professional at the Country Club of Virginia, said today he had accepted a winter teaching position at the Gulf Stream Golf Club at Delray Beach, Fla.

Cruickshank said he had fixed no date for reporting for duty at Del-Ray Beach. "I'll stay here as long as the golfing weather remains good," he said; "then I'll head South, just as I always do."

Point After Touchdown Is Important Play, Says Baugh; Is Opposed to Its Elimination

By "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh,

Forward Passing Champion, National Football League.

The point after touchdown is a topic again following the 7-6 defeats of Michigan by Minnesota and Holy Cross by Carnegie Tech last Saturday. That kind of a defeat is always hard to take.

SAMMY BAUGH.

But I can't agree with the folks who want to rule out the point after touchdown. To me it seems to be as much a part part of the game as the forward pass, or the punt. It certainly is as fair for one team as another. Both teams start from scratch when they attempt to make the extra point.

The usual squawk is that extra-point kicking is the work of one specialist and that it isn't fair to penalize with defeat a team which fails to kick the point after scoring a touchdown. But I cant agree with that, either.

Kicking the point after touchdown is almost as much of a team play as the forward pass or running play. Not all the responsibility rests with the kicker. The chap holding the ball can make or break the play, and so can the line, or the blockers.

When the try for the point is is blocked, it's not always the fault of the kicker. The defensive team has probably done a pretty good job on the charge and should be given credit for it. If it succeeds in knocking down the kick that woul have meant the difference between defeat and victory, it deserves something.

The team that doesn't develop a place kicker has only itself to blame. The art of place kicking requires steady practice and the a man who can kick a needed coach who doesn't come up with int or a line that can block on the play has himself to blame, mostly.

One of the greatest contrasts between professional football and the college game is in kicking the point after touchdown. The pros long ago realized the importance of the extra point. That's why they have developed such talented placegicgers as Riley Smith and Tillie Manton, of the Redskins, War Cuff, of the Giants, Jack Manders, of the Bears and Nicolai of the Pirates.

Those fellows aren't content with their reputations as place kickers. They practice everlastingly at it and kicking practice with the pros is as much of a part of the daily workout as blocking or signal calling.

In time, place kicking becomes mechanical with the good kickers. They develop a style and an accuracy that is amazing. Tillie Marton, for example, didn't miss in 15 tries for the Giants in 1936. And last year he booted 12 straight extra points before he failed. That's 27 in a row. It's something more than luck.

Compare the college and professional scores this season, and the contrast is striking. Army lost to Columbus, 20 to 18, because it couldn't kick a point in three tries. All through the college scores one can see this failing. Games are tied at 6-6 and 12-12, or won by 7-6 and 13-12.

The pros' superiority at kicking the extra point is virtually undisputable. Look at the scores of last Sunday's National League games for example. Eighteen touchdowns were scored in the four games played, and 17 times the extra point was kicked.

The pros know the value of developing a place-kicker. When the college coaches realize it, you'll find fewer of these heartbreaking 7-6 defeats.

Gomez and Wife Celebrate Reunion

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP).—Lefty Gomez and his wife, the former June O'Day, were in this honeymoon capital today, their reconciliation an acknowledged fact.

"Everything's rosy now," the Yankee pitcher commented.

Mrs. Gomez early this year sought separation from Lefty, but her presence in the stands during the final league games and the World Series indicated the two had made up.

They stopped here enroute to Quebec Province, where Lefty intends to do some hunting.

Central High overcame the handicap of two canceled touchdowns and 45 yards lost in penalties yesterday o defeat the Indians of Anacostia by 19 to 0, at Eastern Stadium. The victory put the Mount Pleasanters in a tie with Tech for the lead in the interhigh series.

Both canceled goals came in the first quarter when Central's title-aiming squad was trying desperately to run up a score. The third attempt was finally good and Central went ahead to tally again in the third and fourth periods.

Taking the opening kickoff to its own 29, Anacostia tried one running play—good for 1 yard—and then elected to kick. As it happened, that single yard gain was Anacostia's total for the first quarter. Fullback Porter of Central took Art Faircloth's kick to exact midfield and picked up 9 yards in two line rushes. An Anacostia offside penalty gave Central its initial first down, and a long pass soon afterward, Benny Steiner to Harry Martin, accounted for the next. One more first down was chalked up by Central before Halfback Martin stumbled across for the first pointless score. Referee Magoffin ruled that Martin had taken the ball on a forward pass less than 5 yards behind scrimmage.

Martin Gains 19 Yards

Given a new lease on the game, Faircloth backed up behind his own goal and kicked to his 24-yard stripe, Central came down the field again, Martin gaining 19 yards on a brilliant run through tackle, and Tony Di Blasi crossing the line from the 5. Again the play was called back, this time Central getting a 15-yard penalty for holding. An end-around by Jimmy Clark, stellar right wing, brought the ball to Anacostia's 3 and Steiner got to the one-foot line, but Central's downs had expired. Anacostia kicked out of danger again to its own 25, from which point Central finally marked up its first points.

Two plays after getting possession of the ball, Steiner set out on a cross-field jaunt, through the whole Indian squad, finally winding up over the goal with six good points. His attempt at the placement was wide.

Through a second period most notable for the consistent ground-gaining of Rookie Halfback Johnny Bredbenner of Central, the teams battled scoreless. The remainder of Central's points came as the result of three first downs in succession in the third period, with Tony Di Blasi crashing over from the 2-yard line, and Steiner's over-the-goal pass to rangy Dick Farr in the closing minutes of the game. The only extra point was scored by Steiner after the final touchdown as the whistle blew ending the game.

Despite the width of Central's margin, the game was hard-fought and well-played. Only three fumbles occurred. According to statistics, Central should have won by at least three more touchdowns, however. The Mount Pleasanters made 16 first downs to Anacostia's 2, and ran up a total yardage gain of 271 to 4 for their opponent. Aerials were few, Anacostia being able to hold its own at that. The Indians completed 2 of 5 attempted aerials, while Central completed only 3 out of 11. Against the 45 yards lost by Central on penalties, Anacostia was fined on 15, all for off-sides.

First Downs Even Eastern Outplayed
Virtually Eliminated

By Jack Munhall.

Wilson's downtrodden Presidents, doormat of the Inter-High football series since their entry last season, failed again yesterday in their quest of a first victory but at the same time practically eliminated Eastern from the race by outplaying the defending champions and holding them to a 6-to-6 tie at Western Stadium.

While 750 students, lazing in an Indian summer sun, looked on first in amusement and then in amazement, the doughty Presidents seized upon a break in the second quarter, converted it into a spectacular touchdown and then repelled all but one Eastern threat to gain their second straight series deadlock.

It was Eastern's prize offensive weapon—the forward pass—that backfired in its face and allowed Francis Bond, Wilson halfback, to race 75 yards and cross the goal line standing up. The Lincoln Parkers immediately retaliated with a 13-yard touchdown pass, Ray Soo to Jack Carroll, to tie the score but the damage had been done irreparably by the errant flip that Soo had released just three minutes before.

Bond Makes Run

Eastern had just received the first important break of the game and appeared on its way to a score when the fatal aerial was loosed. Taking the ball on Wilson's 30, where Bond's weak kick had rolled out, the Lincoln Parkers were set to open up. But on the second play in the series of downs, Soo faded to his right and whipped a short bullet-like pass, intended for Fullback Sydney Hooe.

The ball, traveling at a terrific speed, shot through Hooe's unflung hands and hung momentarily in the air before Bond dashed in, grabbed it inches from the ground and was off on his thrilling run. Apparently halted in his tracks by a group of Lincoln Park linemen, he quickly reversed his field, shaking off several would-be tacklers.

His blockers picked him up nicely at midfield and he raced down the sidelines meeting with no difficulty until deep in Eastern territory. On the 20-yard line Eastern's quarterback, Jack Teague, who had been steadily closing the gap between him and the flying Bond made a lunge which seemed certain to accomplish its purpose. But Bond, with an intuition born of desperation, at the same time had cut sharply to the left and continued on as Teague fell face downward on the ground.

Eastern Blocks Kick

Eastern, stunned by the unexpected score, fought back and gained its opportunity to deadlock the count when Frank Donaldson, Wilson quarterback fumbled a kick from Francis Hallama, Eastern's long-booting halfback, on the Wilson 28.

Two passes from Soo to Hooe and a line buck by Hallama moved the ball to the 13. There after two unsuccessful line plunges, Soo dropped back and threw a perfect pass to Carroll, substitute end, who had eluded the Presidents' secondary and stood free in the end zone.

J. Kirk's placement was blocked by a fast-charging line.

Presidents on Defensive

With the score at 6-6 the teams settled down to play a cautious brand of football, both playing for breaks which seldom came. Hallama, consistently getting away booming punts which carried on an average of 40 yards, kept the Presidents on the defensive throughout most of the third quarter. But Eastern, without its triple-threat quarterback, Paul Cohill, who was in bed with a heavy cold, could not muster a sustained attack and Hallama's masterful kicking was of no advantage.

In the last quarter, both teams gambled recklessly, hoping to complete a long touchdown pass. But although Buddy Yocum, sub Eastern back, and Bond, for Wilson, often brought the crowd to its feet with lengthy heaves, neither was able to connect for long gains. That was chiefly because of the opposing lines which rushed the passers so quickly that they could seldom afford to wait until a receiver broke into the clear.

Players Star

On the Wilson line the play of Center Andy McBride and Tackles Amoroso and Burton Wood was commendable. For Eastern, J. Kirk, R. Kirk and Petro were defensively outstanding.

The leading ground gainer of the game was Charles Garner, Wilson fullback, who smashed the line for runs of 7, 13 and 13 yards in the final quarter to singlehandedly roll up two first downs.

The first downs, incidentally, were even. Each team made eight.

G. W. High Plays Glass

Title Hopes Blasted
Meet in Alexandria
Game Friday Night

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 18.—Their hopes for a State title shattered by Saturday's defeat at the hands of Woodrow Wilson High, in Portsmouth, George Washington High School gridmen reach the half-way mark in the Class A Conference campaign this Friday evening, when they entertain the E. C. Glass eleven, of Lynchburg, under the floodlights at 8 o'clock. The contest marks the first invasion of a team from the western section of the State sice 1928, when the Presidents overwhelmed South Boston to win the Class B championship of the State.

Although out of the running for the title, the Presidents still hope to finish in the upper bracket of the scholastic conference by winning their next three home games, against Glass, Salem, and Hopewell, respectively. To date the locals have won one, lost one, and tied one in the title race.

The Senators, coached by Marshall Smith, a former Alexandria High School athlete, are also gunning for a high ranking in the final standings, having split even in a pair of conference tests to date.

Albert Doran and Willis Benner, co-mentors of the G. W. eleven, are confronted with the task of revamping their entire lineup as the result of injuries maintained in the past two games, and several players who have been performing with the junior varsity will probably be seen in Friday night's lineup. Albert O'Brien, Griffith Schelhorn, and Ed Snyder, all linesmen, are ailing, while "Bo" Robinson, regular halfback, is also a doubtful starter.

Stanley Hollin and Irving Mumford, a pair of Jayvee backs who have looked exceptionally good in two games to date, will probably be called up from the junior squad to see backfield action, while Walters and McDermott are also slated to take their places in the varsity lineup for the first time.

Virginia Athletic Club gridmen face the toughest assignment of the early season campaign this Sunday, when they entertain the powerful Warwick Athletic Club, last year's unlimited champions of the District of Columbia, at the Municipal Stadium at 3 o'clock. Both clubs are undefeated, the Virginians having won three games in a row while the Warwicks have come out on top in two starts.

Boasting the strongest team the club has produced in the past five seasons, the Virginians will bank heavily on Billy Vermillion, former All-High quarterback from Central; "Hardy" Genamere, 190-pound fullback from the old Praters' eleven, and Jack Hudson and Fred Pullman, a pair of former Alexandria High School stars.

George Washington High School 125-pound gridmen open their 1938 campaign on Thursday, when they step over to Episcopal High to meet the Maroons' "cake" team at 3:15. The G. W. Midgets are coached by George Tyler, former Emory and Henry College backfield star.

Cavaliers Work With Freshmen

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Coach Frank Murray sent his Virginia squad through a two-hour scrimmage with the freshman eleven today. The running of Jim Gillette, who was used sparingly, however, featured the workout.

Virginia coaches, pointing the Cavaliers for the Maryland game, also stressed defense with Art Bryant and Lee McLaughlin, varsity tackles, crashing through to break up freshman plays.

Arrows Sign Coleman

Richmond, Va., October 18 (AP).—Tommy Coleman, of Huntington, W. Va., described here as a former football star at Huntington High School and the University of Kentucky, has been signed by the Richmond Arrows of the Dixie Pro Football League.

Carrig Replaces Captain at End; Reinhart Rests Colonial Regulars

Kasunich Is Out
Must Prove Worth
BergmanExperiments

By Jack Munhall.

The latest in a series of drastic revisions Coach "Dutch" Bergman has been making to instill punch and speed in his Catholic University lineup enlivened the usually drab practice sessions yesterday as the District's "big four" continued preparations for a strenuous week-end.

BERGMAN

The Cardinal mentor, who has shifted Rocco Pirro, stalwart tackle, to quarterback and Al Calabrese from end to guard, and replaced the pair with second stringers since his team's rout by Detroit, now plans to give Sophomore Joe Carrig a shot at the end position held by Capt. John Kasunich.

Carrig, a slender lad who specializes in pass-catching and who knows how to run after he receives the ball, worked with the first eleven in scrimmage yesterday, and Bergman has indicated he will retain his job until Kasunich proves himself beyond a doubt to be the superior player.

Others on the first team with Carrig were Louis Shine, who took over Calabrese's old position; Frank Cairo and Jules Stanges at tackles; "Whitey" Ambrose and Calabrese at guards; Pete Osinsky at center; Joe Guyon and Burke Vidnovic at halfbacks; Pirro at quarterback, and John Matukaitis at fullback.

Over at George Washington where the Colonials are priming to defeat Davis and Elkins Friday night at Griffith Stadium for their fourth straight victory, Coach Bill Reinhart rested his regulars and concentrated on developing his reserves.

The squad was divided into halves with Reinhart directing the reserves and Assistant Coach Koch the regulars.

Koch's charges took practice fairly easy contenting themselves with shedding "train legs," result of the four-day Colorado trip, while Reinhart worked the reserves at top speed. Afterward, Reinhart outlined scout reports on Davis and Elkins, warning that the Senators will bring up an unusually heavy team that is improving steadily. D. and E., according to the notes, depends largely on the forward pass as a ground gainer and Reinhart promised plenty of pass defense drills the remainder of the week.

Georgetown's undefeated squad also did some listening yesterday as Coach Jack Hagerty informed them that Manhattan, though it can show only a .500 record for four games, has by far the sturdiest line the Hoyas have bucked this season. Pointing out that the Jaspers checked Holy Cross' running plays and completely stifled the attacks of all other opponents, Hagerty rehearsed his formations against the freshman team in a two-hour drill.

In this the passing of Jules Koshlap, sophomore halfback, and Joe Mellendeck, Koshlap's running mate was outstanding. Despite threats of a shake-up unless the regulars started to show some fight, Hagerty's regular lineup was the same as last Saturday. Joe Daniels and Bob Kercher were at ends; Earl Fullilove and Joe Frank, tackles; Mark Ostinato and Augie Lio, guards; Jim Reichey, center; Mellendeck, Koshlap, Jim Castiglia and Joe McFadden in the backfield.

Lou Ghecas, fleet halfback, who has almost fully recovered from an injury that kept him on the sidelines Saturday, alternated with Mellendeck at the running half.

Two Maryland gridmen who were instrumental in the Terps' 3-0 defeat of Virginia last season will be on the sidelines Saturday when the Cavaliers invade College Park for the fifteenth meeting between the schools.

"Jarrin'" Jim Meade, leading ground-gainer of the '37 game and this section's outstanding back until he broke his ankle, and Pershing Mondorff, who kicked the winning field goal in the last few minutes of play, are the absentees. Mondorff may not even be able to lend his vocal support, for he is in the Maryland University Hospital recovering from an appendectomy.

However, even with this redoubtable pair out of the game, Maryland should be in better trim than in any previous game this season. Charlie Weidinger, out two weeks with injuries, proved against Western Maryland Saturday that he is ready again, and most all of Maryland's other cripples are due to return.

Backs now available for service against the Cavaliers are Frank Skotnicki, Joe Murphy and Fred Widener, who will start Saturday; Rip Hewitt, John Boyda, Joe Devlin, Dick Shaffer and Jack Mueller. All save Shaffer, Devlin and Widener have been sidetracked at some time this season.

EVERYONE, EVERYWHERE CAN ENJOY THE LUXURY OF ROBT. BURNS CORONAS AT 10 CENTS APIECE

Here is news that should make every man who knows cigars open his eyes. Here is a cigar which every present-day standard of value — shape — workmanship—quality of tobacco—puts in the luxury class, yet it is actually priced at only 10 cents.

Nevertheless, the Robt. Burns Corona is not priced at 15 cents, but at 10 cents each. For a revelation of how much pleasure our 1938 model of a cigar delivers, try Robt. Burns Corona.

Do you tie your Tie neatly?

. . . are you the Man who Cares?

TYING your tie neatly may not make you "head man" in your field. But, somehow, the chap who strives to have things right usually gets along.

For generations, the Carstairs family have subscribed to that principle. They have preferred to serve a small trade well rather than a large one indifferently.

Notably excellent today is Carstairs Blended Whiskey. LIGHT IN BODY; RICH IN TASTE. A blend of several superlative whiskies, smoothly balanced to give you delightful flavor with delicate bouquet. Carstairs is your whiskey, if you are "the Man who Cares".

Orchids Next Wins Boliver Purse, Feature at Laurel, Paying $41.10

Hughes Filly Closes Fast To Triumph

Comes From Last Sun Girl Second Entry Runs Third Thrills Mark Day

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 18.—Making her nineteenth start of the year and overlooked in the betting despite a game close in a recent sprint, Orchids Next carried the purple and yellow dots of James Y. Hughes, Chicago sportsman, to victory in the Bolivar Purse, topping today's card of the Maryland Fair, Inc.

Paying a $41.10 mutuel, the daughter of Time Maker, Virginia sire of Time Supply, was competing among a field of ambitious fillies, the majority headed for a shot at the $10,000 added Selima Stakes on Saturday. She came from next to last position to assert her supremacy, under a rousing ride by Jockey Maurice Peters.

Sun Girl owned by W. F. Hitt, was beaten a length for all the money after a game try while Matterhorn, coupled with Wise Lady as the public's choice, was third a neck farther back.

Orchids Next came from back to take command in the final eighth and Peters kept her out in front. Matterhorn also was outrun in the early stages and closed with a bold rush.

A return of $20.40 for the usual deuce went to the daily double players who backed Hermosillo, a $3.50 favorite in the first race, and Ariel Toy, a $9.30 shot, in the third event.

Hermosillo took the opener in one of the closest fits of the meeting, the camera showing the tip of his nose in front of Happy Nymph. However, the backers of the latter were even more humiliated when the stewards disqualified her for bumping Celtic Legend enteriffg the stretch.

Edgemont Fouls

The steeplechase also brought a disqualification, but because it was for fourth money, it passed almost unnoticed. Edgemont fouled several horses and had his number removed. The winner was Persian Prince, a half-mile star, who held Silver Reigh safe by a length and a half. Promoter, the favorite, was third.

A spectacular spill in which Editeur seemed to land on Jockey T. Roby at the thirteenth fence, marred the race. The boy suffered cuts on the face and arms as well as bruises. Persian Prince paid an $17.80 mutuel.

Judy Johnson, one of the four women trainers here, owns and conditions the winner. After the race she brought out one of her horses for a workout over the jumps. She was recognized and the crowd gave her a big hand. She carried her mount over two jumps and at the third went tumbling to the turf. She was knocked out but recovered quickly.

At The Post

Dear Al:

In my opinion Apprentice J. Reilly who was suspended for 10 days on Monday for reckless riding astride Diplomacy should get a medal instead of a reprimand. From where I sat Reilly put up one of the best exhibitions of horsemanship I've witnessed in a long time. Diplomacy was fractious at the post and placed outside the gate by Starter Milton. When the break came, Reilly put Diplomacy to a drive, brought her over and, apparently without touching or interfering with a horse, got her to the front at the first turn. There was some bumping behind her but she was not at fault, but that assistant starter who jumped the fence and poked a customer along the rail after the break was at fault. Pat McCabe, trainer for the Dattner Stable, is passing out cigars after receiving word that his wife, Doris, has made him the father of a boy. He will be named Pat, jr. My Rocky Mount, N. C., friends, headed by Al Brandon, are coming up to see the Maryland Futurity at Pimlico. They will pass up the Seabiscuit-War Admiral clash for this race. I understand, Impound, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's promising son of Sun Beau, will run in the New Eingland Futurity on Saturday. In 1936, Reaping Reward, Pompoon and Ocean Roll was the order of the finish. Due to managerial difficulties last year's race was called off. Don't forget the big frolic of the Maryland racing writers to be staged at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore on November 10. If you want tickets write me. Johnny Gilbert is looking for a mount in the Selima Stakes for Saturday. Looks like a big field and Gilbert shouldn't have any trouble. Thanks for the nice letters anent the Marvel ratings.

BILL.

First race—Bill Bleiweiss, sharpened in a recent sprint, may be the right one in this rather open affair. Lone Hand has been knocking at the door hereabouts and should be a keen factor. Palan had poor racing luck last out, and with clear sailing could surprise.

Second race—The Milky Way Stable of Giles County and Banner Man seems to have things its own way in this sprint. Either can collect the main money. Solvit was a tip last out and may de better. Buyer Beware to take care of the others.

Third race—I'm going to take a flier here with Stable. This one came through the stretch in a recent sprint and was burning plenty of oil. If that wasn't a flash in the pan, we might collect. Critt comes off that good third here last Monday. Solar Flight could take it all.

Fourth race—Good Chance has done about everything asked around here. Gets in this steeplechase light and I'm going to string along with a lucky stable. The Hitchcock entry of Annibal and Rioter is formidable, although the latter stumbled around the course last out. Homesteader for the show end.

Fifth race—This looks like the day for Challephen and Savage Beauty, from the sharp W. L. Brann barn. Both are fit and ready and have light weight. Mr. Canron and Grey Gold to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Some Count will be conditioning for the Maryland Handicap and will carry plenty of ods, but I'm going to take my chances. Has shown me enough to warrant a ton pick. White Sand and Bewitched for the place and show.

Seventh race—Camaraderie had plenty of trouble before bowing in that last. Smaller field and light weight here. Jolly Jack was kidding last out and may be in a serious mood for this. Army and Navy is dropping down and closes fast.

Eighth race—Zinnia is sharp as the proverbial tack and gets in this with only 108 pounds. This one may go to the front and stay there. More Pep and Jobanheta seem likely to be in they pay. For a shot at the moon try Au Foin.

Best bet—Milky Way Stable entry (second race).

D. C. Asks for Loan League Convention

Would Bring 2,500 Here James Reports on Trip Progress in England

According to Carl J. Bergmann, in charge of getting out a strong Washington delegation to the Chicago convention of the U. S. Building and Loan League next month, more than 40 have indicated their intention of attending. It was stated that additional representatives from the local building and loan groups were expected to make the trip thus insuring retiring President Edward C. Balt, of Washington, a personal tribute to his leadership.

The executive council of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League, meeting yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel, went on record as recommending to the league that Washington be the host to the 1939 annual convention of the national body. Should the league approve this and the invitation accepted by the U. S. League, it is expected that more than 2,500 building and loan leaders from the entire country will visit the Capital.

The council heard C. Clinton James' report on housing conditions in the eight European countries covered by him last month prior to the international conclave in Zurich. James was enthusiastic over the rapid strides being made by England in erecting modern housing, the development around London being particularly impressive. He said that while municipal assistance was eagerly sought when the rehabilitation plan got underway, private loan associations with ample funds soon began to take over the job and today less than 30 per cent of all advances for home constructions are from municipalities.

Before the council adjourned for the annual meeting next Tuesday, members were told by E. C. Baltz that the international congress meeting every 3 to 4 years, has determined to select an American city to be the scene of the next gathering. This would place the time around 1942, which will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the United States Building and Loan League. Arthur G. Bishop, head of Perpetual Building and president of the local group, was chairman of the council session.

Insurance Engineers

Between 50 and 60 members of the Association of Mutual Fire Insurance Engineers will arrive in town today from all over the country to attend the sessions of their annual meeting, which is being held this year at the Wardman Park Hotel, starting today and ending Saturday.

Bankers' Acceptances

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Bankers' dollar acceptances outstanding in th United States totaled $261,430,941 at the end of September, an increase of $3,111,329 during the month but $82,988,172 below the September 30 figure last year, the Federal Reserve Bank reported today.

Cotton Prices Hold Steady

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Cotton moved irregularly today as nearby deliveries held steady on trade buying and later positions dipped under hedge selling. December advanced from 8.20 to 8.28 and closed at 8.26, while October eased from 7.69 to 7.59 and closed at the low. Final prices ranged from 3 points net higher to 11 points lower.

The market opened with orders evenly divided. There was still a tendency to exchange from near to later deliveries. Liquidation, owing to failure of the market recently to work further above the loan basis, supplied some contracts while the South sold moderately.

Futures Price Range	High.	Low.	Last.
December	8.28	8.20	8.28
January	8.19	8.16	*8.22
March	8.17	8.11	8.17
May	8.02	7.97	7.99
July	7.95	7.86	7.88
October	7.69	7.50	7.60

*Nominal.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil was generally lower today under increased liquidation and selling by Eastern interests, with new lows for the season established in late positions. Final prices, however, were up from the lowest on covering, but still 1 to 4 points below the previous close. Sales were 377 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal: December closed, 7.52; January, 7.54; March, 7.60; May, 7.70.

Treasury Borrows At 0.018 Per Cent

The Secretary of the Treasury announces that the tenders for $100,000,000, or thereabouts, of 91-day Treasury bills, to be dated October 19, 1938, and to mature January 18, 1939, which were offered on October 14, have been opened at the Federal Reserve banks.

The total applied for was $320,338,000 and the total accepted $100,028,000. The average price was 99.995, equivalent to a rate of 0.018 per cent.

Corn, Lard, Soy Beans Drop to Lows

Corn Receipts Large 485 Cars Yesterday Wheat Is Lower

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—New smashing of four-year bottom price records for all deliveries of corn and of lard distinguished dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Soybeans eclipsed 3-year-lows.

The chief influence pulling values down was pressure from the large amount of corn in the country, both old and new available for movement. Persistent liberal arrivals of corn here, 485 cars today, had an unsettling effect on other grains and in provisions as well.

Wheat went lower with corn and also responsive to pronounced weakness of the Liverpool market, where quotations dropped 2 cents a bushel overnight in some cases. Rains benefiting crops throughout most of Argentina were largely responsible for Liverpool tumbles.

At the close, Chicago corn and wheat futures were but little above the day's bottom figures, each of the two grains ⅛ to ½ cent lower compared with yesterday's finish; corn, December, 43⅞; May, 47½@47⅞; wheat, December, 64⅞@64½; May 65⅝@65¾; oats ¼ to ⅜ off, rye showing ⅜ drop and provisions 5 to 10 cents decline.

Larger Rubber Quota Urged by O'Neil

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Expanding of the rubber export quota from the Far East was advocated today by William O'Neil, president of General Tire & Rubber Co., who has just returned from abroad.

"America will need more rubber next year than British and Dutch producers are allowing it to have this year and I hope there will be an increase of 10 per cent in the rubber quota for export from the Far East during the first quarter of 1939," he said.

Gen. Motors Announcement Lifts Market Reverses Earlier Downward Trend Motor Shares at New Highs for Year

New York, Oct. 18.—Announcement that the General Motors Corporation will rehire 35,000 additional workers during the next two weeks and will restore salaries to the level which existed before the cuts made last February turned the stock market upward today after the early hours had shown a continuation of the irregular trend which marked trading on Monday. In early dealings the pivotal leaders had given ground grudgingly under the pressure of profit taking sales with only the public utility and aviation issues displaying any consistent strength.

The word from General Motors, however, was taken as a definite indication of the good reception which is being accorded the new 1939 models of the automobile companies. Before 2 o'clock the list had gained most of its early losses and in the final hour of trading the rush to buy was sufficient to force the ticker 3 minutes late. Volume in the last hour was 890,000 shares, bringing the volume for the day to 2,408,280 shares.

Ten representative motors, used in the composite average of 100 representative stocks, forced their way through to a new high for the year and the general market closed up 0.26 point for the session. Utilities, which have been in the forefront, gave ground and averaged lower for the day, and the store and food stocks also failed to make up their losses, but rails and the other groups of industrial shares averaged higher. Steels, motors and aviation shares closed with the best gains.

New highs for the year were made by General Motors and Chrysler and their net gains at the close were 2⅜ and 3¼ points respectively. In the case of most of the pivotal leaders, however, the net advances were either fractions or just above a point, due to the early morning selloff.

Steel Stocks in Demand

Steel stocks moved upward in the surge of the closing hours, although just why the stockholders of steel companies should become enthusiastic when their industry is being cut to pieces by price cutting is an unsolved mystery. Conditions in the steel business are chaotic and a sort of hysteria rules.

Adding to the unsettlement today were cuts in galvanized steel sheets, and in the New England district there is a report of a $6 a ton reduction in tin mill black plate. Hot rolled sheets are quoted $6 a ton lower in the same district. The major companies in the industry have made it clear that they are going out after business and no longer will hold an umbrella over the industry.

All of which may make them very solid when the Administration gets into its swing in the monopoly inquiry, but it certainly is raising hob with their own earnings and those of the smaller units. Instead of earnings, one should say deficits. United States Steel closed up 1⅝ today and Bethlehem a point, Big Steel being a quarter-point farther away from zero than Bethlehem.

Gains of a few of the representative leaders today included Du Pont, 2; Goodyear, 1½; Nickel, 1; Loew's, 1¾; National Distillers, 1¼; and Southern Railway, 1. Consolidated Edison failed by a small fraction to make up its losses and other leaders to show small declines included Telephone, Public Service and Peoples Gas.

Commodities were featured by new four-year lows for all deliveries of corn and lard, while soy beans broke their three year lows. Pressure of a large amount of corn unsettled this staple. At the close corn and wheat futures were off ⅛ to ½ cent. Cotton was irregular, ending the day up 3 points to off 11 points.

Bonds improved in late dealings in most sections today, overcoming small losses earlier due to extension of the profit-taking move started Monday. The close was steady with small gains predominating in active issues.

Lehigh Coal & Navigation Lines provided a feature, the A and C 4½s of 1954 closing 9 and 4⅜ points higher, respectively. The 4s of 1965 advanced 3⅜ points. Allegheny Corporation bonds also were well ahead at the close, the convertible 5s of 1950 gaining 5½ and the 5s of 1944 were up 2. The movement in Lehigh Coal & Navigation securities was attended by rumors in the financial district that the Jersey Central Railroad may be nearer agreement with large bond holders on a proposal to reduce interest. If such were the case, the position of the bonds, which are a direct mortgage subject to small prior liens on the railroad properties leased to Jersey Central, might be considered more secure. More than two-thirds of Lehigh's gross revenue last year was derived from rentals to railroads.

More Cuts Reported in Steel Trade

Independents Lead Sheets $4 Lower Market Disturbed

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 18.—Steel men were troubled today by reports of more price cutting on products of the big mechanized continuous strip and sheet mills constructed in recent years. In trade circles it was reported that independent steel makers had slashed the price of galvanized sheets, an important finished item, as much as $4 a ton.

Keen competition for business in hot and cold rolled strips and sheets, particularly from the large automobile companies, was said to have resulted in one of the most unstable pricing situations the industry has seen in years.

Bolstering previous reports of additional cuts of $2 a ton on sheets, the American Metal Market, a trade publication, said "The market in hot and cold rolled strips and sheets is now $6 a ton under prices ruling a few weeks ago. Hot and cold rolled sheets are quoted at $2 further decline without any official announcement being made. Sellers also made open quotations on galvanized sheets, reducing the former recognized base price by $3 to $4 a ton, quoting from 3.50 to 3.35 cents a pound at the leading basing points."

While making no formal comment, spokesmen for some of the big steel companies indicated that leading sellers would meet competition at lower prices where reductions definitely had been established and it was necessary to secure business.

Daily Oil Output Up 35,103 Barrels

Tulsa, Oct. 18 (AP).—Production of crude oil in the United States increased 35,103 barrels daily during the week ending October 15, bringing the daily average to 3,279,128 barrels, the Oil & Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma's output rose 6,650 barrels daily to 457,050. East Texas increased 449 to 369,749 and the State of Texas was up 6,553 to 1,248,695. Louisiana decreased 2,319 barrels daily to average 268,351; California was up 18,750 to 682,500 and Kansas increased to 155,275.

WELL, THOSE CHILLED STEEL COMPANY CONSOLIDATED FIRSTS CAME OUT OF REGISTRATION TO-DAY-
I WONDER IF I CAN GET AN APPOINTMENT WITH THE HAIRDRESSER TO-MORROW MORNING THOUGHT
-AND IMMEDIATELY WENT TO A PREMIUM. THEY WERE PRICED ON A 3.80 BASIS, WHICH IS A GOOD YIELD-
I MUST GET A MANICURE TOO
THOUGHT
-ESPECIALLY AS COMPARED WITH SOME OF THESE CONVERTIBLE DEBENTURES
I THINK I'LL GET THAT LIGHTWEIGHT WOOL DRESS WITH THE PLEATED YOKE

HOW WONDERFUL! SO YOU BROKE A HUNDRED? YOU'RE GETTING TO BE QUITE A GOLFER

Bob Burns Says—

It seems like ever since they first started makin' pictures, the producers have been cryin' for new ideas. I believe if I was a scenario writer, I'd jest spend half of my time hangin' around the courtrooms. That's the best place in the world to get new slants on tragedy, comedy and romance.

The other day a young fella was tried for speedin' and runnin' over a young lady. When the judge asked if the young lady was there to testify against the defendant the boy spoke up and says, "No—you see, I got acquainted with her and married her!" The judge says, "Well, you've been punished enough. If everybody had to do that, there wouldn't be so much reckless drivin'!"

60 Montgomery Leaders Call on Commissioners

Support County Survey Delayed One Week Bids Are Received

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post, 8213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Montgomery County Commissioners received a delegation in Rockville yesterday of more than sixty persons representing various civic organizations supporting a request for a nonpartisan survey of the county government.

The hearings was sponsored by the Montgomery County Civic Federation, which voted last May to ask the county to authorize the survey and to appropriate $5,000 to pay some outside agency to make the study.

Speakers included Washington I. Cleveland, past president of the federation; H. S. Yohe, present president; Allen H. Gardiner, chairman of the federation's committee on legislation and legal action; Austin A. LaMar, principal of the Sherwood High School who represented the county school teachers' association; Mrs. Arthur C. Ringland, representing the Woman's Club of Somerset; Mrs. Walter E. Perry and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, both representing the League of Women Voters; Carey E. Quinn, of the Committee of Fifty, and Col. O. P. M. Brown, chairman of the committee originally sponsoring the proposal in the federation.

The hearing was told by Gardiner that bids have been received from numerous agencies and that the federation has selected as preferred organizations to make the survey, the Brookings Institute, Griffenhagen and Associates, and the Public Relations Institute. Prices quoted range from $3,500 to $7,500, he said.

Following the hearing the board adopted a resolution of Commissioner Richard H. Lansdale to make the question of the survey the first order of business for the meeting on Tuesday. The delay was proposed, Lansdale said, because Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan was forced to leave yesterday's meeting early due to a death in his family.

Charges Broken Streets

Charges that a fleet of oil trucks are breaking up Philadelphia avenue, Takoma Park, Md., were made by property owners at a meeting of Mayor Adams and the town council held at the Takoma Park firehall.

Harry Dodge, who led the delegation, pointed out that trucks were not permitted on the Baltimore highway. D. D. Lamond, corporation counsel, was directed to discuss the matter with the company officials.

An ordinance was adopted allowing the police to levy a fine of $15 against owners of dogs proving to be a nuisance. Heretofore the police were only allowed to warn persons to keep their dogs quiet.

The council voted to hold a hearing on the rezoning of Columbia avenue Tuesday at 8 p. m., in the town office, Citizens Bank Building, Carroll avenue.

The sum of $50 was apropriated to pay the salary of a clerk who will prepare a list of property owners and lots in the Prince Georges section of the town. The list is for determination of the portion of tax collections due the Park and Planning Commission for park purposes.

Election of no parking signs on both sides of Philadelphia avenue in front of the Takoma-Silver Spring Junior High School, from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m. on school days, and also on Chicago avenue, from Philadelphia to the end of the school property, was approved.

Impromptu Pajama Parade

An impromptu pajama parade staged by a man giving the name of Arthur W. Hoover, of 305 Greenwood avenue, on Carroll avenue bridge in Takoma Park, Md., ended late yesterday in Gallinger Hospital.

Aroused citizens called Takoma Park police to inform them a man was walking barefooted in his pajamas on the bridge. Policeman Charles Sek took the man into custody and drive him to the town police stationhouse.

The prisoner gave no resistence on the ride to the station, but put up a strenuous fight when Seek attempted to place him in a cell. With the assistance of Desk Clerk C. M. Overaker he finally managed to lock him up. Police communicated with relatives in Washington who arranged the removal to the hospital.

Broome to Speak

Dr. Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of Montgomery County public schools, will address the Parent-Teacher Association of the Kensington Elementary School tonight at 8 o'clock at the school. A reception has been arranged for the teachers of the school and a special program of music will be presented by Mrs. Leo Tooley and the Parent - Teacher Association chorus.

O'Conor to Be at Dance

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, Democratic nominee for Governor, and James A. Young, candidate for clerk of the Court of Appeals, yesterday accepted invitation to attend the dance sponsored by the Young Men's and Young Women's Democratic Clubs in Silver Spring at the Indian Spring Country Club Saturday night. The dance will follow county-wide Democratic rallies in Silver Spring and Bethesda. Other State candidates have also been invited to attend.

Lyon Named Chairman

Robert Lyon was appointed chairman of a budget committee for the health and welfare center of Takoma Park and vicinity at the group's meeting last night at the Takoma Park fire hall. Others on the committee are Mrs. Ralph Brown and Mrs. C. M. Kyle.

Mrs. J. N. Quinn reported the group has completed 14 dresses to be given to needy school children at Christmas. Mrs. Ralph Brown was appointed chairman of an entertainment to be held the latter part of November. The center, which takes in welfare work of all the organizations, is observing the first anniversary of its formation by Mrs. George Robertson, chairman.

Divorce Suit Filed

Mrs. Edna N. Van Fossen, of Washington, is named defendant in a suit for an absolute divorce filed in the Circuit Court at Rockville by Leslie G. Van Fossen, of Kensington, Md.

Through Attorney F. Barnard Welsh, of Rockville, the plaintiff informed the court that he and the defendant were married at Thurmont, Md., in 1934, and have no children.

Mrs. Sue Hatten Dies

Mrs. Sue Elizabeth Walter Hatton, 72, of Silver Spring, Md., died yesterday at the Washington Sanitarium in Takoma Park after a short illness.

Mrs. Hatton was a native of Roanoke, a., but spent most of her life in Silver Spring and Washington. She was married, twice first to Thomas Walter, who died 15 years ago, and then to the late George Hatton. She had made her home at 701 Ridge avenue, Silver Spring, since last December.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Copeland, of Washington, and three sons, Whitney, Thomas and Sidney Walter, all of Silver Spring. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

PWA to Grant $157,500 for Prince Georges

Fraternity Pledges Republicans Rally Hunters Warned

Approval of a Public Works Administration grant of $157,500 to finance the construction of a county service building in Hyattsville and two additions to the courthouse at Upper Marlboro, Md., was announced yesterday by PWA officials.

The grant made to Prince Georges County covers 45 per cent of the estimated $350,000 cost of the two buildings. The remaining 55 per cent of the cost will be met by the county.

Of the cost, about $150,500 will be spent on a county office building in Hyattsville, to provide room for offices now occupying rented quarters. The structure will be 60 feet by 100, and will contain a room for a deputy circuit court clerk, the police court, county police quarters, a jail, meeting room and other offices.

Additions to Courthouse

The remainder of the cost will be for the construction of two additions to the present courthouse in Marlboro, each about 60 feet by 77 feet, providing room for police court, police headquarters, jail and county offices. Included in the project is the remodeling of the present portico and main stairs of the courthouse and installation of a new roof.

A formal offer of the amount of the grant will be sent immediately to the county, PWA officials said. Fifteen days will be given county officials to accept the offer, and obligate themselves to go ahead with the work, putting up their 55 per cent of the cost.

County officials indicated last night that the offer would be accepted promptly and work tarted on both buildings as soon as possible.

Freshmen in Fraternity

One-third of all freshmen at the University of Maryland pledged membership in a social fraternity at annual tapping ceremonies, it was stated last night by Julius Ireland, president of the Interfraternity Council.

The 14 national fraternities on the campus drew a total of 236 pledges from first-year men students —an all-time high at the university.

Phi Sigma Kappa led the 14 fraternities with a total of 35 pledges, while Alpha Tau Omega ran close second with 31 bids. Third most popular fraternity was Alpha Gamma Rho with 28 pledges from the freshmen.

Co-ed students will not pledge until the opening of the February semester of the university.

Republicans Rally

Prince Georges County's Republican candidates urged election of a straight party ticket last night at a political rally in Odd Fellows Hall, Mount Rainier, Md.

The meeting, at which various candidates spoke briefly, followed a dinner given by the County Federatio nof Republican Women and a meeting of the Chillum District Republican Club.

Speakers included John Frank Lillard, jr., candidate for the State Senate; Bird H. Dolby and Bowie McCeney, candidates for the House of Delegates; George Burroughs, nominee for State's attorney; William A. Duvall, running for county treasurer, and William T. Davis, incubent register of wills, who is running to succeed himself.

Frank Small, jr., chairman of the county State central committee, presided.

Hunters Warned

Beware of the CCC enrollees, rabbit and quail hunters were warned yesterday by O. C. Bruce, State coordinator for the Soil Conservation Service, at College Park, Md.

Hunters were asked by Bruce to watch for the red warning signs posted in woods where Civilian Corps men are working. Up to now, saidBruce, there have been no accidental shooting of CCC boys, and with proper precautions the opening hunting season should pass without any mishaps.

Alexandria Hospital Wins Crile Approval

Doctors Address P.-T. A. Candidates Invited Course Studies Bible

The Alexandria Hospital has been provisionally approved by the Hospital Standardization Conference at its annual gathering in New York in conjunction with the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons. Dr. George Crile, of Cleveland, chairman of the board of regents, made the announcement.

Dr. Crile stated that full or provisional approval is accorded by the college to hospitals which meet a specific minimum standard.

Mrs. Irene Manley Roszel is superintendent of the Alexandria Hospital, serving as acting superintendent from February to June, when she was appointed to the position with full authority. Mrs. Roszel has recently returned from a hospital institute in Chicago.

Dr. Samuel B. Moore, of Alexandria, first vice president of the Virginia State Medical Society, is in New York attending the sessions of the American College of Surgeons.

Doctors Address P.-T. A.

Local physicians gave health talks before meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association last night. The speakers explained measures already taken to preserve child health and also additional precautions which have been adopted by neighboring communities.

Dr. H. A. Latane was the speaker at Maury School; Dr. J. W. Love, at Mount Vernon School, and Dr. J. A. Sims, at Washington School.

Candidates Asked to Talk

All candidates for the positions of city collector and city attorney, to be filled at the election of November 8, have been invited to speak before the meeting sponsored by the Central Labor Union, tonight at 8 o'clock, in the Virginia Public Service Auditorium.

Bible Study Course

The annual Bible study course sponsored by the East Potomac Federation of Baptist Training Unions, is being held each night this week in the Del Ray Baptist Church. Representatives of eight churches in the northern Virginia area are participating in the course.

The classes are taught by V. S. Crenshaw, a State worker from Richmond; the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, of the Temple Baptist Church, and Miss Ella Lee Sowers, of the Del Ray church. In addition to the study courses a brief devotional period is observed under the direction of W. W. Anderson, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Legal Matters Delay Opening Of Bridge Link

To Miss Rush Traffic Outlet fo r Lee Blvd. May Begin Today

Minor legal complications will delay opening of the connecting link between the Lee boulevard in Arlington County, Va., and the Arlington Memorial Bridge until this afternoon or tomorrow, the bureau of public roads announced last night. It will not be opened for early rush-hour traffic today.

The $200,000 link is designed to speed traffic from the fast-growing county to the city. It is the first project to be completed of several which will ease traffic congestion across Key Bridge and in Georgetown by making the Memorial Bridge more easily accessible.

The connecting link is about half a mile long and crosses railroad tracks by a three-arch stone bridge, one arch of which will later overpass the relocated Arlington Ridge road.

Actually it joins a segment of the George Washington Memorial highway which starts at the Memorial Bridge. This segment is in two sections separated by parkway.

Scheduled for early completion is another segment of the memorial highway upstream from juncture with the connecting link to the Francis Scott Key Bridge. This segment to cost $89,000, will include a connection with Rosslyn, Va., plaza.

This segment is scheduled for completion before construction is started on a new span at the Virginia end of the Key Bridge which will allow extension of the memorial highway under the bridge and farther upstream in the future.

Bureau officials said yesterday that they hoped to advertise for bids shortly for the span construction. They pointed out that since PWA money will be used it will be necessary to advertise before end of the month in order to get work started by January 1.

The new segments of the memorial highway will help carry automobile traffic to the Memorial Bridge while construction is going on at Key Bridge. Key Bridge will then be closed to all but bus and truck travel.

C. Marshall Finnan yesterday announced also that the new bridge in Rock Creek behind the Shoreham was open for traffic. It carries four lanes of traffic and was constructed for a little more than $93,000.

Charlottesville C. of C. Is Host to Gov. Price

Richmond, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Gov. Price attended the annual dinner of the Charlottesville Chamber of Commerce tonight.

On Thursday he has accepted an invitation to attend the Greensville County Fair at Emporia, Col. E. E. Goodwyn, of Emporia, a member of the Governor's staff, has invited all members of the staff to accompany the executive.

PUC Orders Briefs Filed in Clash Over Auto-Railers

After viewing a one-reel motion picture of congested traffic areas in Georgetown, the Public Utilities Commission requested the Arlington and Fairfax Auto-Railer Co. and the Capital Transit Co. to submit briefs on their attitude on a proposal to bring the auto-railer into the District.

The transit company, which for two days has argued against a petition from the Virginia company to extend service into the city, exhibited the film to support its argument that the auto-railer would increase congestion.

J. C. Bridwell, of the executive committee of the Fairfax Commuters League told the commission his organization was in favor of extending the auto-railer service into the District.

Edmund D. Campbell, attorney for the auto-railer company said the transit company had no right to intervene at the hearing.

Third Va. County Joins Sweet Potato Program

Pocomoke City, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—Worcester County sweet potato farmers joined those from Accomac and Northampton counties in Virginia this week in selling their surplus crop to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

The purchase program is being offered on a basis of offer and purchase plan. Carload lot quantities of 200 barrels per car are being sold by bid.

Low Bid $159,239 On Luke Highway

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (AP).—Plans to "get Luke back into Maryland" moved another step forward today, when the State roads commission received a low bid of $159,239 on construction of the mile of highway required for Luke's return.

Luke, a tiny Allegany County village bordering the upper Potomac River is so located that, under present conditions, motorists must cross the river twice and go through West Virginia to get there from Western Port, nearest Maryland community.

Other low bids received by the roads unit today included John H. Ensey, of Baltimore, bid low at $7,108 for construction of a dual highway connection between the Gov. Ritchie highway and Glenburnie in Anne Arundel County.
